Lay-Offs, Pleas For Exemption Greet Pay Law

D. C. Like a State Retailers Exempt Nearby Concerns Hit Proof Up to Firms

This is the first of a series of articles on the wage-hour law. The second article will appear tomorrow.

Outstanding points for businessmen to remember in determining whether the wage-hour law applies to them follow:

1. Except for business concerns specifically exempt, all establishments producing or handling goods any part of which moves across a State line are affected.

2. The District is treated as a State. As a result, manufacturers and concerns other than retail establishments dealing in goods, part of which crosses the District line, even to or from nearby suburbs, are subject to the law.

3. Business concerns are affected to the extent that their employes actually are engaged in interstate commerce or in production of goods which will move in interstate commerce.

Proof up to Employers

4. Thus some of the employes of a concern may be covered by the act and others not. Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, however, intends to interpret the act broadly. In the cases of producing companies, the burden of proof will be on them to show that any group of employes should be exempt.

5. All retail and service establishments are exempt unless 51 per cent or more of their business is done across a State line. This extends a blanket exemption to the great majority of District stores, shops and similar concerns dealing directly with the public.

6. If an establishment happens to be located near the District line, no matter on which side, it will come within the letter of the law if more than half its business is done on the other side. This injects an element of discrimination into the law which may have to be cleared up by Congress or the courts.

Communications Covered

7. Firms not dealing directly with the public, such as wholesalers or others engaged in or concerned with the distribution of goods, are affected if any part of the commodities handled by them move into interstate commerce. It makes no difference if an establishment is selling to the United States Government.

8. The Wage and Hour Division has made clear that employes of telephone, telegraph and radio companies and of warehouses and similar concerns handling goods moving in interstate commerce are subject to the act. It has ruled that the act applies, in the case of producing companies, to such employes as maintenance workers, watchmen, clerks, messengers and stenographers.

9. The law exempts agricultural workers, seamen, employes of railways, motorbus and truck carriers regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, employes of air lines, street car, local motorbus and interurban railways, outside salesmen, persons employed in executive, administrative or professional capacity, employes of small weekly or semiweekly newspapers and persons employed in the seafood industry, in the first processing of dairy products and certain other farm commodities, and in small local establishments having not more than seven workers engaged in preparing for market any agricultural or horticultural commodity.

10. The administrator has explained that no decision will be made by his office as to whether a particular industry or concern is affected. This must be determined by the courts. The law entitles employes to start court proceedings if they feel that wage-hour provisions should be extended to them.

Andrews 'Unexcited' 53,000 Out in South Pecan Works Close Old NRA Foe Defiant

By Robert C. Albright.

Scattered reports of industrial shutdowns and appeals for exemption yesterday marked the first full day's operation of the new wage-hour standards act, but Administrator Elmer F. Andrews declared there is nothing "to get excited about."

Andrews voiced hope that the shutdowns were temporary and said there would have been seasonal closing of some plants in any event. He said he foresaw no threat of serious dislocations in industry and praised most employers for complying.

Pledges of co-operation were received from Governors of 13 States, and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor announced organization of wage-hour committees in 520 cities for educational work and "policing enforcement of the standards established by the new law."

In a radio speech last night, Andrews said a general co-operative attitude on the part of officials, employers, and employes and the public indicates "the administration of this act will be a success."

Quick Tests Predicted

"This has been a red-letter day in the history of American industry-labor relations," he said. "That American trio—industry, labor and the public—has accepted a new responsibility toward one another."

Meanwhile, Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Utah, who played a prominent role in the law's enactment, said in an Associated Press interview at Salt Lake City that opponents of the legislation may be expected to waste no time in testing it in the courts.

"If, however, there is a sincere desire to give the measure a fair trial, such a test will come only after all possibilities have been exhausted," Thomas said.

50,000 Pecan Shellers Out

Reports of shutdowns ranged from old NRA law challengers to the Southern pecan shelling industry, where 50,000 workers were reported idle.

Julius Seligman, of San Antonio, Tex., president of the National Pecan Shellers of America, called on Andrews. He later told reporters every pecan shelling plant in the South closed because of the law. He said workers in the industry are paid an average of 10 to 15 cents

Ihlder Moves To Demolish D. C. Slums

Asks Official Survey Replacement Due Destruction Required Oehmann Eyes Staff

A survey of unsafe and insanitary dwellings in the National Capital may be made by District officials in connection with low-cost housing projects planned by the Alley Dwelling Authority, it was disclosed yesterday.

John Ihlder, executive officer of the ADA, conferred with municipal officials and will address a formal communication to the commissioners this week asking that the survey be made.

The investigation is to be requested in anticipation of $15,000,000 low-cost housing construction with USHA loans, as the Wagner act requires a corresponding demolition of unsafe and insanitary dwellings.

Oehmann Lacks Staff

District officials were uncertain yesterday, however, as to whether additional personnel and new legislation may be necessary to effect the survey.

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal expressed the opinion that the Commissioners have authority to make the survey, but Col. John Oehmann, building inspector, said his staff is inadequate for it.

Ihlder called attention to provisions of the Wagner housing act and amendments to the alley dwelling act calling for demolition of unfit buildings.

So far the ADA has not been confronted with the problem as it has demolished as many, or more, structures as it has built as it reclaimed slums.

Demolition May Be Deferred

When projects are started on vacant land, however, demolition of obsolete buildings will have to be done separately from new construction.

Section 10 (a) of the Wagner act provides that the USHA shall not enter into any contract with a local authority guaranteeing an annual subsidy for a low-cost housing or slum-clearance project "unless the project includes the elimination by demolition, condemnation and effective closing, or the compulsory repair or improvement of unsafe or insanitary dwellings situated in the locality or metropolitan area, substantially equal in number to the number of newly constructed dwellings provided in the project."

One of the ADA act amendments authorizes the ADA to "enter into agreements" with the USHA "respecting the elimination of unsafe, insanitary or unfit dwellings."

The USHA is empowered, however, to defer demolition in any city "where the shortage of decent, safe or insanitary housing available to families of low income is so acute as to force dangerous overcrowding of such families."

Hull Wins Award For Promoting Foreign Trade

Secretary of State Hull yesterday received the first Robert Dollar Memorial Award as the individual who contributed most toward advancing American foreign trade in 1937.

John F. Tinsley, chairman of the award committee, and E. P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade Council, presented the citation and plaque.

The award was established by the late Capt. Robert Dollar, founder of the Dollar Steamship Line.

Hull, in accepting it, said American foreign commercial policy was "consecrated to the task of seeking economic disarmament and the liberalizing of world trade, for only thus can we hope to build stable foundations for world peace."

Windsor Castle Bombed in 'Raid'

Windsor, England, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—Historic Windsor Castle, seat of kings since the days of William the Conqueror, was "blacked out" for 45 minutes tonight in an air-raid test.

The first "raid" on the castle, supposedly built on the site of King Arthur's meeting place with the knights of the round table, resulted in "bombs" scoring figurative hits on the state apartments and the sovereign's entrance.

The castle area's 500 inhabitants, including military knights and choir singers of St. George's Chapel, worked to make the "black out" effective.

Ford Sees Peace, Prosperity, Greater Productivity in 1939

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Oct. 24.—Henry Ford painted a bright picture of the business outlook in an interview today at a press preview of the new Ford models, predicting a prosperous 1939 and expressing the belief there would be no major European war.

"The people have come to their senses and realize the futility of war," was his comment on threats of armed conflict in Europe.

Business, he said, already is on the upgrade and "distinctly better times are on the way."

"Next year," he said, "will be all right."

He cited "better feeling among the public generally" in support of his forecast.

"People are tired of the many 'isms' that have developed in the last few years," he said. "They are getting back to work, and work spells prosperity."

The Ford Motor Co., he said, is preparing to increase production.

"We plan to step up production of 1939 models well beyond the aggregate of 1938," he said, "because we know that sales generally are going to be much greater." The Ford Co. has produced approximately 462,000 units thus far in 1938.

He said, however, that, with the company's $34,000,000 expansion program nearly complete, "We are now in a position to make all the cars we can sell."

A further increase in the capacity of some of the units involved in the expansion already is planned, he disclosed. He said the tire-making plant, now equipped to produce 5,000 tires a day, would be expanded as rapidly as equipment and materials become available.

He also announced that a 150,000-horsepower engine is being added to the power plant at the Rouge factory. The installation will be completed in April, he said, at a cost of $1,500,000.

Judge Ousts A.F.L. Suit for Union's Funds

Local Joined C. I. O. Took $29,212 Along Defendants Mischosen

Justice O'Donoghue yesterday dismissed the American Federation of Labor's action to recover $29,212 one of its unions took over to the Committee for Industrial Organization. He gave the A. F. L. 20 days to amend its papers and try again.

Lee Pressman, C. I. O. general counsel, argued the motion to dismiss the case on the grounds that the right defendants were not named.

Filed in April

The A. F. L. suit was filed April 11, 1938, by William Green, A. F. L. president, and Frank Morrison, secretary-treasurer. They sued John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman; John Brophy, C. I. O. director, and the late Charles P. Howard, who was the C. I. O. secretary.

The action traced the history of the A. F. L. since it was founded in 1881 and claimed that the 28,000 locals of its 100 member unions were bound by its internal laws. One of these locals, Aluminum Workers Local No. 18356, went over to the C. I. O. and took the money with it.

Right Questioned

The A. F. L. asked the court to order the money paid into its treasury to be held in trust until the local decided to return to the A. F. L. and obey its rules. Pressing the suit yesterday were Attorneys Charleston Ogburn and Arthur Reyman.

Pressman contended that the A. F. L. and its officials had no right to the money and that in no case could a decree be entered without the aluminum workers being made parties to the action.

Thurman Arnold, Tugwell Required Reading for Navy

"The Folklore of Capitalism," much-discussed work of Thurman Arnold, recently placed in charge of the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice, was included yesterday in a list of 100 suggested readings for young officers of the Navy.

"Industry's Coming of Age," by Rexford Tugwell, former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, also was included.

Early this year Secretary Swanson decreed that ensigns must read six books inthe 18 months after they are graduated from the Naval Academy.

In yesterday's list were such as Link's "The Return to Religion," Walter Lippmann's "Preface to Morals," Chase's "Men and Machines," "Education of a Diplomat," by Hugh Wilson, now Ambassador to Germany; Darwin's "On the Origin of Species," Dr. Douglas S. Freeman's "Robert E. Lee," and Lawrence's "Revolt in the Desert."

Pedestrians Held Subject To Traffic Act

Amendment Cited Seal Gives Opinion Regulations Needed

By Howard F. Isenworth.

The District Commissioners, under an act of Congress adopted July 3, 1926, have ample authority to enforce traffic regulations against pedestrians, it was revealed yesterday.

Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, in a verbal opinion, defined a little-known amendment to the District traffic act as providing authorities with the necessary power to institute pedestrian control in Washington.

Recent controversy over the issue—prompted by the city's rising pedestrian death toll—appeared a step nearer settlement with discovery of the obscure amendment.

"Pedestrians and Animals"

Under existing laws, the Commissioners have full power to "regulate and control" all traffic. The amendment classifies pedestrians as traffic. It reads.

"Traffic shall be deemed to include not only motor vehicles, but all vehicles, pedestrians and animals of every description."

(The "animals" were mentioned to cover horse-drawn vehicles, it was explained at the Traffic Department.)

Seal said numerous changes would be necessary before action could be taken. Specific police regulations pertaining to pedestrians and their violations would have to be adopted, he said.

When the amendment was first adopted, according to Acting Director of Traffic M. O. Eldridge, several pedestrians were arrested and taken into court. The then Judge Gus A.

Pupils Playing Truant Found Working on WPA

Hazleton, Pa., Oct. 24 (A.P.).—Truant Officer William Teuthold reported to school officials today that checking on the absence of a score of boys from the high school led to the discovery they were working on WPA jobs.

The officer ordered the boys back to school and threatened to arrest their parents under the compulsory attendance laws. Another group of boys unsuccessfully applied to school officials for leaves of absence for two weeks to take WPA jobs.

Lehman Hits Tactics of Rival Dewey

Denies Budget Charge Campaign Warms Up Republican Answers O'Connells Attacked

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Oct. 24.—A scathing personal attack on Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent, was opened by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman today, while Dewey, on his part, presented for the voters a figurative picture of a twice-convicted racketeer sitting on the bed in a hotel room with the Governor and helping to persuade the State's chief executive to run for re-election.

The Gubernatorial contest today suddenly developed heat unknown heretofore since Gov. Lehman and the young racket-busting district attorney were nominated.

The governor abandoned his usually measured delivery, maintained in his policy of standing on his record, and unleashed a personal attack on Dewey, whom he termed "neither familiar with nor in sympathy with" humanitarian legislation.

Charges Desertion

He charged the Republican nominee with campaign tactics of "vilification, disrespect and false innuendo," and with "running away from the office of district attorney at New York.

Lehman declared he was ready to answer Dewey's questions on why he was willing to be drafted into renomination when it was known he preferred to run for the Senate.

He implied that he was unwilling to leave in Dewey's care the "social and humanitarian objectives to which I have devoted much of my life."

"We have in New York today the greatest social and labor code of any State in the Union. I am unwilling to see that program, in which I believe with all my heart and soul, jeopardized or possibly destroyed. To me it is clearly worth while to make further sacrifices in order to safeguard that program. That is the reason why I felt it to be a duty once more to lay aside my personal interests and to make available to the people . . . my training, my experience and my leadership."

Denies "Budget Juggling"

Taking up Dewey's recent accusations that the Sate budget was balanced by "bookkeeping," Lehman said that "Mr. Dewey does not know, but his political advisers should have told him that:"

No item in the executive budget can become effective without approval of both legislative houses; the Assembly was Republican-controlled during five of the last six years; the people must approve at a general election every bond is-

Roosevelt, Back In Capital, Plunges Into Budget Talks

President Roosevelt returned to the Capital from Hyde Park, N. Y., last night to plunge today into conferences on the next fiscal year's budget, a schedule of expenditures that, it was estimated in some quarters ,might call for outlays of between $7,500,000,000 and $8,000,000,000.

The President has held some preliminary discussions on the subject, but has called on Budget Director Daniel W. Bell to meet him today, bringing "a blue pencil."

Increased defense expenditures and lowered ones for relief and some of the regular costs of Government have been indicated in remarks by Mr. Roosevelt.

British Cabinet Considers Roosevelt Stand on Palestine

By Joseph Driscoll.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Oct. 24.—Prime Minister Chamberlain met leading members of his cabinet today to decide what to do about Palestine in the light of President Roosevelt's insistence that Britain continue to maintain a Jewish national home there without any curtailment of immigration.

Government circles were stunned by the bluntness of President Roosevelt's attitude as expressed through his friend, Senator Robert F. Wagner. The section of the press supporting the givernment printed the ironical suggestion that the United States, to be consistent, should now apply to the League of Nations to take over the Palestine mandate.

American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy called upon Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald during the day and emphasized the keen interest taken in the affairs of Palestine by millions of Americans, from the President on down. This interest is reflected also in the many American messages of protest which still pour into Downing street.

The cabinet last week decided to reverse its policy to the extent of dropping the Peel commission plan for the partition of Palestine into a Jewish national staate, an Arab state and a British corridor, including the Holy cities. Next Wednesday the cabinet is to make a further decision as to whether to restrict or suspend Jewish immigration to pacify revolting Arabs.

It is too early to say whether the aroused public opinion in the nited States will cause the British to draw back from their tentative plans to limit Jewish immigration, so that the Arabs may retain their two-to-

Panic Rules Capital Buildings Blown Up Americans Man Guns British Protest Vain

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Tuesday), Oct. 25.—Mechanized Japanese forces are driving through the last defenses of China's provisional national capital in Hankow, Japanese military dispatches reported today.

Hankow messages received at 7:30 a. m. said China's wartime dictator, Generalissimo Chiang, and his American-educated wife had left the capital by airplane for an unannounced destination. It was believed they were flying either to Chungking or Yunnan.

The sound of cannonading in the tri-city area was increasing, foreign radiograms reported, and near-panic prevailed as Chinese "destruction units" began dynamiting strategic buildings.

Americans Man Guns

Sailors on British and American warships were manning their guns to repel possible attacks by disorganized Chinese soldiery or by Japanese bombing planes. Japanese columns were expected in the capital before nightfall.

The Japanese were confident that major Chinese organized resistance has broken down and that they need only to deliver final knockout blows to win a clear-cut victory in their 15-month-old war.

It was persistently reported in Shanghai, Hongkong and elsewhere that Generalissimo Chiang either has or is about to resign and that the Chinese nationalist government will be reorganized under men with whom the Japanese will be content to make peace.

Britain Protests

Meanwhile, Britain delivered vigorous protests to the Japanese against yesterday's bombing of the British gunboat Sandpiper, near Changsha, south of Hankow, while Japanese planes were attacking junks on which Chinese soldiers were retreating from the Hankow front.

The Japanese showed no disposition to make hasty apologies and offer indemnities such as they paid when they sank the United States gunboat Panay last December. British naval authorities asserted the Sandpiper was attacked deliberately but the Japanese denied this and were "investigating."

The U. S. Dollar Line steamer President Coolidge sailed today for the United States after the Japanese had forced unloading of a shipment of silver valued at $4,500,000 consigned to New York through the National City Bank of New York's Shanghai branch by the Chinese nationalists.

The case has been referred to Washington but there is every indication the Japanese-controlled Central China government in Nanking will enforce its regulations aganist silver exports and claim the big shipment as "the property of the Chinese people."

Canton in Chaos

The situation in the great South China metropolis of Canton, captured by the Japanese last week, remained chaotic today. Chinese arsonists still wandered through the city starting fires to fulfill the Chinese "scorched earth" policy which calls for destruction of everything in the path of the invaders.

Great areas of the city already had been burned and buildings in the foreign area on Shameen Island, including the United States consulate, were damaged. Americans and other foreigners were aiding the Japanese in fighting the flames, but it was anticipated destruction would continue until the 2,000 Japanese soldiers now in the Canton area re-

Reich's Relief Fund Financed Plots, Spy Says

Rumrich Still on Stand Revenge Motive Seen Tokyo Influence Hinted

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 24.—Testimony that Nazi Germany allegedly financed spy plots in the United States with money from German winter relief funds created a stir late today in the Federal court trial of pretty, red-haired Johanna (Jenni) Hoffmann, 26, and two men co-defendants on espionage charges.

The witness, Guenther Gustav Rumrich, 32, United States army deserter and confessed spy, said the information came to him from Karl Schlueter, the spy ring's alleged "contact man."

Rumrich said he never doubted he was in touch with authorized German agents during his slipshod career as a "mail order" spy for the Third Reich, but that he sometimes doubted Schlueter "because he told me things which were rather unusual for a German to mention."

He cited the alleged "borrowing" of winter relief funds as one of the things "a German would not mention."

Dipping ever deeper into his apparently inexhaustible supply of spy-plot tales, Rumrich described a fantastic "20-years-after" scheme to avenge Germany against the United States for Allied bombings during the World War.

In his sixth day as a key witness for the Government, Rumrich testified Erich Glaser, 28, former United

Morgenthau Hints Concern At Pound's Fall

British Sterling Weak Situation 'Not Serious' Money Pact Working

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday intimated Administration concern at declines in the British pound sterling, but said the exchange situation caused by the drop is not serious.

"At this particular time, it would be impolitic for me to make any official statement," said the Treasury secretary.

But he praised newspaper stories of last Saturday which indicated Administration apprehension lest cheapening of the pound affect America's export trade.

"Would you say," he was asked, "that there is some disappointment among Treasury officials over the failure of the pound to recover more than it has?"

"Not Denying" Concern

"Well," replied Morgenthau, "I just refer you to Saturday morning's press. I can't add anything more to what I read in the American press."

A reporter reminded him that Saturday news stories said Treasury officials were "concerned and apprehensive."

"I am not denying them, am I?" Morgenthau retorted. "I am praising you."

Under the tripartite monetary agreement, the United States, Great Britain and France agreed to keep their currencies as stable as possible. The pound rose rapidly after a low of $4.60 on the eve of the Munich conference, but has failed to maintain the sharp recovery. Morgenthau told reporters, however, that the three-power agreement is "still functioning satisfactorily."

Doubts Devaluation

He said he never regarded seriously rumors that the pound might be devalued.

He was asked if he "read what the International Chamber of Commerce said about readjustment of the tripartite agreement and return to gold."

"Well," he said, "I don't let the International Chamber of Commerce or the United States Chamber of Commerce write our policy."

The Secretary denied monetary problems were involved in delays in final negotiation of an Anglo-American reciprocal trade pact, pointing out that the agreement will contain the same clause as trade agreements with other countries permitting revocation of tariff concessions in case of undue currency depreciation.

Pressed for information on Administration budgetary and tax plans, the Secretary told reporters to "come around and see me next January."

"We are going along," he said. "We are working as the budget unfolds to us in our conferences with the President. We are also talking about taxes."

Business Better, He says

"You are working on the assumption that business is getting better right along?" he was asked.

"It is getting better; there is no question about that," he replied.

He denied knowledge of proposals for a 10 per cent increase in taxes to finance an armament program, and referred all budgetary and tax questions to the White House.

Morgenthau said Works Progress Administrator Hopkins' forecasts to the President of decreased relief expenditures "might" brighten the budgetary picture.

"That is all White House business," he said. "I can't talk about it."

He told reporters the offer for public sale of $299,000,000 worth of ⅞ per cent three-year Reconstruction Finance Corporation notes was "well received" and that the offering will be closed tonight.

Meantime Preston Delano, of California, distant cousin of the President, took office as Comptroller of the Currency. Morgenthau handed Delano his commission to succeed J. F. T. O'Conor, who resigned early this year to campaign unsuccessfully for the Democratic nomination for Governor of California.

Bureau in Trade Unit To Check on Advertising

The Federal Trade Commission created yesterday a radio and periodical division to examine advertising in those media and determine whether it complies with commission standards.

The new division will be headed by P. B. Morehouse, 45, a trial attorney with the commission for nine years.

Duties similar to those of the new division have been assigned since 1929 to a special board of investigation, now abolished.

Dewey Runs Neck and Neck With Lehman; Survey Shows He's Strong in New York City

Budget Helps Gov. Farmers for G. O. P. Wagner Also Leads

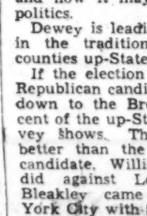
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Copyright, 1938, by American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part is expressly forbidden except with the written consent of the copyright owners.

New York, Oct. 23.—Thomas E. Dewey is running neck-and-neck with Gov. Herbert H. Lehman in the race for the Governorship of New York State and what may be the control of the Empire State in the 1940 Presidential election.



GALLUP.

That fact is indicated in a preliminary State-wide survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion, as the spotlight of national interest turns on the battle of the 36-year-old Republican prosecutor and the veteran Democratic Governor. The Institute will continue its tests up until the eve of the election.

Although the voting is still more than two weeks away, today's Institute survey reveals the highly significant fact that at this time District Attorney Dewey has an even chance to occupy the chair that Al Smith, President Roosevelt and Gov. Lehman have occupied.

With two weeks to go, the vote is:

For Thomas E. Dewey.....50%
For Herbert H. Lehman....50%

In interpreting these figures it should be remembered that no election survey can measure such intangibles as the influence of political machines in getting out the vote, the irregularities of weather and the effectiveness of last-minute appeals. These things, in addition to the normal expectancy of error in any sampling survey, mean that the outcome of the Dewey-Lehman election must at this time be considered very much in doubt.

The normal expectancy of error in a State survey of this type may be as much as 4 per cent.

Within these limits, however, the Institute's survey gives a graphic picture of just what is happening in the Empire State and how it may affect national politics.

Dewey is leading Gov. Lehman in the traditionally Republican counties up-State.

If the election were today, the Republican candidate would come down to the Bronx with 58 per cent of the up-State vote, the survey shows. This is a fraction better than the last Republican candidate, William F. Bleakley, did against Lehman in 1936. Bleakley came down to New York City with 57 per cent of the up-State vote.

New York City Will Be Deciding Factor

The nub of the November election will be New York City again. Here is where Lehman's big majorities have been rolled up in the last three State elections.

But whereas Gov. Lehman polled 67 per cent of the New York City vote against Bleakley in 1936, and 74 per cent against Robert L. Moses in 1934, the Governor is leading Dewey by 57 per cent in the Institute survey today.

If this tendency continues, Dewey will make the best run in New York City of any G. O. P. candidate for State office in recent history.

The vote for up-State and New York City is as follows:

	Dewey	Lehman
Up-State New York...	58%	42%
New York City.....	43	57

Voters Crossing Party Lines; Switches Benefit Dewey

As in all elections, voters are crossing party lines, and in this case Dewey is getting the best of the switch. Registered Democrats throughout the State are 71 per cent for Gov. Lehman in the Institute survey, 29 per cent for Dewey.

Registered Republicans are 84 per cent for Dewey, 16 per cent for Lehman.

It is interesting to note that one of the reasons advanced by Republicans who are voting for Gov. Lehman is that "he balanced the State budget."

Typical comments of Dewey voters range from the statement that "the State needs a change in administration" to the assertion that "Dewey is young and progressive and has broken up the rackets in New York City."

Although the American Labor Party has given its official endorsement to Gov. Lehman, the rank and file of the Labor Party are sharply divided in the Institute survey.

Fifty-five per cent of those interviewed said they will vote for Lehman; 45 per cent favored Dewey.

Highlights of Survey

Thomas E. Dewey, the 36-year-old Republican district attorney of New York, is running neck-and-neck with Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for the governorship of New York, biggest single election prize in the country this year (Dewey, 50 per cent; Lehman, 50 per cent).

LEHMAN

DEWEY

Dewey leads in the traditionally Republican counties up-State (Dewey, 58 per cent; Lehman, 42 per cent). This is slightly more than the last Republican candidate, William F. Bleakley, polled in 1936.

Lehman is ahead in New York City, but Dewey is making the best run there of any Republican candidate for State office in recent history. Lehman polled 67 per cent of the New York City vote against Bleakley two years ago. Today, against Dewey, Lehman is receiving 57 per cent.

Voters in both parties are crossing party lines to some extent, with Dewey getting the best of the switch. Registered Democrats throughout the State are 71 per cent for Lehman, 29 per cent for Dewey. Registered Republicans are 84 per cent for Dewey, 16 per cent for Lehman.

An appreciable number of Republicans who are getting ready to vote for a Democrat, Lehman, say they favor him "because he balanced the State budget."

Those who favor Dewey say that "the State needs a change" or stress Dewey's record as a racket-buster in New York City.

Although the American Labor Party has indorsed Gov. Lehman officially, the rank and file of the Labor party are by no means unanimous for him. In the Institute survey 55 per cent of the labor party voters reached favor Lehman, 45 per cent favor Dewey.

Dewey's greatest strength is with farmers and persons living in the smaller towns and cities of the State. The vote of farmers is Dewey, 73 per cent; Lehman, 27 per cent.

Dewey is also strongest with persons in the middle and upper income groups, while Lehman is strongest with persons below the middle income level and with persons on relief.

Young voters (under the age of 30) favor Dewey by a small majority (Dewey, 51 per cent; Lehman, 49 per cent). This is particularly significant in view of the fact that young voters throughout the country have supported President Roosevelt and the Democratic Party to a greater extent than their elders.

Men voters lean toward Lehman (Lehman, 51 per cent; Dewey, 49 per cent, while women voters favor Dewey by a small margin (Dewey, 51 per cent; Lehman, 49 per cent).

Lehman was undoubtedly the strongest candidate the Democrats had available. Institute tests show that Dewey's vote would have been appreciably greater if the Democrats had nominated Congressman Mead, Attorney General Bennett or even Senator Wagner to run against Dewey.

The Institute will continue its surveys in New York up to the eve of the election. Further reports will be published exclusively in the Washington Post.

Dewey Pulls Young Voters, Survey Shows

Young voters throughout the State are leaning toward Dewey by a small majority, the survey shows:

	Dewey	Lehman
Persons Under 30	51%	49%
Persons 30-49	50	50
Persons 50 and Over..	50	50

This is particularly significant in view of the fact that young voters throughout the country have been heavily Democratic in sentiment.

Dewey gets the larger share of the women's vote, while Lehman gets the larger share of the men's vote:

	Dewey	Lehman
Women voters	51%	49%
Men Voters	49	51

Election Dividing Along Income Class Lines

The survey gives another indication of the way recent elections in the United States have divided along income class lines.

	Dewey	Lehman
Upper income group..	57%	43%
Middle income group..	54	46
Lower income group..	43	57

Persons on relief are included in the lower income group. Taken separately, they are 65 per cent for Gov. Lehman, 35 per cent for Dewey.

Lehman runs ahead of Dewey in New York City and runs neck-and-neck with him in the total vote of the larger cities of the State. Dewey, on the other hand, has a sizable lead in the small towns and smaller cities, and an overwhelming lead among farm voters:

	Dewey	Lehman
Farm voters	73%	27%
Small towns	58	42
Medium-sized cities...	61	39
Larger cities	50	50
New York City	43	57

Colored voters, always a factor in New York City, are divided 53 per cent for Gov. Lehman, 47 per cent for Dewey.

Wagner Running Ahead; Second Senate Seat in Doubt

While the principal national interest in the New York race centers on the Governorship, the November elections will also decide the fate of Senator Robert Wagner, author of the Wagner labor act, and will fill the Senate seat left vacant by the death of Democratic Senator Royal S. Copeland.

The Institute's preliminary check-up of the Senatorial race shows that Senator Wagner is running ahead of his Republican opponent, John Lord O'Brian, at the present time, and that New Dealer James M. Mead is running even with Republican Edward Corsi for the second Senatorial seat.

But little significance should be attached to these standings because of the high number of "no opinion" votes at the present time.

Can Dewey Win? Race for Big Stakes

Many political writers believe that victory for Dewey would be more than a personal triumph for the man who broke into the news three years ago as a special rackets investigator — appointed by the man he now seeks to defeat for the Governorship.

It would exalt the prestige of the younger and more liberal wing of the Republican Party, who have been claiming that they can do what traditional "Old Guard" Republicans have failed to do since 1920, that is, elect a Governor in New York State and possibly start the G. O. P. on the road to national supremacy again.

Victory would put Dewey himself in a peculiarly advantageous spot for the G. O. P. Presidential nomination in 1940.

Although the New York race is closer than most political observers would have expected, the Institute's routine sampling in New York State before the party conventions last month indicate that the Democrats were well-advised in urging Gov. Lehman to make the race.

These samplings indicate that Dewey would have been a favorite to defeat Congressman Mead or Attorney General Bennett by sizable majorities and Senator Wagner by a smaller margin, had the Democrats prevailed upon the veteran Senator to run for Governor.

New Deal To Ask Cotton Insurance

Congress May Get Bill Market Seems Better Corn Aid Also Weighed

By the Associated Press.

The Administration intends to recommend that Congress broaden its farm program, officials disclosed yesterday, by making crop insurance available to the Nation's 2,500,000 cotton growers.

Agriculture Department experts are working at top speed to prepare premium rates and other data. They said it would be possible to offer growers insurance on the 1940 crop if Congress agrees.

Meanwhile, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics took note of some improvement in the American cotton situation.

It found encouragement in a three-fourths-cent-a-pound price rise during the five weeks ended October 21, in a more favorable European political situation, and improvement in domestic business conditions. It also noted a heavy movement of American cotton into Government loan stocks.

World Supply Boosted

The bureau said upward revision in both the carryover and estimated production have increased the indicated total world supply of American cotton about 600,000 bales during the past month.

For the four weeks ended October 20, the bureau found there was an increase of approximately 1,400,000 bales in the recorded Government loan stock.

Officials said there was a possibility the Adminsiration also might recommend insurance for corn growers.

The cotton insurance program would provide a means, officials estimated, for removal of probably 1,000,000 bales of surplus, Government-owned, cotton from market channels to be held by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation as a reserve.

Meanwhile, with operation of the existing farm program upset by other crop surpluses and low prices, Administration leaders are launching an intensive campaign to line farmers up against Congressional proposals to substitute price-fixing and unrestricted production.

In working out their strategy, Secretary Wallace and other supporters of the present program are asking more than 10,000 local AAA committeemen and county farm agents to conduct community meetings and rally support behind existing crop control laws.

Asserting the present legislation "is the best we have ever had," Wallace contended the law should not be blamed for price-depressing surpluses accumulated before its enactment early this year.

Agriculture Department officials said they were counting heavily on the secretary's advocacy of processing taxes for raising greater funds for farm subsidies to unite farmers behind the New Deal program.

The department is sending a large volume of printed material into farming regions telling farmers how such taxes would help them.

U. S. to Purchase Surplus Oranges To Give to Needy

By the United Press.

Government and citrus industry representatives agreed last night on a program for Federal purchases of 3,000,000 boxes of surplus, high-grade oranges to be given the needy, with growers diverting an equal quantity of inferior quality from regular sales channels.

Under the pact reached last night, the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation will purchase the 3,000,000 boxes of oranges, mostly grade 2, at prevailing market prices in the various areas. The packers or growers will submit their offers on a weekly basis, together with proof that they are diverting an equal quantity of poorer grades.

The conferees recessed until today without reaching a decision on disposal of the grapefruit surplus.

Supreme Court Rejects Chain Store Appeal

Adjourns Until Nov. 7 Settle 29 Minor Cases Tax Penalties Upheld

By the Associated Press.

The Supreme Court adjourned yesterday until November 7 after announcing orders in 29 minor cases. The first opinions of this term will be delivered at the next meeting.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. failed yesterday to obtain a review of a Louisiana decision holding the chain store firm liable for tax penalties totaling $98,936.

The court denied an appeal "for the reason that the judgment sought herein to be reviewed is based upon a non-Federal ground adequate to support it."

The company appealed from the Louisiana Supreme Court, which upheld the State's levy, imposed because the A. & P. did not pay its chain store tax during a test as to its constitutionality.

Validity of the Louisiana chain store tax was upheld by the Supreme Court. Subsequently the company paid back taxes totaling $182,600, but resisted payment of penalties imposed for failure to pay the tax when due.

The company contended that since the State tax law made no provision for recovery of taxes paid under protest, it had only the choice of abandoning the constitutional test or risking the penalties.

The Supreme Court also refused to interfere with a decision that the late Joseph B. Strauss, builder of San Francisco's golden gate bridge, was an independent contractor and was liable for Federal income taxes.

Annette Strauss, administratix of her husband's estate, appealed from the ninth circuit court of appeals on the ground her husband, as engineer of the bridge project, was an officer of a State instrumentality and that his compensation was exempt from Federal taxation.

Co-operatives Held At Record Peak

Samuel D. Sanders, co-operative bank commissioner in the Farm Credit Administration, said yesterday the Farm Co-operative system "appears to be in a stronger position than at any time in its 70 years of history."

Sanders spoke at a conference of officials of the 12 District banks for co-operatives, gathered to discuss a "sound credit" policy.

He reported co-operative marketing had regained most of its depression losses and that there are today 15,573 farm co-operatives and mutual companies with a gross annual business of $2,750,000,000.

Farnsworth Counsel Calls Judge, Jailer

Seeks Secret Evidence Coercion Is Claimed Pine Also Summoned

Former Lieut. Comdr. John S. Farnsworth is summoning high judicial officers to give secret testimony in the habeas corpus action by which he hopes to get out of Atlanta Penitentiary without finishing his 4 to 12 year term for plotting to sell American war plans to the Japanese navy.

From Justice Proctor, District Attorney Pine, Capt. Thomas M. Rives, District jail superintendent, and Col. Charles E. Stewart, clerk of court, Farnsworth's counsel, George S. Hawke, of Cincinnati, hopes to draw that he was coerced into pleading nolo contendere (no defense). They are due to appear Thursday before Notary Public Lloyd Harkins, who is presiding over the taking of depositions in the habeas corpus action.

It was Hawke who held up the testimony last week until he could get Justice Luhring to order it taken behind locked doors. Farnsworth's former counsel then told secretly of the days when the dismissed Navy officer was waiting trial.

Justice Proctor will be asked, Hawke said, who intervened in Farnsworth's behalf, if anyone did.

District Attorney Pine, Hawke said, was served with a subpena which ordered him to produce the archives of his office on the Farnsworth case, including certain articles Farnsworth was supposed to have written.

The jailer, Hawke said, will be asked who visited Farnsworth while he was awaiting trial and what sort of conferences the prisoner had.

It was Justice Proctor who was waiting on the bench to preside over Farnsworth's trial when the prisoner suddenly announced that he would plead nolo contendre. Later the justice forbade withdrawal of the plea and sentenced Farnsworth to Atlanta.

Also summoned was Ben Pearce, a Washington Star reporter. Hawke planned to summon all newspapermen besides Pearce who observed the spy trial proceedings and was seeking the names of more last night.

Two Women Join Symphony for Eighth Season

Changes in personnel of the National Symphony Orchestra, revealed for the first time yesterday as the orchestra assembled for rehearsal at Constitution Hall, included the addition of two new women players to the ensemble as well as the debut of a new concertmaster and several first desk men.

Under the direction of Dr. Kindler, the orchestra will open its eighth season Sunday at 4 p. m. with Moriz Rosenthal, world-famous pianist, as soloist.

The new women members of the orchestra are Miss Kay Rickert, violinist, and Miss Louise Ehrman, cellist. Millard Taylor, for seven years a member of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, took over the post of concertmaster. New first desk men include Albert N. Tipton, flute, who joined the orchestra for the Sunset Symphonies this summer; Leonard Nanzetta, oboe; Osbourne McConathy, French horn, and Philip Silverman, tuba.

Appeal Granted In Damage Suit

Mrs. Anna L. Tobin, 64, of 3422 Eighteenth street northeast won in the Court of Appeals yesterday the right to a trial of her suit for $15,000 against the Pennsylvania Railroad for injuries she suffered in a fall in the Philadelphia Railroad station in 1936. She was making the second railroad trip of her life.

Mrs. Tobin slipped in a space between a passenger car and a platform. The District court instructed for a verdict against her. The Court of Appeals, in an opinion by Justice Miller, sent the case back to be tried.

'Brother Charley' Bryan's Hat in Ring Again
Pa. Democrats to Picket Headquarters Here

Lincoln, Nebr., Oct. 24 (AP).—The politically magic name of Bryan, made famous by the "Great Commoner," William Jennings Bryan, is again in the Nebraska campaign spotlight.

BRYAN

Seventy-one year - old "Brother Charley" Bryan—C. W. as he calls himself—thrice governor, is in the current gubernatorial race as an independent petition candidate.

Pitted against him are R. L. Cochran, 52, Democratic incumbent nominated to a precedent-setting third consecutive term, (Bryan's tenure was not consecutive) and Charles J. Warner, 63, the Republican's "farmer candidate for a farm State" and speaker of Nebraska's first one-House Legislature last year.

Of the three, Bryan is avowedly the most seasoned campaigner. He is now in his sixth campaign for governor, not to mention his 1924 attempt for the National vice presidency nor his unsuccessful effort to win the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate against Senator Edward R. Burke in 1934.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 24 (AP).—Vice President John Garner will be unable to come to New Hampshire to participate in the Democratic campaign, the Democratic State Committee today announced.

Representative Sam Rayburn, Majority leader of the House of Representatives, will speak at Manchester on the night of November 6, the committee said.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 24.—Walter L. Williams, president of the National Union for Collective Bargaining of Democratic Party Workers, said tonight the organization would picket the offices of the Democratic National Committee in Washington "one day this week" to register opposition to Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania and John B. Kelly, chairman of the Philadelphia Democratic city committee.

After the picketing, Williams said, "we will return to Pennsylvania and present to the people" the union's opposition to the Governor and Kelly.

Williams said eight members of the union met here last night to plan the picketing and the program.

"This fight to purge the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania of bosses," William said, ". . . will be carried to the end by an organized group of Pennsylvania Democratic Party workers, each of whom has filed with this union certifications from more than 50 registered Democratic voters that he or she has performed yeoman service in the Democratic cause."

Bristol, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Talk in Washington of a loosely formed Senate bloc's plans to oppose some appointments made by President Roosevelt during adjournment of Congress was questioned here last night by Senator John Miller (Democrat), of Arkansas.

"I do not think any organized group has been formed," he said, "or that there has been any concerted discussion about the organization of a bloc of Senators indiscriminately to oppose the confirmation of any appointee by President Roosevelt."

Washington reports said Senators hostile to some New Deal policies predicted that a test of their bloc strength would come on the question of confirming the appointment of Judge Floyd H. Roberts, of Bristol, as judge of the United States Western Virginia District Court.

Clyde M. Reed, former Governor, who is the Republican nominee against Senator George McGill, of Kansas, yesterday told the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, through the Reed-for-Senator committee, that contributions to his campaign fund had totaled $2,827.14, with expenditures of $2,392.90.

Herman L. Ekern, Progressive nominee for the Senate in Wisconsin, in a second statement, reported no contributions and expenditures of $2,739.02. Previously he had reported contributions of $15 and expendtiures of $1,156.82.

The Republican national speakers bureau yesterday announced these engagements for party campaign speakers:

October 26—Senator H. Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, at New York City; October 28—Former Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde at Blackwell, Okla.; October 28—Harold T. Lincoln, of Springfield, Mo., at Freeport, Ill.; November 2—Representative John M. Robsion, of Kentucky, at Pennington Gap, Va.; November 3—Former Senator Daniel O. Wallace Asks Business Aid 2-Price Relief

Clls Upon Railroads Suggests Cheap Freight Cites Citrus Surplus

Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace last night called on railroads, handlers and retailers to reduce charges on surplus crops for the low-income portion of the nation's population.

In a radio talk over the National Broadcasting Company system, he appealed to city dwellers to support his proposed two-price system to dispose of part of the surpluses and at the same time enable the needy to buy "enough of the right kind of food to eat."

Warning against a "permanent cleavage between farm and city" he said that to achieve the slogan "Better Eating, Better Health, and Better Living" is "the major task for this generation of Americans."

New Uses Too Tardy

Deprecating export subsidies and price-fixing without production control, the secretary said that expansion of the home market by finding new uses for farm products offers only slow relief. He saw great hope, however, in the "human part" of the home market, citing figures to show the lower income half of city families are "doing without the cotton and woolen goods they need" and are "scrimping along on food budgets that are pitifully small."

"Just as soil erosion, if unchecked," he said, "would threaten the source of our national food supply, so human erosion resulting from lack of nutritious food threatens the future of our race."

Using grapefruit as an example, he said this year's crop would amount to 4,000,000 boxes or more, with a maximum commercial use of only 29,000,000 boxes. The surplus, of grade three fruit or culls, will go to waste if the market price is too low to pay freight and handling charges, but even if the growers give the fruit away, he said, ordinary freight and handling charges would require a charge of about 5 cents each to the consumer, too high for the low-income group.

Administration Complex

Calling for co-operation "by all interested groups to get those extra grapefruit consumed," Wallace asked:

"If the farmers are willing to sell them at a sacrifice—say one-third of a cent for each grapefruit—will the other agencies along the way do their part? Will the railroads ship them at less than the usual rate? Will the handlers and retailers do their part by reducing their usual charges? If there extra grapefruit could be offered to low-income groups at 2 cents apiece or less, instead of 5 . . . I believe that millions of families would begin eating grapefruit for the first time."

Admitting the administrative questions "are numerous and complex" he said that to solve them would require the best thought and effort of farmers, land grant colleges, processors, distributors, department officials "and the responsible leaders of every community."

WPA Denies Pennsylvania Vote Coercion

Davis Accusations Hit Senate Group Informed Detailed Reply Given

Aubrey Williams, acting Works Progress Administration, yesterday filed with the Senate campaign investigating committee a detailed denial of WPA involvement in charges by Senator Davis (Republican), seeking re-election, that WPA workers and truck contractors were being subjected to political coercion in behalf of the Democratic ticket in Pennsylvania.

Williams said there was "not a scintilla of truth" in any of Davis' charges.

He described some of the charges, such as the "theft of a street railway by a WPA foreman" as "utterly ridiculous."

"Careful Investigation"

"We have made a careful investigation of every charge reported by the press as having been submitted by Senator Davis," Williams said.

"We found numerous charges involving persons in no way connected with the WPA and over whom we have no control, but we did not find a single charge against any WPA employe that could be substantiated. Sworn testimony and documented evidence establishes beyond question that no employe of the WPA referred to in these charge has been involved in any political coercion."

Other Charges Denied

Among the charges denied by the WPA were:

That owners of trucks used on WPA projects were solicited for $100 each by WPA headquarters.

That dismissal was threatened Republican WPA workers unless they changed their registration to Democratic.

That WPA headquarters in Wilkes-Barre supplied a Democratic Party leader with persons employed on relief projects.

That schoolboys report to work on fictitious WPA projects and then return to their classes for the remainder of the day.

That Democratic registration was necessary to obtain WPA employment in Carbon County.

Securities Agency Won't Keep Utility Hearing Secret

The commission is trying to find out whether Utilities Employes Securities Co., which sells Associated securities to Associated employes, is a subsidiary of Associated. If it is, it must submit to regulation.

Group Health Head Pledges Fight to Finish

Resolved to Cut Costs Heard in Trust Suit Describes Intimidation

Determination to carry on the fight of Group Health Association to establish the right of its members to adequate medical care at a price they can afford was expressed yesterday by William C. Kirkpatrick, G. H. A. president, after he told the extraordinary District grand jury of the American Medical Association's campaign to destroy his organization.

Kirkpatrick, a tax executive of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, became G. H. A. president January 17, at the height of the battle between A. M. A., the District Medical Society and his own organization.

Tells of Warnings

He told the grand jury, which the Government has asked to indict the physicians' groups as conspiracies to obstruct justice and restrain trade, of a barrage of warnings, statements and lawsuits directed at G. H. A. by its adversaries. Physicians retained by G. H. A. were barred from hospitals and warned they would be expelled from the professional societies. One of them, Dr. Mario Scandiffio, was expelled by the District society and yesterday learned that his appeal of the action would be heard by the A. M. A. judicial council.

Kirkpatrick was the seventh witness to appear before the extraordinary grand jury called after G. H. A. filed charges of violation of the Sherman anti-trust act by the A. M. A. and the District society. They were functioning, G. H. A. said, as a combination in restraint of trade.

The grand jury investigation, now entering its second week, is being conducted under the strictest secrecy by the Department of Justice. The four special assistants to the Attorney General who are presenting the evidence caution their witnesses, whose names are not given out until they appear, not to reveal their testimony.

Testimony Secret

Kirkpatrick began his statement by explaining that "rules of the court forbid discussion of testimony given before the grand jury." He continued:

"I desire to reiterate what has been said many times before, that the purpose of Group Health Association is to provide for its members and their families adequate medical care at a cost they can afford.

"Believing as American citizens we have every right to pursue this forward-looking purpose, we are resolved to continue along the course on which we have embarked. Enlightened thought everywhere recognized the need and value of group practice of medicine. In accomplishing the task we have set for ourselves we ask only fair play and a free opportunity to justify the worthwhileness of our course."

Other G. H. A. officials are expected to testify today.

Funeral Set Today For J. F. Reynolds, Fireman 40 Years

Funeral services will be held today for James F. Reynolds, 79, retired District fireman, who in 1890 helped carry Secretary of the Navy Tracy to safety when his home was burned. Reynolds died Saturday of pneumonia that developed as the result of injuries suffered in a fall.

A veteran of 40 years' service in the Fire Department, Reynolds retired 13 years ago. Almost all of his service was with No. 5 Engine Company.

Services will be at 2 p. m. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Robert Shoemaker, 5105 Forty-fourth street northwest. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery with Masonic rites.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Rosa Walter Reynolds; four sons, Andrew K., Joseph L., and Raymond L. Reynolds, all of Washington; five daughters, Mrs. Raymond Hegarty, Mrs. John Harper, Mrs. Shoemaker, and Miss Catherine Reynolds, all of this city.

William A. Leetch Funeral Today

Funeral services for William Alexander Leetch, 79, former Washington manager for the Consolidation Coal Co., of New York, who died Saturday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, 3115 P street northwest. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery, and will be private.

A life-long resident of Washington, Mr. Leetch was a member of Potomac Lodge of Masons, the Rotary Club, the Board of Trade, the George Washington Law Association, and the Gebrgetown Citizens Association.

He leaves his wife, Virginia Dougal; two sons, William D., of Washington, and Dr. Henry W. Leetch, of Saranac Lake; two brothers, Frank P., Washington, and the Rev. Robert G. Leetch, Baltimore; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Easterday, Coronado, Calif.; Mrs. Charles G. Hepburn, St. Davids, Pa., and Mrs. Lawrence Mallery, Lanham, Md.

Employers Urged To Obey Labor Laws

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—State Labor Commissioner Thomas B. Morton said that in answer to many queries he received today seeking definitions and interpretations of the Federal wage-hour act he was advising all who were in doubt to comply with the law pending further definite interpretation.

He added that he had received no instructions from the wage-hour administration in Washington other than a request for co-operation on the part of Virginia labor officials.

Highways Building Grant Accepted

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—The State Highway Commission voted acceptance of a PWA grant of $316,000 for construction of a new highway department building here today.

The Federal grant will represent 45 per cent of the cost of the building. The remainder of the funds will be put up by the highway department.

Wage-Hour Troubles Swamp Administrator's Secretary

The wage-hour law brought shortened hours and higher wages to thousands yesterday but to Eugenia Pope, secretary to Administrator Elmer F. Andrews, it was just a headache. Her desk was piled with official definitions of the new law, which she hopes she will find time to read some day an hour. The law's minimum is 25 cents.

Lay-Offs, Exemption Pleas Greet Wage Law; 53,000 Out in South; Andrews Unworried

Wage

Other repercussions:

Spokesmen for the tobacco stemming industry, which employs labor on a piece-work, part-time basis, have applied for exemption.

NRA Foe Defiant Again

Fred C. Perkins, York, Pa., battery manufacturer, among the first to defy NRA, said in York that he could not afford to abide by the wage-hour law "and I defy them to enforce it."

The Western Union Telegraph Co. announced in New York that more than 10,000 messenger boys are receiving 25 cents an hour pending wage and hour division action on a request for exemption.

Officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union in San Antonio estimated from 2,500 to 3,000 piece workers were idle because local manufacturers discontinued work done in homes at wage levels below those of the new law, Associated Press dispatches said.

Bankers Ask Exemptions

From Rocky Mount, N. C., the Associated Press reported the State employment service estimated 1,400 workers in tobacco-processing factories were laid off in that vicinity because of the new standards, while 450 were laid off at Oxford.

Administrator Andrews told newsmen that a few lumber and small textile companies did not open for business yesterday but did not name them.

He revealed that the American Bankers Association is seeking exemption for bank employes on grounds they were local service institutions. He said most bankers meanwhile were complying with the law.

Wage and hour division lawyers again pointed out that unless exemptions are specifically stated in the law they can only offer opinions on liability of applicants.

The ultimate decision would still be up to the courts. Should the division feel an exemption was justified, it could withhold prosecution, but could not control action of workers, who are free to bring suits on their own account.

Andrews said he was "sorry" to hear some firms are closing and praised the "fine spirit" he said is being shown by the majority of employers.

"My information is that in some cases there would be seasonal shutdowns anyhow," he said. "Unfortunately I can't do anything about it. We can't exempt anyone in interstate commerce from paying 25 cents an hour. I just hope it's temporary and that after all they don't really mean it."

10 Governors Pledge Aid

Pledges of co-operation from Governors were in response to telegrams sent out by Andrews soliciting support in enforcement of the act and urging Governors to send representatives to a national conference on labor legislation here November 14 and 15.

First replies promising aid were from the Governors of Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, Iowa, Utah, Nevada, Louisiana, Rhode Island, Georgia and Oklahoma. Operating with a restricted staff because of short appropriations, the wage-hour division is relying heavily on State labor agencies for enforcement of the law. In the next few days, Andrews is expected to take up with the President broad policy questions arising and report on th law's launching.

Establishmnt by the American Federation of Labor of a network of educational and enforcement agencies followed promises of aid by both the federation and the Committee For Industrial Organization in holding down the number of "hasty worker suits during early operation of the law.

Green Stresses Patience

President Green sent out affidavit forms on which violations of the act can be reported in circular letters to the federation's wage-hour committees and to all A. F. of L. affiliated organizations. Green stressed need for patience and caution in the initial period.

"The new law should be given a fair chance in having its validity tested in the courts," Green said. "To this end labor must make doubly sure that only in cases in which the existence of a violation is established beyond a shadow of a doubt should unions resort to litigation.

The A. F. of L. chief said the law provides "a great opportunity for the stabilization of industry and the eradication of chiseling competition."

Postal Lays Off 1,000 Boys

New York, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—Postal Telegraph Co. announced tonight that it is starting immediately to lay off 1,000 messengers because Elmer F. Andrews, Federal wage-and-hour administrator, had not ruled on the company's petition to pay messengers less than 25 cents an hour.

The company said the lay-off was necessary "in order to protect the company's financial position." The announcement was made by C. B. Allsopp, a vice president of Postal.

Earlier, Western Union said that its more than 10,000 messengers will receive 25 cents an hour until Andrews rules on its request for exemption from the provisions of the act.

Redcap Tips May Be Ended

Philadelphia, Oct. 25 (AP).—Redcaps may expect but need depend on tips no longer.

Under the new Federal wage-hour law, they will receive a minimum of 25 cents an hour from employer railroads. They must report tips, and if these total less than the minimum the companies will make up the difference.

4 Found Guilty Of Liquor Charges

Four men accused of violating District liquor laws in connection with operation of the Printers' Literary Club, 1300 block of I street northwest, were convicted in Police Court yesterday.

Judge John P. McMahon found guilty all the defendants on the same counts, illegal sale and possession of whisky. The charges were lodged against the men last March following a raid.

The defendants, Herbert Donald, 31, 917 Varnum street northwest; J. W Donald, 40, 4445 Thirteenth street northeast; William E. Larman, 50, 1312 S street southeast, and John R. Greene, colored, 26, 909 T street northwest, will come up for sentence Saturday.

Police testified that they confiscated 214 bottles of beer and 4 quarts of whisky.

3 Rumanian Fliers Crash Seeking Lost Comrades

Bucharest, Oct. 24 (AP).—Three officers were drowned today when a seaplane of the Rumanian navy's Constanza squadron crashed in the Black Sea near Jurilofka. A fourth man swam ashore.

The plane, which had gone out to investigate the sinking of another, with two men aboard, fell almost in the same spot as the first plane.

A storm, which caused the first accident, raised havoc with Black Sea shipping and caused at least six deaths, has abated.

Election Law Change Asked By Brune

Cites Protection Need Concern of Voters Says Rich Favored

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 24.—Revision of the corrupt practices act to protect voters was sought today by Herbert M. Brune, jr., independent candidate for Governor whose suit against Attorney General O'Conor under the act was recently dismissed.

"Now that Judge O'Dunne's final decision has been rendered," said Brune, "the law must be amended to give our Democratic system the protection which it requires."

Brune alleged in his suit against the Democratic gubernatorial candidate that O'Conor's campaign expenditures exceeded the limit under the corrupt practices act. Judge O'Dunne sustained a demurrer filed by O'Conor's attorneys and dismissed the petition.

"This law concerns the political health of our State," Brune said in a statement. "Without it we are in the position where offices necessarily go to the highest bidder.

"What does this decision mean? It means that only a rich man or a man who had the backing of rich men can hope to be elected to office."

Patapsco River Span Plans Approved

By the Associated Press.

The War Department yesterday approved plans of the Maryland State Roads Commission for construction of a high level fixed bridge across the Patapsco River in Baltimore harbor.

The structure, together with the proposed bridges across the Susquehanna River at Havre de Grace, and across the Potomac River at Ludlow Ferry, is part of a plan to complete a National North-South highway.

The bridge would cross the Patapsco immediately below the confluence of the northwest branch and ferry bar channel with the main river.

Judges Stumped, So Rivals Choose Halloween Queen

Miss Nadine Petrey, 17-year-old Central High School student, last night was chosen Queen of Washington's Halloween celebration by nine of her competitors for the honor, after the board of judges deadlocked for the third time in efforts to agree on a selection.

The Kentucky-born entrant of the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association, veteran of an M-G-M screen test, will be first lady of the city when the traditional Halloween festivities get under way next Monday night. She lives at 1807 Irving street northwest.

Her first lady-in-waiting is Miss Audrey Porter, of 6100 Brookville road, Chevy Chase, Md., a typist for the Civil Service Commission. Miss Margaret Mary Parker, 21, of 1820 Ingleside terrace, representing Lansburgh & Brothers department store, was named second lady-in-waiting.

Driver Killed as Truck Goes Off Virginia Road

Burdell Scott, colored, 32, of South Arlington, was killed yesterday when the truck he was driving crashed into a bank on the Annandale-Accotink road near Springfield Station.

Scott, driving a county garbage-collection truck, was crushed in the cabin when a rear spring gave way and the car's body was ripped from the chassis.

"There's no difference between gasolines"

To all honest doubters: we ask only this—

Fill your tank with the new SKY CHIEF gasoline and do two things:

First, while the engine is idling, throttle it way down. You'll notice immediately—engine throb has quieted. Vibration is hard to detect. There's a new smoothness in your engine.

Now take it out on the open road. Run it up the steepest hill. There you'll discover its amazing anti-knock qualities. For the first time in your life you seem to be coasting uphill! The action of SKY CHIEF in your car is hard to describe. It is like the smooth even flow of flying.

After you have done these two things with this great new luxury gasoline, then see if you don't honestly think that there is a difference between gasolines—and plenty!

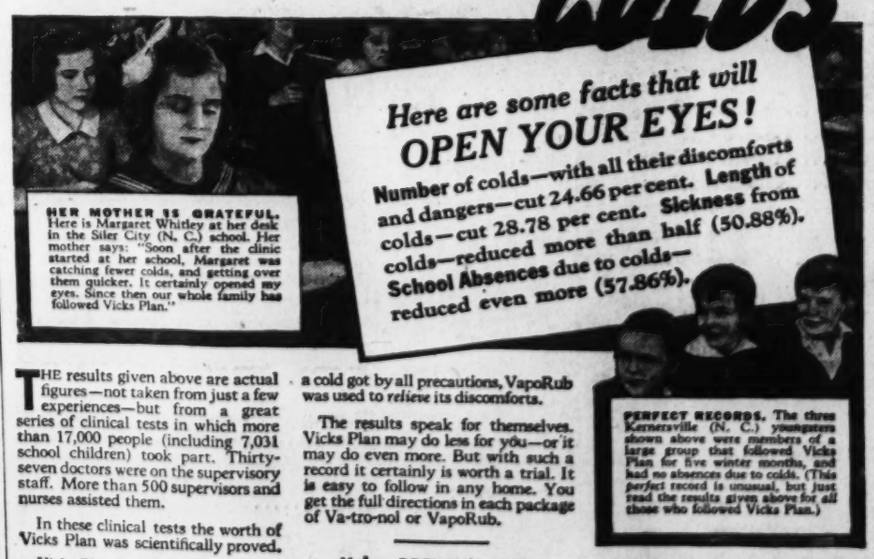
If you still believe nothing can be done about COLDS



HER MOTHER IS GRATEFUL. Here is Margaret Whitley at her desk in the Siler City (N. C.) school. Her mother says: "Soon after the clinic started at her school, Margaret was catching fewer colds, and getting over them quicker. It certainly opened my eyes. Since then our whole family has followed Vicks Plan."
Here are some facts that will OPEN YOUR EYES!
Number of colds—with all their discomforts and dangers—cut 24.66 per cent. Length of colds—cut 28.78 per cent. Sickness from colds—reduced more than half (50.88%). School Absences due to colds—reduced even more (57.86%).
PERFECT RECORDS. The three Kernersville (N. C.) youngsters shown above were members of a large group that followed Vicks Plan for five winter months, and had no absences due to colds. (This perfect record is unusual, but just read the results given above for all those who followed Vicks Plan.)

THE results given above are actual figures—not taken from just a few experiences—but from a great series of clinical tests in which more than 17,000 people (including 7,031 school children) took part. Thirty-seven doctors were on the supervisory staff. More than 500 supervisors and nurses assisted them.

In these clinical tests the worth of Vicks Plan was scientifically proved.

Vicks Plan is a simple guide which emphasizes the importance of proper personal care and the use of two specialized medications—Vicks Va-tro-nol and Vicks VapoRub—for relief of symptoms in different types and stages of colds.

When colds threatened—at the first nasal irritation, sniffle, or sneeze—Va-tro-nol was used to help prevent the development of many colds. When a cold got by all precautions, VapoRub was used to relieve its discomforts.

The results speak for themselves. Vicks Plan may do less for you—or it may do even more. But with such a record it certainly is worth a trial. It is easy to follow in any home. You get the full directions in each package of Va-tro-nol or VapoRub.

Helps PREVENT COLDS

Va-tro-nol is specialized medication, expressly designed for use in the nose and upper throat where most colds start. You can feel this tingling, stimulating medication go right to work to aid Nature's defenses against colds. Used in time—a few drops up each nostril at the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle, or sneeze—it helps to prevent many colds from developing. So keep it handy and use it early.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

RELIEVES misery of COLDS

VapoRub is a family standby all over the country for relieving misery of colds. Massaged on throat, chest and back, VapoRub works two ways at once: (1) It acts direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Its medicated vapors are inhaled direct to irritated air-passages. This poultice-vapor action loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—eases coughing—relieves local congestion—and you soon feel comfortable again.

Bridges 'Sat In' On Death Plot, Inquiry Told

Legion Aides Testify Describe 'Red Court' Victim 'Tossed in Bay'

By the United Press.

The Dies committee investigating un-American activities was told yesterday that Harry Bridges, West Coast maritime leader, is a member of the World; that he "is or was" a "sat in" at a meeting of Communists who ordered a man killed.

The victim was identified as "Raoul Louis Cherbourg," who, it was charged, was "killed, his body wrapped in chains and dumped into San Francisco Bay." The man ordered to dispose of "Cherbourg" was identified as "one Dave Sanders."

Bridges' accuser was Harper Knowles, of Oakland, Calif., chairman of the American Legion's radical research group in California. He placed 14 specific charges against Bridges before the committee, including one that he has "seditiously conspired to overthrow, put down and destroy by force" the United States Government.

Strong man of the Committee for Industrial Organization on the Pacific Coast, Bridges repeatedly has denied membership in the Communist Party. Action on deportation proceedings against him has been held up by the Labor Department pending a ruling by the Supreme Court on whether mere membership in the party is a deportable offense.

In referring to alleged disposal of "Cherbourg," Knowles charged:

"That he (Bridges) sat in the meeting of the Thirteenth District bureau, Communist Party, which directed one Dave Sanders to dispose of Raoul Louis Cherbourg, who was later killed and his body, wrapped in chains dumped into San Francisco bay."

Knowles referred to the labor leader as "Alfred Renton Bridges, better known as Harry Bridges."

His list of specific accusations detailed Bridges' alleged affiliations with Communistic labor and other groups in California, including membership in the "Communist party waterfront strike committee faction" during the 1934 San Francisco general strike.

The legionnaire said that Bridges belonged to the Industrial Workers of the World, that he "is or was" a member of the "Communist Party top faction of the maritime Federation of the Pacific," and that he "invariably appoints Communist Party members to key positions in the maritime unions and the C. I. O."

Knowles testified that his charges were based on the studies by his group. He contended that Bridges has "advocated and reflected" Communist policies since 1934, and accused him of conducting a "campaign of defamation" against those refusing to follow them.

Knowles and Ray E. Nimmo, Los Angeles, general counsel for the legion committee, blamed Bridges and Communists for formenting West Coast labor disputes, including the San Francisco general strike, and bringing "chaos into the maritime industry."

Bloch Affiliation Charged

Knowles testified also that Dr. Louis Bloch, member of the Maritime Labor Board, who was secretary of the mediation commission named by President Roosevelt at the time of the San Francisco strike, was a member of the Communist Party's professional unit. Bloch is now active in the League for Peace and Democracy, he said.

The legionnaires said that many of the maritime strikes "were purely political" and deliberately aimed to produce "chaos."

There have been 156 "quickie strikes" of "job actions" which violated the agreement which ended the general strike at San Francisco, Knowles added. He said Bridges ordered his longshoremen not to handle 15 tons of scrap iron consigned to the motorship Fella, of the Libera Lines, April 2, 1936, despite the fact it had been given clearance by customs officials.

The legionnaire quoted Bridges as terming the cargo "war contraband" and as saying that "we will handle this scrap iron only when, and if, Secretary of State Cordell Hull advises us that it is not contraband."

"In other words, he was setting himself up as a de facto Secretary of State?" asked Representative Joe Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama.

"Yes sir," Knowles replied.

Dodge's Drowning Held Accidental

Little Current, Ontario, Oct. 24 (Canadian Press).—A verdict of "accidental death by drowning" was returned by a coroner's jury today in an inquest into the death of Daniel Dodge, Detroit millionaire.

Dodge's 19-year-old widow was present at the inquiry, over which Coroner Dr. N. R. Simpson presided.

Dodge was drowned in Georgian Bay August 15 when he toppled from a speedboat taking him to a hospital for treatment of injuries received in a dynamite explosion in the garage of his summer home.

D. C. Has Authority to Regulate Pedestrian Traffic, Seal Says, Citing 1926 Legislation

Traffic

Schuldt handed down numerous convictions.

But Judge John P. McMahon later held the act was not broad enough to cover pedestrian violations. He ruled, according to Eldridge, it would be necessary to show that the accused pedestrian actually took the right of way from motorists.

Since Judge McMahon's ruling no efforts have been made to enforce the amended act as it applies to those afoot, Eldridge said.

As part of the District's safety program, 41 members of the Metropolitan Police Department yesterday attended opening classes of the annual traffic training school.

Lieut. Walter Storm is directing the courses. Special instructors include Capt. Mitlon D. Smith, Capt. Harvey Callahan, Capt. Arthur Miller, Lieut. John Fowler, Lieut. Floyd Truscott, Lieut. L. R. Beall, Sergt. B. C. Beach, Sergt. M. R. Gore and Private H E. Caranfa.

Driver Exonerated

Another pedestrian was held responsible for his own death yesterday when a coroner's jury returned an "accidental" verdict in the District's seventy-first traffic fatality of the year.

The jury held that Dr. Orlando Ducker, 86, of 1419 R street northwest, was negligent in crossing the street when he was struck Saturday at Vermont avenue and L street northwest.

Witnesses said he was not in the crosswalk when the accident occurred. The verdict cleared Theodore R. Meekins, 34, of 500 Florida avenue northwest, who was driving the car which struck the elderly physician.

Two Injured in Crashes

Lena Privitera, 43, of 1231 Randolph street northwest, received several fractured ribs and lacerations yesterday when the taxi in which she was riding collided with another car at North Capitol and H streets.

Malcolm Ripley, 29, of 1012 Third street northwest, driver of the cab, and Earl M. Allison, 24, of 419 G street northeast, driver of the other car, were charged with colliding.

In an other mishap at Eleventh and I streets northeast, Samuel Milatiner, 71, of 1230 H street northeast, suffered severe head injuries. At Casualty Hospital his condition was described as serious.

Faced Destruction 'Was No Perfect Course' Berlin Alliance Urged

By the Associated Press.

Edinburg, Scotland, Oct. 24.—British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax advocated today at a Conservative Party political meeting a European peace based upon personal contacts made at the Munich four-power conference and an Anglo-German understanding. It was his first speech since the international crisis.

"Our own course is clear," Lord Halifax said in outlining Britain's foreign policy. "We must lose no opportunity of helping forward the results of personal contacts established between Germany, Italy, France and ourselves at Munich."

But, he said, "we shall not abandon old friends in the search for new."

Urges Berlin Alliance

"I do not hesitate to say that if the German and British nations could really succeed in reaching an understanding it would be the strongest guarantee that could be devised against the dangers to which the world has been brought so close," he declared.

"It was the plain fact which no one has ever denied, that no war, no combination of effort by France, Russia and ourselves, no rallying to our cause of any others who would have joined, would have protected Czechoslovakia herself from destruction far more sweeping and complete than those sacrifices, great as they are, that have been demanded of her.

"We could have embarked upon a general war in which Czechoslovakia would have endured—as would all taking part in what would have become a general holocaust of human life—cruel losses of her manhood and of her resources and, at the end, no one would have redrawn her frontiers in the form which they had ostensibly gone to war to protect.

"No Perfect Course"

"There was, indeed, no perfect course—but only and always a hard choice between alternatives, one of which meant war, and, for Czechoslovakia, destruction, and the other of which means the terms for Czechoslovakia that we know.

"The decision to secure a settlement by which war might be averted from half the world was right.

"I hope indeed that rectification of frontiers according to the racial distribution of population which is now taking place in central southeastern Europe may contribute to stability and peace."

ceive enough reinforcements to clear out Chinese terrorists.

Japanese forces closing in on Hankow were battering forward on both the north and south banks of the Yangtze River while warships, which had cleared the last Chinese obstructions from the channel below the capital, were within cannon-range of the Wuhan (Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang) tri-city area.

Hankow Hears Cannon

The booming of big guns was heard clearly by Americans and other occidentals in refuge in the guarded French concession of Hankow under guns of the American gunboats Luzon and Guam and British warships.

Volunteer foreign police were mobilized in the refugee areas.

Fires of unknown origin were burning in parts of the tri-city area.

The reports Generalissimo Chiang would resign were based on increasing indications that his "All-China Anti-Japanese Front" government is collapsing and that Cantonese leaders, particularly, have repudiated him because of his failure to protect their province. The general belief still was that former Premier Wang Ching-wei will head a new nationalist government which will face the unwelcome task of effecting a truce with the Japanese.

Quo Tai-chi, Chinese Ambassador in London, however, told the United Press, "I can state categorically that Generalissimo Chiang has not the slightest intention of resigning. I can also deny rumors that Wang Ching-wei or Dr. Wang Chung-hui (the present nationalist foreign minister) now are in Hongkong to discuss possible mediation or peace terms. I have just received a telegram stating that they are in Chungking" (secondary national Chinese capital in Szechuan Province, west of Hankow).

Six Japanese bombers participated in the attack on the Sandpiper, according to reports reaching Shanghai, dropping their explosives after pursuit ships had circled the little river gunboat for half an hour.

The superstructure, two cabins and other parts of the 185-ton ship were wrecked. Bomb splinters cut numerous holes in the ship's hull. No casualties were reported, however.

British naval authorities in Shanghai immediately protested to the Japanese through the British consulate general, while in Tokyo the British Ambassador, Sir Alexander L. Craigie, called at the foreign office and registered a separate vigorous protest.

Craigie protested without awaiting orders from London. He pointed out the British naval authorities in China, as requested by the Japanese, have been furnishing the Japanese armed forces with daily reports on the whereabouts of British ships.

The ambassador insisted the Japanese fliers were guilty of "negligence" and intimated Britain reserved the right to claim damages.

Japanese naval authorities at first refused to believe reports of the attack, but later said they were correct. Pending full reports from the attacking fliers, they suggested the Sandpiper was anchored in a channel along which Chinese transports were retreating and was hit by bombs intended for the Chinese ships.

An observer of the United States Marine Corps witnessed the attacks, the British said. They insisted there was no question but that the attack was deliberate.

The British Ambassador to China, Sir Archibald Kerr, was en route from Hongkong to Yunnanfu (Kumming) and details of the Sandpiper case were being handled by his subordinates in Shanghai.

The Dollar Line was involved in another incident yesterday when Chinese pirates machine gunned a tender it was operating in the lower Yangtze River and killed a Chinese passenger. The attack occurred about 50 miles from Woosung.

In the Canton area the Japanese formally occupied the Chinese Bocca Tigris (Tiger's Mouth) forts on the Pearl River below Canton at 10 a. m. yesterday and then pushed along other waterways in the Pearl River delta, taking over Chinese military posts.

The Japanese were reported in control of the northern half of Macao inland and the big Chinese city of Shekki and to have cut communications between the Chinese areas and Portugal's Macao colony.

Snyder Arraigned On 3 Charges in AldermanShooting

Los Angeles, Oct. 24 (AP).—"Colonel" Martin (Moe) Snyder, former husband of Singer Ruth Etting, today made his first court appearance to answer three felony charges growing out of shooting Myrl Alderman in Miss Etting's home nine days ago.

Snyder was taken from the county jail, when he is held under $50,000, to Municipal Court, where he was arraigned on charges of attempted murder, kidnapping and violation of the State gun law. There he was told to enter his pleas Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Alderman, who was Miss Etting's accompanist and at the time of the shooting named as her husband, is in seclusion convalescing from wounds.

Lindbergh Sees Nazi Labor Unit, Delays Departure

Berlin, Oct. 24 (AP).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh spent three hours today inspecting the German labor front's bureau for vocational education and business management.

He was described as having shown "great interest."

The American flier had planned to leave Berlin this morning but deferred his departure for "probably several days."

(At Lannion, France, a special police inspector was appointed on permanent assignment, ostensibly to keep watch on the security of Col. Lindbergh and his family.

(The town is 12 miles from Port-Blanc, small port on France's northern coast, where Lindbergh lands in commuting between the mainland and his home on Illiec Island.

Scottish Girls Strike in England

Yarmouth, England, Oct. 24 (AP).—Sales in the big herring markets of Yarmouth and Lowestoft were halted today by a strike of 2,400 Sabbath-keeping Scottish girls in the fish packing plants.

The girls, who flock to these English ports each year to salt and pack fish during the herring season, quit work in protest against Sunday fishing by English boats. They contended that Sunday catches gave the English an advantage over Scottish fishermen, who do not fish on the Sabbath.

Elizalde Pickets Face Police Action

Eighth Precinct police were keeping a watchful eye at the Shoreham Hotel for the possible appearance of pickets protesting the appointment of Joaquin Miguel Elizalde as Philippine resident commissioner to the United States.

Elizalde, who lives at the hotel, notified police of a communication he had from a New York Filipino faction, protesting his appointment and threatening to picket his home.

The commissioner refused an offer of police protection.

Venezuela Buys Massachusetts Site for Legation

Sale of a triangular tract formed by the intersection of Massachusetts avenue and California street northwest to the government of Venezuela, as the site for its projected legation building, was announced yesterday by Sandoz, Inc., real estate firm handling the transaction in co-operation with the real estate office of George Y. Worthington. The consideration was not made public.

The plot, containing 22,000 square feet, was sold for four individual lot owners to the Venezuelan government, whose legation is now located at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest. Work on the building will be started as soon as plans nad specifications are prepared and bids taken. The land was at one time the property of former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois.

Near the site are the Japanese and Turkish embassies and the Czechoslovakian, Greek, Rumanian and Iran legations.

Beautician License Proof of Health, Board Asserts

Beauticians in the District, if licensed by the Board of Cosmetology, are free of communicable diseases, that body stated yesterday.

There are 3,689 operators in beauty shops and schools licensed here. Each licensee has been declared free from communicable disease by a reputable physician, the board announced.

Last week Health Department statistics revealed that 5.2 per cent of 1,349 beauticians examined were found to have syphilis. The board said it did not question these statistics. It said, however:

"Licenses were withheld from the small number of applicants not recommended by physicians. If the Health Department found 5.2 per cent of beauticians suffering syphilis in the examination, the board has proof that these persons were not licensed and are not now practicing legally in the District."

Spain Tightens Border; Franco Drive Indicated

Hendaye, France, Oct. 24 (AP).—Insurgent Spain tightened her control today over the Pyrenees frontier with France.

Such action has been taken frequently in the past to prevent leakages of military information on the eve of an important campaign.

Although the border was not closed, supervision of persons entering or leaving Spain was sharper and some travelers were searched.

Anatole is right - mais certainement! But you don't have to be a great chef to discover the benefits of electric cooking. In fact, 15,000 housewives are today using Flameless Cooking at "PEPCO" low rates.

One lady writes that she spends only half the usual time in the kitchen, and meals cooked on her Flameless Electric range have a new and zestful flavor. Another is proud of her immaculately clean range, her unblemished kitchen walls, bright pots and pans—and the joy of a cool kitchen. A third is delighted because her new range can be operated at little expense. The efficiency, economy and control inherent in Flameless Cooking makes possible, in the American home, one of the ideals of our fast moving Electric Age.

Flameless Cooking has "P. A." - public acceptance - and is definitely on its way to general use in the homes of today and tomorrow. Before you buy a new range, investigate the virtues of Flameless Cooking. Why not do it today?

Hungary Cuts Her Demands By 30 Per Cent

Sets 48-Hour Deadline
Restrained by 3 Powers
Warns Czechs of Delay

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Oct. 24.—Czechoslovakia's delegation to the League of Nations charged Hungarian airplanes had dropped bombs in Ruthenia, easternmost part of Czechoslovakia.

The accusation added that Hungarian terrorist bands provoked riots in other parts of Ruthenia and in Eastern Slovakia, and said the planes dropped manifestos calling upon the people to revolt.

"At Borzava Railroad Station near Berehovo, Hungarian terrorists attacked the railroad buildings, halting the train," the Czechoslovak communique went on. "The head conductor was killed when he attempted to defend himself. A Turhenian policeman and a sergeant of troops who were called were killed in the subsequent action.

"The intervention of police and regular army brought a cleanup of the frontier zone. In the forest to the east of Berehovo more than 200 men were captured. Seventeen men of the group which attacked the Borzava Railway Station were arrested. Two of them were Hungarian military cadets. All prisoners admitted their Hungarian origin."

Czechoslovak charges that Hungarian planes had bombed Ruthenia were first made over the Slovak radio at Bratislava in a denial of Hungarian reports that Czechs were using planes to suppress rioting in the Magyar minority districts.

The radio comminique at Bratislava declared, according to the statement issued in Geneva, that the Hungarian government had put planes at the disposal of rebel bands financed by the Hungarian government and led by active officers of the Hungarian army.

Magyars Reduce Demands

By the Associated Press.

Budapest, Oct. 24.—Hungary dropped 30 per cent of her previous demands for territory in Czechoslovakia today in a compromise proposal submitted to the Prague government.

The compromise was offered after Hungary for weeks apparently had stood fast in territorial negotiations with Czechoslovakia.

In a communique tonight the Hungarian government made it clear it was determined to settle the dispute with Czechoslovakia by peaceful means and not to resort to arms.

This followed preparation of an army of almost 500,000 men along the Czechoslovak frontier for any emergency and reports in well-informed circles it would march Wednesday if Czechoslovakia had not by then acceded to previous Hungarian demands.

Quick Answer Demanded

Hungary's new stand was understood in diplomatic circles to have been taken only after Germany, Italy and Poland strongly advised her not to continue pushing demands which would be unacceptable to any Czechoslovak government and which would endanger peace.

Hungary's latest offer, described as "final," and with an answer demanded within 48 hours, contains the following four proposals:

That undisputed areas of Czechoslovakia claimed by Hungary be occupied by Hungarian troops without further delay.

That plebiscites be held in disputed districts not later than November 30.

That in event Czechoslovakia should reject these demands, German, Polish and Italian joint jury should arbitrate the dispute.

That the right of "self-determination" be given to Ruthenians, Slovaks and the other nationalities.

New Offer Is "Final"

Only if Czechoslovakia should not acknowledge Hungary's "final" proposal and the provision for arbitration by the three powers would Hungary feel free to adopt drastic measures.

Germany Used Relief Money To Finance Spies, Jury Is Told

Spies

States Army private, one of the three defendants on trial, was motivated by boyhood terror in joining the conspiracy.

"He told me he had lived at Baden, near the French border, during the World War and had experienced severe bombings. He said this would be a fine chance to get even with America for those bombings and because America rang the death knell for us (in Germany) after years of fighting," the witness said.

Glaser, a dark-eyed, stoic-faced youth born in Germany, is a naturalized American. He was attached to the Air Force at Mitchel Field, Long Island, until arrested by Federal agents last February.

He said Glaser acted "very agreeable" when told how much money could be made in the sale of United States military secrets to Germany.

The New York Post said United States Attorney Lamar Hardy has evidence the espionage ring was directed in Berlin in co-operation with the Japanese government.

The newspaper said Hardy planned to expose the alleged role of Japan in the spy plot, but was "hushed" up on orders by the State Department.

In Washington, State Department officials professed to have no such knowledge.

Rumrich's testimony that long-smouldering hatred led Glaser to spy for Germany drew a shouted rebuke from Defense Counsel Benjamin Matthews.

"Don't you know," Matthews snapped, "that you have just told a complete lie?"

Rumrich hesitated. "It's not a lie," he said. "It's the truth."

The witness, described as a "beer mug romancer" by defense attorneys, acknowledged all his talks with Glaser concerning espionage were held over "four or five pitchers" of spiked beer—a particularly potent brew.

The other defendants are Johanna Hofmann, former hair dresser on the German liner Europa, and Otto Voss, airplane mechanic.

Matthews, continuing his cross examination of Rumrich, asked:

"During all this time, you regarded yourself as a counter-espionage agent, intending to report foreign spies' activities in this country to your government?" (referring to Rumrich's previous assertion that he enlisted as a German spy to get information which would clear his record as an army deserter).

"I had that in mind. Yes, sir."

"Then," demanded Matthews, "why didn't you tell the Government when you were arrested that you were only trying to catch German spies?"

"I did," Rumrich insisted. "I told them. But they wouldn't include it in my statements."

"And you signed the statements without including that?"

"Yes, sir."

Rumrich said that in his first statement he exonerated Glaser and then "had to correct it" when Federal Bureau of Investigation agents told hi mGlaser had made a statement.

Matthews got Rumrich to admit he had made up "a code of his own," and the defense attorney then commented:

"You mean, you made up a code of your own to keep track of what you were doing yourself?"

Statement Refused

At the opening of today's session, Matthews renewed his request for copies of statements made by Rumrich to the State Department, F. B. I. and the United States attorney.

Hardy said he had no control over the State Department, and that the F. B. I. statement, to the best of his knowledge, had been destroyed. He offered Matthews the statement made to the United States attorney on condition Matthews offer it in evidence.

Matthews refused to accept it on that condition, and appealed to the Court. Judge Knox ruled the matter discretionary with the United States attorney, and said. Matthews would have to accept it on his terms or not at all. Matthews did not press the matter further.

The cross-examination of Rumrich will be resumed at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

U. S. Attitude On Palestine Jolts Britain

London

one majority over the Jews in Palestine.

Jews in Britain and throughout the empire are putting pressure upon the government. Ordinarily, British Jews have considerable influence with the government, but in the present troubled situation. British officials appear resolved to purchase peace with the Arabs, even at the expense of the Jews.

Sea Route Periled

In justification of this, officials will point out that it is the British, rather than the Americans, who must bear the brunt of fighting the Arabs and imperiling the British imperial communications to the British imperial communications to the Arab countries, the Suez Canal and Red Sea areas.

Conferring with Chamberlain today were the colonial secretary and Sir Samuel Hoare, Sir Thomas Inskip, Lord Zetland, Walter Elliott and Sir Alexander Cadogan.

Chamberlain also granted separate interviews to Elliott, Sir Kingsley Wood and Secretary of War Leslie Hore-Belisha, presumably in connection with the coming reorganization of the cabinet personnel.

Under the editorial heading, "Passed to You, Please," Viscount Rothermere's Evening News, the London paper with the largest circulation in the afternoon field, delivered a tart, mind-your-own-business answer to American intervention in Palestine. Noting President Roosevelt's intimation via Senator Wagner that America can "do more than protest firmly to Britain over any proposed immigration," this paper remarked:

"So it can. The United States can ask the League of Nations to transfer the Palestine mandate to them, and our Government, if not entirely bereft of its senses, will hand it over tied up in blue ribbon and with a courteous note of thanks for favors bestowed.

"Thankless Task"

"Meanwhile, Britain, not America, is saddled with the thankless job of administering the mandate which is costing millions of pounds and many valuable British lives, and in addition is losing this country lots of loyalty and prestige among the 60,000,000 modern citizens of the empire.

"Whil we continue to hold the mandate we must reserve the right to handle it in the way that seems to us best, although always ready to receive any practical advice or assistance from other governments."

The Rothmere invitation to America to seek Britain's mandate should not be regarded literally. Britain needs Palestine to safeguard its interests in the eastern Mediterranean, including the Haifa pipeline. Far from lettig go of Palestine voluntarily, the British hope to intensify their hold on that territory. Whatever form their control of Palestine may assume in the near future the British will continue to supervise the defenses and economics of that strategically important land.

President Not Hopeful

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 24 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt believes this country is unable to prevent modification in the Palestine mandate

Writing to Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts, today, the President said that at the most this country can decline to accept as applicable to American interests "any modification affecting such interests unless we have given our assent to them."

The Congresswoman had written to him in protest against any move that might destroy the Jewish national homeland.

He said he understood that "under the terms with our convention with Great Britain regarding the Palestine mandate we are unable to prevent modification in the mandate."

British to Seize Palestine Traffic and Communications

To Limit Travel to Clear Way for Troops
Evacuate Jerusalem But Keep Gun Nests
Consuls Confer; Kennedy Sees MacDonald

By the Associated Press.

Jerusalem, Oct. 24.—All traffic and communications in Palestine will be taken over by British military authorities November 1 in a move believed preliminary to a plan of the British army to limit movements of the populace to urban areas.

This would keep civilians out of the way of troops moving about to fight the Arab revolt against British rule and Jewish immigration in the Holy Land.

Maj. Gen. Robert H. Haining, commander of British forces in Palestine, issued special warnings throughout the country requiring all travelers to obtain special military passes.

U. S. Officials Confer

In Jerusalem itself, the British continued to withdraw soldiers from the old city, although they kept strategic machine-gun nests mounted on the quarter's ancient walls. The Coldstream Guards left today and British police took the places of the Northumberland Fusiliers, who retired yesterday.

Wallace Murray, United States consular inspector from Washington, conferred with Consul General George Wadsworth regarding protection of lives and property of American citizens in Palestine.

The conference was believed to be in connection with recent Washington pronouncements that American interests in Palestine would be protected.

Kennedy Sees MacDonald

(In London United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy conferred with Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald concerning Palestine and was believed to have requested he be advised before Britain adopts any new Palestine policy.)

Abdul Rahim, commander in chief of the Arab rebels, was reported in Jerusalem today to have issued orders from his mountain headquarters that his followers must refrain from engaging British troops except in self-defense.

The Arab commander's orders, however, were said to include instructions to continue other destructive activities, such as attacks on railway and police stations and Jewish settlements and severance of communications.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Stage Hit Retains Pep In New Film Form

'Brother Rat' Is Seen in Preview
Ina Claire in 'Yankee Fable' Cancelled
News and Gossip of the Theater

IT IS not to be wondered at that the Warner Brothers' picturization of "Brother Rat," should have been so riotously acclaimed at its world premiere in Lexington, Va., last Thursday night that many of its lines were lost in the tumult of the student body of the Virginia Military Institute. Actually filmed in large part at the "West Point of the South," the picture provides a school atmosphere that the stage never could hope to approximate. The upper classmen, no doubt, felt that it was themselves they were seeing on the screen. In the large view, perhaps it was. The parade ground scenes are actual.

BELL.

But beyond all that, and more particularly from the point of view of the lay public, "Brother Rat," in its new manifestation, is a faithful and honest film version of the comedy hit by John Monks, jr., and Fred F. Finklehoff, so successfully staged by George Abbott. All of the essential situations are retained, with many new ones added to accommodate the cinema's greater scope and flexibility. The cast, in all of its departments, may not be quite so infallible as the original, but the spirit of youthful deviltry is captured early in the action and follows a cumulative course to the final fadeout. One or two of the most famous lines in the original script fall to bob up in the picture's dialogue, but that is probably just as well.

Priscilla Lane is happily cast in the role of Joyce Winfree, although those of us who met her no longer ago than last Saturday afternoon were a mite disappointed that her opportunities are not so abundant as was the case in "Four Daughters." It was interesting, however, to note at yesterday afternoon's preview that Johnny Davis can be quite as capable a straight juvenile comedian as he can a broken-rhythm, "scat," musical comedy clown. And there is a youngster by the name of William Tracey in the role of Misto Bottome who will engage the unfailing attention of those who enjoy the spectacle of a pesterad lower classman being everlastingly deflated by his seniors. Mr. Tracey at times seems on the verge of spontaneous combustion, but manages to survive to the day when he no longer is a "brother rat" and can call his erstwhile persecutors by their first names and tell them to go to—assembly!

But topping them all is Eddie Albert, in the role of "Bing" Edwards, the secret father, who is bowed down by heavier responsibilities than Lord Chamberlain. The cigar he slips the commandant is the significant new "tag-line" of the play. He is its top actor.

It seems safe to forecast that "Brother Rat" will cause the walls of the Earle to bulge out like Misto Bottome's chest when it opens there on Friday.

Reverting once more to Priscilla Lane, if that isn't more than the traffic will stand, the thought will not down that she bears a remarkably close resemblance to the Charlotte Walker of the old Columbia Players days, when Wilton Lackaye, Hilda Spong, the late Sir Guy Standing and other luminaries were the mainstays of that fine stock company. From the eyes down, Priscilla's features are almost identical with those of the Charlotte Walker of 30-odd years ago. She might very much more easily be taken for Miss Walker's daughter than Sara Haden, also of the films, who really is.

Things move rapidly in the theatrical business. Readers of this column—if any—as it appeared in the first edition of today's Post, on the streets last night, were tearfully advised that next week's engagement of Ina Claire in "Yankee Fable," at the National, had been canceled. The announcement was predicted upon advices from Boston received late in the afternoon, "For immediate release." At the moment that seemed the last word to all concerned.

Later last evening, however, there bounced in another message from the same sources frantically requesting that the first bulletin be disregarded. So it hereby is, insofar as a second managerial guess can counteract the effects of a premature first one.

Ina Claire in Cheryl Crawford's production of Lewis Meltzer's comedy of "Yankee Fable," nee "Generals Need Beds," WILL be presented at the National next week, as originally announced. For which grateful orisons should be wafted on high.

Then will come the Lunts in "The Sea Gull."

"The Sea Gull," incidentally, will be the only play presented by the Lunts in Washington on this visit. The Capital is fortunate in having seen all of their earlier recent productions—most of them before they went into New York—and so is not being considered as an outlet for the proposed repertoire which the distinguished costars will present elsewhere in the country. This tentative repertoire will consist of "Reunion in Vienna," "Idiot's Delight," "Amphitryon '38" and "The Sea Gull." When Charles Washburn, the veteran stentor of the better things of the theater, was here a week or two ago in the anticipatory interests of Mr. Lunt and Miss Fotnanne, he explained something of the difficulties already encountered in booking the repertoire through the hinterland. In some spots it was felt that "Amphitryon," with its subtly shady implications, might be slightly strong meat for the simple burghers, so it was suggested that any of the other plays would be splendid. So what? So they all wanted to see "Amphitryon" and didn't give a hang about the Sherwood and Chekhov items!

FLASH

The winning couple in the "Great Waltz" waltzing contest on the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater last night were Pablo Santana and Martha Benitez. These District champions will compete at the Capitol next Monday night, with the Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Carolina finals winners for the zone championship that will lead to the national finals in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Yesterday's welcome caller at the drama desk, so long as we are on the topic of the so-called "legitimate" theater, was Morton Nathanson, who is following in the footsteps of the late Ray Henderson as harbinger of Katharine Cornell and her new production, coming to the National immediately in the wake of the Lunts.

Miss Cornell's new play, as has already been made known here, is "Herod and Mariamne," in which she will be supported by Fritz Kortner, noted actor of the European stage. Mr. Kortner, of course, will play Herod to Miss Cornell's Mariamne.

While there have been numerous plays dealing with the life of Herod, none has been presented in the Capital, I believe, since William Faversham and Julie Opp appeared in Stephen Phillips' three-act, blank-verse tragedy of "Herod," at the Belasco Theater, back in 1909. Miss Cornell's, needless to say, is a play entirely apart from the Faversham vehicle, but, even so, its imminence tosses memory back through the years to a vivid recollection of how vitally dramatic its subject matter can be made.

Lest a mistaken understanding take hold of the public mind, it should be made clear that Thursday's opening of the Twentieth Century-Fox production of "Suez," at Loew's Palace Theater, will not be in the nature of one of those super-special, evening "Hollywood permeers." This pretentious subject, costarring Tyrone Power and Loretta Young, will open Thursday morning and be presented continuously on the "all-day grind" policy, just like any other screen feature. The only departure from regular practice is that "Suez" will open one day ahead of the customary Friday. It is being previewed by the dramatic cricks today at 1:30.

Tonight, following a club dinner at 7, the dramatic committee of the Arts Club will present the two prize plays of the one-act play contest held last spring. They are "Mademoiselle from Armentiers," by Aaron Goldman, and "A Certain Town," by Pearl Porter Erz. They will be interpreted by the club's most capable players. Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, one of the Capital's most gifted actresses, and Harold Allen Long will act as hosts for the evening.

When the Nazis marched into Vienna to "take over" the city, "Grand Illusion," one of the most powerful antiwar dramas ever filmed, now on the screen at the Belasco Theater, was being shown. A Nazi officer, armed with an injunction, promptly visited the theater and ordered the picture's withdrawal. It was stopped in the middle of a reel. When Jean Renoir, the director, was notified of this incident in Paris, instead of flying into a towering rage, he merely expressed his pleasure at being accorded so high an honor—said he felt a little as if he had received some sort of decoration. See the picture, if you haven't already, and you will understand why he felt as he did.

One-Reason-as-Good-as-Another Note

When Jean Gabin, one of the stellar players in "Grand Illusion," was offered a Hollywood contract, he declined. His excuse was, "My favorite French wine does not travel well!" That also goes for some under its influence.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York.

SERGE LIFAR, featured at the Monte Carlo Ballet, who was criticized for disrupting the score by taking to many bows on opening night, announced at El Morocco last night that he's quitting the ballet and returning to Europe today. Yesterday Lifar challenged his rival, Massine, to a duel! . . . Next week Dewey's campaign speech will feature a plea for racial tolerance . . . Col. Moe Snyder, now in jail for shooting his successor in Ruth Etting's affection, yesterday wired a plea for his Broadway pals to raise some money for him.

CHARLES WASHBURN, the press agent, is publicizing the road tour of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne's "Amphytrion, '38" . . . Backstage, in Boston, a visitor asked Lunt: "What's the story of 'Amphytrion?" . . . "You tell him, Charlie," Lunt directed . . . "Well," said Washburn, "it's the old story of a guy making a pass at a dame—but we do it different" . . . "What," asked the visitor, "is so different about a guy making a pass at a dame?" . . . "There's a great difference," the publicist explained. "We have a Harp in the orchestra!"

THE MOTHER of Thomas Wolfe, the novelist who died recently, just arrived in New York to consult with publishers about a collection of Wolfe's early manuscripts which never have been published . . . The Robert Irwin trial won't begin next week, as scheduled. It will be postponed for one week, because the prosecutor isn't ready . . . Malcolm Johnson of the Sun will write a daily column about the night clubs for that paper.

CONGRESSMAN MARTIN DIES, whose investigation committee unearthed the fact that Earl Browder is a Red, will be a speaker at the forthcoming Herald Tribune Forum . . . Another of the speakers will deliver her address over the telephone from Hollywood and then, via loudspeaker, to the Herald Tribune Forum patrons . . . That Hollywood co-speaker of Dies will be Dies' favorite Red—Shirley Temple.

THE PRODUCERS of Sascha Guitry's "Story of a Cheat" were very much afraid that the Philadelphia censors would eliminate three scenes which are very risque. The censors did eliminate three scenes—but the innocuous ones . . . Carl Moore, the Arkansas hillbilly who composed "Bye, Bye, Blues" and "St. James Infirmary Blues," will come to New York for the first time next week. He's been hired to conduct the band at the Village Barn . . . The curtain for "Danton's Death" couldn't be raised on time last night. And so Martin Gabel and Orson Welles, in French Revolution costumes, entertained the customers by doing the quarrel scene from "Julius Caesar."

HENRY JONES is one of the gravediggers in Maurice Evans' "Hamlet." He grew his hair long and straggly, as befits the role. Yesterday he decided that his locks had grown just a bit too long for comfort, and told his barber to be careful and trim the ends a litle . . . Jones settled back into the barber chair, and when he awoke he discovered that his hair had been cut neatly and slickly—just as if he weren't an Evans actor . . . Jones shrieked his anger. "What?" shrugged the barber. "Let you out of my shop the way you looked coming in? Never!"

A PROMINENT LOCAL officeholder charged with failure to pay income taxes for '27, '28 and '29 was notified that his salary would be attached. "If it is," the civic official has informed them. "I'll quit my job" . . . Paul Whiteman's former manager, Jack Lavin, now is managing Charles Baum, the Iridium Room's band leader, who was Whiteman's former pianist. Barbara Bannister, the Smithfield Ham heiress, who's making her debut at N. T. G.'s cafe because she wants to make her own way in the world, bought a $900 gown for the event.

THE ROOSEVELT Theater last week presented "Gypsy," the Amkino film . . . Thursday evening 50 gypsies were scheduled to come and see the movie, and this fact was publicized . . . The gypsies arrived, entered the theater—and half an hour later the fireman registered complaint with the manager. "What's wrong?" asked the latter. "We said they'd be real gypsies and they are." . . . "Yes, they're real gypsies," the fireman replied. "They won't sit in the seats. They're siting on the floor, in the rear of the theater, and in the aisles."

Bandits of Old Whitewashed By the Years

'Oklahoma Kid' Okay
Censors Wink Eye
Cagney Is Star

By Frederick C. Othman.

Chatsworth, Calif., Oct. 24 (U.P.)—A couple of the most dastardly criminals ever to murder a sheriff in cold blood shot it out here today in the wilderness, in the making of a movie which the censors have given the white badge of purity.

And that's a funny thing.

The guardians of cinema morals decided a couple or three years back that the youth of this Nation should not be subjected to pictures about gangsters who flout the law and get away with it. Gangsters can't be heroes in the movies. They've got to be villains and the final reel must prove that crime doesn't pay.

This decision put a crimp in the style of James Cagny, the toughest movie gangster of them all. He had to be the hero, because the public simply wouldn't pay its money to see him bite the dust. So Warners took him out of gangster pictures for a while and gave him comic parts. They didn't go so well. Cagney still was a gangster. Several hundred thousand dollars were invested in him—and he couldn't make a sucker out of the police in the movies. The censors wouldn't allow it.

Time Remedies Evil

So after deep thought the master minds decided to make him a rough, tough gangster again, who had no compunction about murder, who made the authorities look like fools, and who loved his girl friend. They made his part sympathetic. It also made the picture subject to censorial verboten, except for one fact:

Warners set their picture in the gay nineties! That made everything all right with the purity organizations. We don't know why, but it did. A modern gangster can't get by with unpunished murder on the screen, but a bad man of 40 years ago can—and does.

So Cagney is playing the part of the Oklahoma Kid in the film of the same name. He spends most of his time robbing other highwaymen of their loot, but in his moments of relaxation he enjoys sticking up banks. He fights rival bad men and police with equal pleasure, slays four men, drives another mad and finally marries Rosemary Lane, retires, and lives happily ever after.

Bogart, the Snake!

That, approximately, is the plot, and if it's okay with the censors we can't quite understand why they won't allow the same story in modern dress. The manufacture of the film, in any event, seemed to be a lot of fun for all concerned.

When we arrived in the badlands here, where virtually all Hollywood cow operas are made, a stage coach was driving across the mesa, and a gang of robbers, headed by the villainous Humphrey Bogart, was in pursuit.

Bogart was dressed in black, except for the pearl handle on his six-shooter. He looked like a snake, and snake he was. One of his followers looked still more villainous—and for good reason. He was Ed Pawley, longe-time movie gangster, who never before had been on a horse. He was so sore and so stiff that the expression on his face was genuinely murderous.

"And I'm the guy who's getting murdered," he muttered, after the coach was properly robbed, the right amount of blood was spilled in the dust, and Director Lloyd Bacon was satisfied. By then is was lunch time.

A Desperado's Diet

All the desperadoes trooped up the hill, where the Warner commissary provided fried chicken, roast duck and what not. The pugs uglies wolfed this down and—so help us!—spent a solid hour talking about lobster, and the way they liked it cooked. Bogart said he liked only Maine lobster. Cagney said he liked his lobster boiled in salt water. Bacon said he liked lobster stewed.

At 1 p. m. the bad men went back to work. This consisted of Cagney robbing Bogart of all the gold bullion he'd just lifted from the stage.

The film will be in production another month. It will cost Warners about $750,000, and what we particularly want to see is the scene wherein Hero Cagney leads one of his enemies into the desert, and when the latter is about to take a drink of water from his canteen, shoots a hole in it. That drives the enemy crazy and he grovels in the sand.

Thunderation! If the movie makers had only thought of this gangster formula years ago, they never would have had all that censor trouble.

Broadway Beauty Tabus Films, Then Changes Her Mind

When Miss America came to Hollywood for fame and found herself in horse operas instead, she decided to turn her back on motion pictures forever. But she has returned and her name is Beryl Wallace.

Miss Wallace, shapely brunette beauty, was featured as Miss America in a dazzling musical number in Earl Carroll's Vanities. She was first invited to Hollywood to be featured in the film, "Murder at the Vanities." She returned to New York musicals and again came back to Hollywood, hoping to win dramatic roles, but her dramatic performances were limited to riding a horse in Westerns.

It was then she decided to desert Hollywood, forever. She entered stock companies in the East and finally played a role on Broadway in "The Women."

"The play was directed by Robert Sinclair," said Miss Wallace. "He later left Broadway for motion pictures. I heard he was preparing to direct Luise Ranier's new picture, 'Dramatic School,' and, remembering how helpful he had been to me, I communicated with him and he offered me a supporting role in his picture."

Miss Wallace boarded a plane for the Coast and is now a member of the "Dramatic School" cast.

"I was doubly anxious for the role because it will permit me to study the acting technique of Miss Rainer, whom I regard as one of the greatest living actresses," said Miss Wallace.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 24.—There are more disillusions in Hollywood per minute than in any other proportionate area in the world. Young people with ideals, picked up by talent scouts and brought here either keep their ideals and return home discouraged, or lose them, flourish on the town for a few months and are forgotten. Where they go or what happens to them nobody knows or cares. The one attaining success is one in 100,000.

HEDDA HOPPER

Values are not the same here. Real things: feelings, ideals, sincerity are too often laughed at. Money is not only Hollywood's aim; it's almost the whole works. Pictures are often wrongly advertised by their cost. Acting ability is too often judged by the size of salary. A costly box-office flop is alibied by being rated as a "Prestige Picture."

Instead of spending money to improve pictures, it's spent on posters, banners and movie quizzes to inform the world that "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment." When all that is really needed to prove that is a few good pictures. Of late there have been some swell ones. For example: "Robin Hood," "If I Were King," "Boys' Town," "Hold That Coed," "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," "Test Pilot," "Brother Rat," "Suez," "Carefree," and "Drums."

With pictures such as these, the public needs no advertisement to point out that motion pictures are its best entertainment. So, what's the percentage?

Girls in Hollywood learn to judge men, not for themselves, but for their money and for what the men can do for them to advance their careers. In about two years these girls have nothing pleasant to look back on, and nothing to look forward to. They're through, in some cases, for life.

What can a girl look forward to, who has had what she wanted, and thought was everything—furs, a car, an expensive apartment, jewels—if she's lucky—and now finds herself without any of them. Her self-esteem, of which she probably had plenty, takes a terrific beating when she realizes that she, who thought she had everything in the way of personality and talent, has in reality no more than any average girl. She sees an actress playing a part on the screen that she would like to play and says: "If I couldn't do it better than that I wouldn't be in pictures." She couldn't and isn't.

Looking back on luxuries she's had, she is loathe to face the future without them and becomes bitter. Few are strong enough to make a new life for themselves, and, more important, to be happy.

Many of the men are very little different. They may be lucky enough to be married to a swell girl, the latter being promptly forgotten when a blonde with a pair of eyes hoves into sight. It's just as natural, in Hollywood, for women with success to help men without it as it is vice versa. In some cases this help is overlooked when success comes.

There's too much of everything material and too little of everything real for most people to take and remain on the right track. Romances come and go, publicized like a circus sideshow. When the end comes nobody cares who is hurt. He or she is laughingly referred to as "carrying the torch," and the world reads and envies the other's new conquests.

In many cases neither is hurt, because it didn't mean anything but good copy in the first place. However, the publicity which follows sometimes proves distasteful. People might think she couldn't hold a man or be a girl!

Often people with good constructive ideas find no receptive ears for them until months, sometimes years, pass and somebody sees the light and wonders profanely why he hasn't been told them before.

Young people tossed around by dropped options become bitter and sore and say, "What a rotten business this is," but never seem to realize that nobody forced them to come into it. Watching some newcomer on the screen they say, "What I'd do with his break!" They should realize that he's been kicked around, too, and, more important, that he was ready for his break when it came. They should ask themselves if they are ready, because if they're not, hundreds are waiting who are ready. A second opportunity is infinitely harder to get than the first.

You may be wondering by this time who put the quarter in Hopper—but I just wanted to get a few home-truths off my chest.

There is, of course, another, a much nicer, side of Hollywood, and a much nicer type of person in every phase of it. But that side, and those people, you know all about. You read about them every day. This side you don't. And the only way to take this side of Hollywood is to laugh, laugh at everything, and most of all at yourself.

U.S. Indicts 45 In $15,000,000 Bootleg Ring

Stills in N. Y. State Made 3,500,000 Gallons Shipped Some to Canada

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 24.—An indictment naming 44 men and a woman as members of a liquor ring which defrauded the Federal Government of at least $15,000,000 in taxes was handed up to Federal Judge William Bondy today.

The ring, Assistant United States Attorney Raymond P. Whearty said, operated 11 stills ranging from 10,000 to 25,000 gallons capacity from time to time in up-State New York.

Production Vast

Between 1931 and 1937, it charged, the ring shipped liquor to Detroit, Boston, Buffalo, Newark, New York City and Canada.

"Conservative estimates," said Whearty, "convinced us this gang produced at least three and a half million gallons of 190-proof alcohol for illicit distribution."

Thirty-one persons were indicted last Tuesday by the same grand jury on charges of similar activity in Dutchess County, the Government charging it was defrauded of $2,500,000.

Federal agents, it was said today, traced the ring's production plants to Orange, Ulster, Sullivan, Rockland and Dutchess counties, with Newburgh, N. Y., named as the center of the gang's activity.

Corporation "Fronts" Used

Whearty added that Treasury agents had discovered several blind corporations set up by the defendants to "cloak with respectability" their operations, and that a Newburgh concern was used to purchase molasses, sugar and other raw materials for the operation of the stills.

Whearty said Treasury agents, tracing nine companies allegedly involved found their "headquarters" in abandoned barns and one-story garages. The concerns were created, he said, because Treasury regulations forced all dealers in raw materials for liquor to report their monthly business transactions.

Pistol for Protection, Robber Takes It, Too

Old Wind Tunnel Rebuilt to Speed Its Air Stream

The Bureau of Standards has modernized its 4½-foot wind tunnel to attain an increase in maximum air speed of 50 per cent without altering size of the power plant or working section, it was announced yesterday.

The old machine, built in 1917, has been completely reconstructed as a return circuit tunnel which makes possible improved performance by conservation of the air stream.

By utilizing a more uniform and steady flow of air, the new tunnel is expected to advance studies of the habits of air flow which have included calibration of wind measuring instruments, pressure of wind on large buildings and forces exerted on objects in an air stream.

Explosions Level 8 Powder Sheds

Columbus, Kans., Oct. 24 (U.P.).—A series of explosions started by a prairie fire today destroyed eight buildings at the Hercules Powder Plant north of Columbus. No one was injured.

The fire, which burned over an area of three square miles, was brought under control by hundreds of workmen and volunteers before it reached huge stores of powder and dynamite.

Mrs. Tucker asked the court to change her name to Cook, that of Dr. Samuel L. Cook, to whom she was married in 1890.

Distilled Liquor Output and Sales Off in September

By the Associated Press.

Distilled spirits production and withdrawals declined in September and in the first three months of the current fiscal year, the Bureau of Internal Revenue reported yesterday.

Production of all types of spirits in September totalled 9,294,322 gallons compared with 13,869,594 in September last year. Production for July, August and September of this year amounted to 21,084,187 gallons. In the corresponding period last year it amounted to 32,091,344 gallons.

September withdrawals were 7,491,194 gallons, compared with 7,920,256 a year ago. Stocks of all spirits at the end of the month were 495,162,890 gallons compared with 469,731,455 at the end of September, 1937.

Gentlemen: 9-13-38

In response to your inquiry regarding the economy run we just completed through the Alexandria, Virginia Branch territory on a 101" Cab-Over-Engine Stake Truck with a gross load of 11,000 pounds, the following is an outline of results obtained:

Total Mileage		10,013
Total Running Time		278 Hrs 48 Mins
Average Road Speed		36.3 MPH
Total Gasoline Used		880 Gals
Average Miles Per Gallon of Gas		11.4
Ton Miles Per Gallon of Gas (5½ X 11.4)		62.7

This run was made over roads of various grades and conditions, and at elevations from sea level to 3,000 feet.

Very truly yours,
FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Cab-over-engine Ford truck sets this economy record with Amoco-Gas

In the month of September 1938 the Ford truck shown above completed its 30-day economy run. This 101-inch wheel base cab-over-engine stake truck is the newest addition to the Ford Motor Company's truck line.

AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil were used exclusively. This truck, with a gross weight of 11,000 pounds, averaged 11.4 miles per gallon on this 10,014 mile run. AMOCO Motor Oil was changed every 2,000 miles; no extra quarts were needed.

This is an unusual economy run—for the course followed ranged from sea level to 3,000 feet altitude, covering sharp hills and long mountain grades. It included unimproved dirt roads as well as gravel and macadam.

LOWER OPERATING COSTS

This run demonstrated one important fact that thousands of AMOCO users have long known: AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil mean lower operating costs and smoother, better driving for cars and trucks.

You'll make the same discovery when you use AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil in your car. Stop at the AMOCO Sign of Greater Values.

Political Contributions

The Republican National Committee charges the Democratic National Committee with "defiantly flouting" a ruling of the Senate Campaign Investigating Committee holding that no Federal employe may legally contribute directly to the campaign of any member of Congress.

The occasion for this Republican outburst is a letter sent by the treasurer of the Democratic Committee asking Federal employes, including some under civil service protection, to make voluntary contributions "to meet a most unexpected emergency." No explanation is given concerning the nature of the emergency which has brought this urgent appeal for funds. But the Republican National Committee assumes that the money will be used to help elect Democratic candidates for House and Senate seats.

Even if this reasonable surmise is correct, it is doubtful whether the statute forbidding solicitation of political contributions from Federal employes is applicable in the present instance. The law says:

> It is unlawful for . . . any person receiving any salary or compensation for services from the Treasury of the United States, to directly or indirectly solicit, receive, or be in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving, any assessment, subscription, or contribution for any political purpose whatever, from any other such officer, employe or person.

It is an open question whether the ambiguous reference to "indirect" solicitation could be stretched to cover voluntary payments made at the request of the Democratic National Committee for purposes unstated. However, it seems plain that the spirit, if not the letter, of the law has been violated in the present instance. Rightly or wrongly, many Government employes will fear that failure to respond to this appeal would put them on a "blacklist." They well know that there are many ways of rewarding generous contributors and punishing noncontributors to party chests, despite the safeguards provided by law and civil service regulations.

In short, the systematic "shakedown" of Government employes remains possible so long as they are not protected against appeals for so-called voluntary contributions from outside party heads. The only sure way to deal with this situation is to pass legislation forbidding all party organizations and private individuals to solicit political contributions from Federal employes.

No Stigma Involved

Publication by the Department of State of lists of agents of foreign principals registered under the act of June 8, 1938, has led certain irresponsible individuals to swing the tar brush of obloquy against those whose names appear. The assumption is that they are all paid propagandists, using that term in its most invidious sense.

Any such assumption is completely unwarranted. Some of those on the list, actually a negligible minority, are admittedly press agents or public relations counsel for foreign governments. But the great majority are registered under this act because its scope is so broad as to require registration of many individuals in no sense engaged in propaganda in the customary sense of the word.

A case in point is found in certain press attacks launched against Henry P. Fletcher, former American Ambassador to Rome and former chairman of the Republican National Committee. His name appeared on the department's list because of the fact that he is president of the Italy-America Society. It happens to be an unpaid office, held in the past by such distinguished Americans as Charles E. Hughes, Thomas W. Lamont and Myron C. Taylor. To accuse Mr. Fletcher of being a "foreign agent," as some newspapers have done, is to be guilty of a reckless distortion of the truth. As Secretary Hull has pointed out in a letter to Mr. Fletcher:

> . . . It is sufficient to say that the act is broad in its terms and imposes the duty to register on many American citizens, companies and organizations, whose patriotism is beyond question and whose work is of a wholly unimpeachable character. Therefore, there is no ground whatever for assuming that the fact that your name appears in a registration statement submitted under the act implies any unpatriotic activity on your part or raises any doubt as to your being a loyal American citizen.

The Department of State has now followed this personal letter with a general statement pointing out that "The mere fact of registration under the act affords no ground for assuming that any person so registered is engaged in unpatriotic activity." It may be hoped that this will suffice to remove unwarrantable stigmas due, in the final analysis, to bungling legislation on the part of Congress.

After November Eighth

Harry Hopkins is more than a little disingenuous in his statement that "I look to see the relief curve go down at an early date, in spite of what some political enemies think. Our curve goes down as national income, productivity and employment go up."

One of the most effective charges made by critics of the Administration's relief policy is that its expenditures since 1933 have tended to go up in the months preceding Congressional elections and to go down in the summers of the off years. The coincidence is certainly striking and is too pronounced to be evaded by the threadbare device of calling comment thereon the work of "political enemies."

These charges are not answered, but are given further substantiation, when Mr. Hopkins announces, two weeks before the 1938 elections, that "I look to see the relief curve go down at an early date." That "early date," apparently, will prove to be shortly after November 8. By his statement the head of the WPA merely confirms the widespread expectation that relief expenditures will automatically fall off once the elections are over.

And Mr. Hopkins furnishes further ammunition for his critics, political or polemical, by saying that "our curve goes down as national income, productivity and employment go up." Every student of the issue knows that this has not been the case of late.

Statistics compiled by various Government agencies show that the upward turn in production and employment came last June. Since then, steadily for five months, there has been a pronounced advance which not even the recent European crisis was able to interrupt materially. But during this period of increasing prosperity the number on WPA rolls moved sharply up to an all-time high of over 3,100,000. No good reason has been advanced showing why the November elections must be held before a business improvement started last June can be reflected in a decline of the numbers receiving emergency relief.

So far this year expenditures for public relief have averaged about $241,000,000 per month, reaching a record figure of $259,000,000 in August although in that month, in the words of the Federal Reserve Bulletin, "there was a substantial growth in employment and pay rolls at factories." Moreover, these record-breaking pre-election relief expenditures have been additional to unemployment benefits, which were negligible before this year but which since March have been averaging $40,000,000 monthly.

It is all too evident that there is no coincidence, but on the contrary a decided time-lag, between improved employment and diminished WPA expenditures. To close this time-lag, and make the facts correspond with Mr. Hopkins' assertions, is an obvious duty of the organization which he heads. Grand jury indictments of WPA operations in New Mexico and New Jersey, plus rumors of similar proceedings in other States after November 8, may help as much as better business in bringing the curve of relief costs down.

Japan's Mandated Isles

When Japan resigned from the League of Nations in March, 1933, there was no break in the relations of that power with the Permanent Mandates Commission. The Tokyo government continued to send annual reports to the League concerning the administration of the Japanese mandate over the Marshall, Caroline and Marianne islands, and to be represented at the meetings of the commission. In so doing Japan admitted her legal and moral obligations as trustee for former German territory turned over to her at the peace conference.

In view of this record it is to be expected that Japan's abstention from the present sessions of the Mandates Commission will be interpreted as meaning intention to terminate the obligations she assumed as a mandatory power. This in turn creates the suspicion that the Tokyo government may disregard the prohibitions regarding the fortification of the islands which Japan administers as trustee.

Although not a member of the League, and unrepresented on the Mandates Commission, any such development would be of profound concern to the United States. Among the hundreds of Pacific islands in Japan's keeping are many which would make excellent submarine or air bases, constituting a major problem for American naval policy in the Pacific.

In this, as in so many other particulars, the American people are beginning to discover that the network of treaties embodied in the Geneva system was a vital part of the old foreign policy of the United States.

Place Of Refuge

The mass meeting held in Constitution Hall on Sunday, like similar meetings in other American cities recently, attests to the widespread anxiety over the possibility that the British government may close Palestine to further Jewish immigration.

Such action would be more of a calamity now than would have been the case heretofore. The situation of the Jews in central and eastern Europe has lately gone from bad to worse. And while the zone of persecution steadily grows, the places of refuge tend to diminish.

The Evian conference, called at the behest of President Roosevelt, and the inter-governmental body set up by that conference at London, may help alleviate the plight of some of the vast multitude of unfortunates. But the work of the refugee board is bound to be slow and halting. No wonder, then, that tens of thousands of Jews have looked hopefully in the direction of the Holy Land where, in accordance with the Balfour Declaration of 1917 and the terms of the 1922 mandate, Great Britain had solemnly promised to help establish a national home for the Jews.

It is not generally realized to what a remarkable extent Palestine has served as a place of refuge during the last few embittered years. More than half the Jews who have managed to flee from Germany and eastern Europe since 1933 found a haven in the Holy Land. To no small extent this influx of hard-working individuals, aided by the Jewish community the world over, has been responsible for the new prosperity that Palestine enjoyed until the recent troubles began. Palestine is poor in physical resources but the tide of Jewish immigration has made the land rich in human resources, offsetting the initial handicap imposed by nature.

With increasing immigration, however, has come increasing opposition by the Arab Nationalist leaders to the thesis embodied in the Balfour Declaration. They insist that Palestine is, and should be permitted to remain, an Arab country. But whereas Jewish immigration has been limited to a small region between the Jordan and the coast region, Arab states occupy the rest of the vast Arabian peninsula, in actual extent 100 times or more the area of Palestine and, in many districts, its equal in fertility.

Britain's responsibility in the issue is clear and unmistakable. First of all it is necessary to re-establish order in the Holy Land, a task which London is at last beginning to perform with energy. But that is not enough. It is also an obligation of honor for Great Britain to keep Palestine a place of refuge. To close the doors to one of the very few places on earth in which the hard-driven victims of persecution can find shelter would be a blot on the British record.

Not only because of humanitarian considerations, but also because of this country's treaty interest in the 1922 mandate, Americans have every right to protest against such a possibility.

The Statue Quo

It is comforting to be reassured that the War Department is content to let Washington retain the distinction of being the least fortified of the major capitals of the world. If this city were to bristle again, as it did in '61 when McClellan was drilling the boys at Arlington, life here would be less pleasant than is the case.

Still, we should not forget that our unfortified condition is at best a negative advantage. It would be a great mistake to become smug about it. Just because we need not be ridden with brass hats like Berlin, Rome and Tokyo, we should not ignore the fact that we are perhaps more thoroughly infested with bronze brigadiers than any other capital. We have as many object lessons as any city in the terrible by-products of war.

It might even be a valuable contribution to the national defense program if we were to ship some of these heroes and horses to positions of vantage at the more vulnerable coastal points, where they could be illuminated by floodlights at night. This might not be sufficient to scare off a really determined and powerful invader. But it would be calculated to shake his nerve a little.

Pretty soon the poor wheat farmer may be eating biscuits and the destitute tenant cotton farmer may be able to afford another gallus.

"President Calls Morgenthau and Bell for Conference on Next Year's Budget." —Headline. Well, well—we didn't know he cared.

"A man who murdered his wife for rifling his pockets was pronounced sane by a jury." We've thought all along that the husbands who let their wives get away with this sort of thing were the ones who were crazy.

A theatrical magazine reports that hundreds of contortionists are unemployed and destitute. One would think they would know how to make ends meet.

Has anyone thought to check up and see if a diet of milk and honey would supply all the necessary vitamins?

"Honey makes an excellent anti-freeze for your automobile," declares a writer in a motor magazine. It takes some persons a long time to find out things.

'Disastrous' Farm Policies

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The President has been badly misinformed as to the farm situation. What little so-called farm experts in Washington know about farming is a detriment to them and has proven disastrous to the United States as a whole.

It takes years of experience to even get a working knowledge of farming, as it is a business and not a science.

Wheat is now selling lower than in any other country; the yield was way below the estimate of the self-styled farm experts and much of it was light in weight and of poor milling quality. The price is so low that farmers are feeding wheat to their livestock as old crop corn is rapidly disappearing and the new crop is short and of poor feeding quality on account of late planting because of heavy spring rains.

The American farmer is now getting from 45 to 50 cents per bushel on the farm for wheat, while France has guaranteed a minimum price of $1.50 per bushel to their farmers. Germany lowered the tariff temporarily on wheat imports over $3, making the tariff 11 cents; on rye from $2 down to 10 cents.

Why did we import millions of bushels of wheat, corn and rye when the same grade of wheat was selling for 40 cents more in Canada than in the United States?

Wallace is trying to regiment the farmers of this country as the Communists did in Russia. Now the Russians are living on a starvation basis.

The Family Spirit

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just a few remarks in regard to a letter in The Post of October 14, signed "Another 100 Per Cent American."

It is obvious that he has very little love for the British, but there are many Americans whose English ancestors came to this country in 1632 and other early dates who still have a warm spot in their heart for the mother country. Like mother and daughter, we do not always agree, but the tie is there.

There are today many in this country who are trying to stir up trouble between us and England. In the war with England (to which 100 Per Cent American referred) we won our independence, and like the War Between the States, there should now be no ill feelings.

A MEMBER OF THE D. A. R.

'Press Responsibility'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial page of October 7 contains an excellent and timely article entitled "Press Responsibility." The article is all the more striking because, in the very same issue, aye, upon the opposite page from the editorial, there appear two columns dedicated to the end that Americans may hate the right people properly. Pegler lambasts the Nazis and Dorothy Thompson hammers again upon the iniquities of the Munich agreement.

But more than that, on the very first page, in the most prominent place, appear headlines leading one into believing that the Germans were overstepping the Munich agreement and going out of their way to harass the unfortunate Czechs.

In the face of such a concerted and well-directed effort to bring us up to the hating point for a war against Germany, your editorial stands out, a rock of decency and common sense in a raging torrent of hatred. So out of line is it with the general policy of practically every news organ in this bemused country, that one cannot restrain the impulse thus to set down a tribute to the editorial courage, decency, common sense and patriotism of the person who composed "Press Responsibility."

Suspicious Of Britain

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read, and still do read with avid interest, the points of view that the layman is permitted to project in your illustrious rag. After a long period of more or less remarkable self-control, my vanity to express the point of view of another amateur commentator has finally got the better of my restraint.

Since Munich, there appears to have started an increasingly steady stream of propaganda in the American press both from foreign correspondents and domestic commentators smacking of a suspiciously pro-British attitude relative to the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine by the figurative jellyfish more commonly referred to as the British Empire. It is now revealed that Great Britain, by its maintenance of a powerful (?) navy, has been a bulwark of protection to the European land grabbers for, lo, these many years.

The logical answer to this subtle propaganda, which answer no doubt reflects the sentiment of a large percentage of the reading public in this country, would seem to be as follows. From all that has been printed in the past, one thing is quite certain and that is this: Anything that Great Britain does, it does primarily in the interests of Great Britain. Any benefits that may accrue to other countries are, to use a phrase commonly seen on movie screens, "purely coincidental." Witness, for example, Manchuria, Ethiopia, Spain, China, and of course, Czechoslovakia. What I mean to say is that the words "Great Britain" are not exactly synonymous with the word "philanthropy."

If Great Britain sincerely desired genuine "appeasement" it would not, as it no doubt does, supply aggressor nations with instruments of aggression. It would not be surprising if Great Britain were found to be selling to both sides in the Spanish War, as well as in the "conflict" in which Japan, in its greed for territorial aggrandizement, is seeking, however forcibly, the "co-operation" of China in a most rapacious manner.

Thank God for a free press.

PHILIP WEINSTEIN.
Washington, Oct. 22.

"Pernicious System"

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: It is becoming increasingly apparent that any Administration which is permitted to raid the Treasury at will in order to promote new and novel schemes and create relief jobs of all description, is calculated to perpetuate itself in office for perhaps an indefinite period.

No one can deny that some form of relief is absolutely necessary but when PWA workers and others are at the mercy of political bosses, which fact has been repeatedly proven, and forced to vote as said bosses dictate, democracy is in a state of degeneracy and dissolution.

A vote that is not a "free vo" savors of Hitlerism. It has been frequently pointed out that both German and Russian citizens have the right to vote. To vote under such conditions is "like giving a man about to be hanged the privilege of pulling the rope that hangs him." Does free America want to adopt a pernicious foreign system?

It may prove a gigantic task to take politics out of relief but the time has arrived to make the effort. Democracy upon which our form of government was founded, appears doomed.

E. K. GOLDSBOROUGH.
Washington, Oct. 18.

The Palestine Muddle

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The daily additions to England's troubles in Palestine point emphatically to her habitual mistake of procrastination—the day and the conditions are gone when time can be counted upon to make up for action and a definite policy.

The Arabs have been allowed, and to this extent encouraged, to undermine British prestige all over the near East. The present reconquering of Palestine should have been done ten years ago and firmly maintained. Dictators have the immense advantage of being able, as soon as they decide on a course, to put it through.

The situation of the Jews—whose terrible plight in European countries makes it doubly necessary to immigrate to Palestine—is untenable, so much so that prominent American Christians are cabling the British government urging them to hold on to the Balfour declaration and be firm.

Inasmuch as the past few years have proved that they are not able to solve this Jewish-Arab problem would it not be the very time for the United States to give a practical and helping hand? She has the largest Jewish population and is not harassed with any outside problems. Unquestionably the great weight of American official prestige thrown on the side of Great Britain in maintaining this Jewish home in Palestine would do more than anything else in ending this Arab revolt backed by European intrigue. Private cables and advice are quite useless unless the United States is willing to take some responsibility in bringing about world conditions which will be for a common benefit.

In Praise Of Streamliners

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Until the golden chariot, of Biblical legend, "swings low," I will be content to ride hither and yon on our new one-man streetcar that encircles our fair city. To my mind, these beautiful streamliners which glide so swiftly and silently along prove a delightful method of transportation and are, incidentally, immeasurably safer than taxicabs or private cars. Indeed, I invariably breathe a sigh of relief when I board the one-man car, having found what seems a refuge from the innumerable hazards of the street.

The complaints which are occasionally heard, concerning the perils of the one-man car, are not only absurd but untrue. As a matter of statistical record, it was revealed at local streetcar hearings, when a most thorough investigation of the subject was made, that one-man cars are equally as safe as those manned with conductor and motorman. It is unjust to blame a streetcar for the death of some pedestrian who, while "jay-walking" is so unfortunate as to encounter a moving tram in his path, as has sometimes happened.

Edwardsian Epigram

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So much has been said, pro and con, about Prime Minister Chamberlain's visit to Adolph Hitler, that I have been testing my memory and wondering what the late Charles A. (Asbestos) Edwards, unequaled for synonyms and figures of speech, would have said about it. Mr. Edwards was at one time secretary of the National Democratic Committee, represented the Houston Post and St. Louis Globe-Democrat together with about 2,000 country weeklies. He was the life of newspaper row, with his witticisms, and to know "Charlie" was to love him. After many deductions I feel that had he lived he would have said that the visit was like a "flight of vivid guts." Sacred to his memory.

Debonair

THIS WORD, "debonair," was once very debonair. Sixty years ago, or so, it was made to do heavy duty, properly and otherwise. But styles change and words change with them. And today, we hesitate to say "debonair" even when that is the only word.

In the late 1860's and early 1870's a few old gentlemen, who had been debonair in their younger days, still wore blue swallow-tail coats with large silver buttons and adorned their necks with stocks. That style had been debonair once; in the '60's it was in use only by age, dignity and quality.

And here's another excellent word that has gone into the discard, "quality." "The quality" meant those of entrenched social position. Socialite is not quite the same thing; it is something lighter, fluffier, more evanescent; and is not always quite debonair.

About the time gentlemen wore swallow-tails in daylight—and sometimes sported flowered waistcoats—they also used Macassar oil on their hair and parted it in the back as well as in the front, so that, when they wore "white chokers," it was difficult for a near-sighted person to tell whether they were coming or going.

The young men of that period were quite debonair; they affected more modern raiment and perfumed themselves with eau de Cologne, bay rum and Florida Water. As far as nature permitted they cultivated curly hair, flowing locks of the Byronic type, and burnsides. But, whether they were young or old, Macassar oil was frequently present; and always suspected.

In those days people did not live in apartments or hotels—they lived in houses; and the houses occasionally were homes. The master of the house regarded himself as dominus, lord and master; and his wife was truly domina; she dominated everything in it.

Those were the days of the dreaded formal call and of stiff, old-fashioned parties; and gentlemen, calling or attending parties, achieved elegance by dousing their hair with Macassar oil. They were beaux, fine fellows; and a real beau, in ruffled shirt and scented up with Macassar oil, was a fearsome thing. Ladies did not smoke; and if smoking was necessary, it was only after the ladies had left the dining room; or in a room set apart. North of Louisiana cigarettes were taboo; and to make cigar smoke less objectionable the cigars were sometimes loaded with vanilla bean.

Now, Macassar oil, even a touch of it, would soil upholstery; and, while gentlemen were not supposed to loll or lounge in the presence of ladies, they did laugh and sometimes threw their heads back touching the back of the chair or sofa.

And, thereupon, arose the necessity for the anti-Macassar; which was a device for protecting the fine damask, satin, or silk-rep with which the furniture was upholstered. This anti-Macassar, or to speak plainly, tidy, was a bit of crocheted work, always white, pinned to the chair or sofa at a point where the head would most likely touch. But it has gone.

I was reminded of these bygone things during a call I recently made upon my cousin, Mistress Matilda Tench. She still lives in the old Tench mansion to which no new furniture has been admitted in 70 years. I have known the house fairly well ever since the day, about 65 years ago, when my father took me to be introduced to her ladyship; the only person in the family who had any money or style. As I recall that visit, we were ushered into the second-best room, which was furnished in horsehair covered chairs and sofas, all as slick as glass. I was a little, wriggly, nervous imp, still wearing dresses, and the fact that I was unable to maintain my seat upon the well-rounded overstuffed sofa, and the cool feel of the horsehair on my round bottom, commended that place to my perverse disposition. I used that sofa as a toboggan slide to the great perturbation of my father.

Mistress Tench has mellowed with age; but, when I met her on that initial visit, she was a little too gracious to her poor relations. This, with the instinctive perception of youth, I rather felt than knew. But I was quite aware that here was a distinctly handsome woman, dressed in black silk and wearing a white lace fichu.

Later on I noticed that her hair was crimped in front, parted in the middle, and done up in the back in a "waterfall" surmounted by a small but ornate tortoise-shell comb.

This stately presence rather awed me into silence for a few minutes; but, my two elders getting interested in the family talk, I reverted to my tobogganing to the obvious horror of my father and the polite deprecation of my cousin. Finally a loose horsehair ran through my starched paddies and gave me such a vicious stab that I set up a howl.

That brought the visit to an ignominious end; and, later, when we got home—but I refuse to go into that!

Fair Enough

Gentlemen

THE SIMPLEST CURE for the fears of those who think a great program of armament for this country would develop an aristocratic and warlike officer caste is to eliminate the word "gentlemen" from the ninty-fifth article of war. This article was lifted bodily from the British articles 150 years ago. The British had adopted it long before that, when the word "gentlemen" had a little meaning which has been lost by now.

There are no more democratic institutions in this country than the military and naval institutions within themselves. But, despite their internal democracy, under which the son of a four-star general enjoys no advantages over the son of a man with lime in his hod carrier's boots, the course does contrive to instill in the young gentlemen, as they are called, a strong sense of the social untouchability of the enlisted man's wife in relation to the officer's wife.

THE THEORY HOLDS that an officer is a gentleman and that an enlisted man is of a lower social order. They may not often examine the meaning and effect of all this, but it is apparent throughout the life of the services. In service emergencies officers and men become human beings with no human distinction, and the lawful authority of the officer commands obedience not because he wears finer feathers but because he is authorized to command.

But, in other times, the officer has his pick of the pubs, and the enlisted men, even though socially and intellectually compatible and perhaps desirable, are excluded from the officers' set and from places which they frequent. As a result they often are reduced to association with the riffraff of the post town. Civilian snobs cultivate the society of the commissioned personnel to the exclusion of the enlisted men and their wives, if any, and jokes which cropped up in England and here in the Great War about the problem of reconciling contrasts illustrate the artificiality of this segregation.

THE TRADITION ENDOWED the officer with an indefinable social superiority which he and the public knew he did not necessarily possess or feel. The public, however, instinctively felt that somehow an officer ought to be superior.

The French were much more democratic. Their officers have authority, but a general entering a room will click his heels and salute all present in a gesture of politeness, nothing more, and a buck private is not expeected even to look up. American and British officers—in the higher ranks at least—feel that they lose something of dignity and authority (perhaps that it is ungentlemanly) to frequent the haunts of enlisted men. It might be so in the event that the false distinction emanating from the word "gentleman" has driven the enlisted men—or "the people," as they used to be called in the Navy—to questionable places.

But worse than the preservation of the word "gentleman" in the ninety-fifth article would be the institution of social or political commissars to supervise the political regularity of the commissioned and enlisted soldiers. That remedy was used in Russia and later in Spain, and it is obvious that is must create a corps of snitchers who undermine the legal authority of the men with responsibility and appeal to the whining shyster nature of every guardhouse lawyer in the command.

"Dictatorship is built on the quicksand of one man's mortal span of life. It is in its very essence a one-generation regime that cannot perpetuate itself. It provides for no continuity and even its basic ideology may evaporate quickly once the voice of the master is stilled . . . for it is an axiom that dictators do not breed successors . . .

"There are strongly entrenched monarchist sentiments in the bosom of the German nation capable of sweeping the country back into the fold of royalty once the Nazi cycle has run its course. The German army is honey-combed with stanch monarchists; so are the ranks of the German middleclass. Hitler is not likely to crown himself emperor. There would be little Der Fuehrer could gain by adding royal trappings to the power already concentrated in his hands. He has no heirs to whom he could bequeath the crown if he took it. The German monarchists consider the Kaiser's favorite grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand, as the legitimate pretender to the throne."

Victims Of Courage

By Stephen Raushenbush

The Sudeten German Refugees

THE NOISE of crashing boundaries, breaking treaties and crumbling foreign policies has drowned out the S O S of those people who, above all others, have been the victims of too much courage. They are the German-speaking people of the Sudeten territories who stayed loyal to democracy and the Czechoslovakian Republic when their neighbors and friends were going over in droves to Henlein and Hitler. They were the last of the free Germans. They have, for three years, been the peacetime heroes of the world. Time and again they were offered peace without liberty, and refused it.

Now some thousands of them have fled to Prague and the interior of Czechoslovakia, only to find themselves unwanted, disowned, in danger of being extradited to the communities where they once fought against Henlein and Hitler. Others of them at this moment are living in the ditches of Noman's land between the invading German armies and the Czech armies, refused even the shelter against winter which a jail or concentration camp would meagerly offer. It is probably the scurviest fate that the indifference of the world has ever dealt out to those who pay the price of its peace. Their property, their homes have been confiscated. If they are forced back into the Sudenten territory they know that they can expect to meet the fate dealt out not to prisoners of war but to "traitors."

WHAT KIND of people are these? I talked with many of them this summer in Sudeten cities and towns. They are good looking people of mixed German and Czech blood, the result of 300 years of living together in Bohemia. The great majority are Catholics and Protestants, many of them very devout. A relatively small number of them are Jews. They are not big city people. They come from the farms on the mountains originally, and lived, most of them, in small manufacturing cities scattered through the Sudeten Mountains. They worked in glass, wood, textiles, coal mines and chemicals. They raised their children to become, like themselves, workers or lawyers or teachers. They are strong and quick, not very tall or beefy. Many of them look like the Germans of Saxony, which lies along the old border.

THESE PEOPLE had plenty of opportunity to scurry to cover under the Sudeten Deutsch Partei emblem. It would have been a kind of insurance for them. The Czech government was not punishing anyone for belonging to the Sudeten Party. And if the Sudeten threat that Hitler was actually coming sometime turned out to be true, their life and property at least would be safe.

The price they would have had to pay was a disavowal of all their beliefs in political democracy and educational and religious liberty. Up to April of this year they were told, over and over again, that Hitler was coming, and that they still had a chance to insure themselves. They declined. After April they were simply told that Hitler was coming, and that it would be too bad or them after that. This latter they believed; but did not share the almost hysterical faith of the majority that what had happened in Austria would happen to them.

The heroism of these people consisted in standing firm for the democratic way of life under very real threat of punishment when Hitler came, and under the punishment which a majority could exercise on a minority in the ordinary concerns of making a living and bringing up children. In addition to that they had to take the sins of omission and commission of the republic, their symbol of democracy, on their own shoulders. They lived not only as victims of their opponents, but as victims of their allies.

THESE PEOPLE who are now scattered around the interior of Czechoslovakia in barracks and barns without any place to live or work in Czechoslovakia, and unable to get visas to get out, may be loaded up at any time into trains and shoved back into Germany. Mr. Gedye reported recently to the New York Times that on the eve of the German troop invasion a whole trainload of them, headed for Prague, was shunted back into the German territory. The people in the train fainted and actually lost their minds while soldiers in the stations looked on. What good were they to the Czechs now?

People who believed in democracy were not wanted, and certainly not Germans who would give Hitler another excuse for asking more from the Czechs. Yet these people had been the first mobilized along the Sudeten border on May 21 when Czechoslovakia needed loyal men to hold its lines against the enemy within as well as the enemy without. Supposedly they are protected by a clause in the Munich agreement which gives six months for people to opt which nation they chose. But other clauses of that agreement, notably the one on plebiscites, are being ignored, and Czechoslovakia, it is clear now, is no longer able to resist extra-Munich demands from her powerful neighbor.

These people, when I talked with them in the cities or up in the little mountain villages overlooking Germany, told me that they were having a hard time trying to hold people loyal to democracy. They asked, what good does it do to talk to men about liberty when they are unemployed and getting 10 crowns (35 cents then) a week relief? What good especially when their neighbors who have joined the Henlein Party can go across the border and work in Germany for $3 a day and come home and spend the money here, where everything is cheap? That was hard for them to answer. This summer Germany had full employment. She was importing some hundred thousands of laborers from outside, and paying them in foreign exchange.

THE SUDETEN area, by contrast, had many unemployed and inadequate relief. It was the exporting area of the old empire, and had suffered most from the erection of customs barriers among all the succession states. It had suffered again most with the world crisis beginning in 1929. It had suffered again when Austria stopped buying from Czechoslovakia, after the Anschluss. All their sufferings the majority blamed on the Czech government. Those who were loyal to the republic were painted as men willing to see their fellows suffer indefinitely.

In addition, these democratic Germans had to share the responsibility whenever the Czech government made little mistakes of stupidity. One time by an oversight the government awarded public works contracts to the lowest bidders, who happened to be Czechs, and did not put into the contracts provisions that only local labor should be employed. So the Sudeten Germans saw Czech laborers coming from the interior to take their work. "It would have enraged a rabbit," the German democrats said, and hurried to Prague to try to undo the harm. These democrats took the lead in trying to give the German-speaking peoples some degree of self-rule. If they had received a little more support in time, they might have prevented the whole agitation from getting started, or going as far as it did.

Where in the world is there a place for people who had too much courage and are now the victims of their courage and ideals? In their great celebrations of the twentieth anniversary of their founding, this summer, their spokesmen talked about London and about Paris, and then spoke of Washington where Wilson had approved Masaryk's plans for a small democratic bulwark nation. His statue stands in Prague with the words "to save democracy." It is doubtful that England or France will take many of them. But is there no place for even 2,000 or 3,000 of these men anywhere in our empire, from Puerto Rico to Alaska, from Hawaii to Maine? They would be good citizens of a nation that proposed to stay democratic.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

This Year's Elections

OVERSHADOWING ALL OTHER questions in any popular election today, there is the question whether the party system in a democracy is still sound and effective. We know fairly well from the experience of other countries many of the symptoms of the degeneration of popular government.

Thus, we know that democracy becomes unworkable where the voters divide into two or more irreconciliable parties, into parties which no longer profess the same ideals, no longer seek the same general objectives, and are no longer loyal to the same conception of the state. This is the curse of the so-called ideologies in politics, that men think that loyalty to their political program is more important than their loyalty as citizens. Such a state of mind is a condition of latent civil war. It causes a paralysis of government, and such disorder in the daily life of the people that in the end there appears to be no escape and no remedy except force.

We know also that democracy becomes unworkable when one party becomes so powerful that all organized and normal and legitimate opposition seems hopeless. For the unlimited power of one party leads to excessive ambition, to recklessness, to complacency, and almost invariably in the end to corruption and inefficiency. In the opposition, deprived of normal means of expression, it leads to sullen obstruction, to irresponsible attack, and in the last stages of the disease to conspiracy. A monopoly of political power also discourages the rise of new men. It destroys the conditions of healthy, open, self-respecting debate, and thus it leads to government by slogans and by appeals to unreason.

NOW WHATEVER the returns may be in the hundreds of elections throughout the United States, the American democracy has already shown a decided capacity to throw off the germs of the disease. This has been shown first of all, by the refusal of the voters to divide into two irreconciliable camps, and then by their capacity to resist the world-wide tendency to concentrate all power in one party, and within the one party to concentrate all power in one little group of men.

This is impressive and encouraging because a democracy can live only if the sense of national union is stronger than the divisions of parties. And yet that union will be sterile and at last tyrannical if it rests upon the suppression of the party system rather than upon a fairly even balance among parties that are loyal to the same fundamental ideal.

THE FIRST GREAT FACT about the current elections is that in the past few months the voters have compelled the candidates of both parties and of the main factions within them to minimize, to accommodate, to compromise, rather than to accentuate their conflicts of principle. Some may regret this. There are some who dream of the day when the people will be divided into two great parties, each with its dogmatic creed, each with its rigorous tests of faithfulness to the creed. This dream would, I believe, be a nightmare, and to my mind the American constitutional system would become absolutely unworkable if the two parties ceased to be engines for reconciling differences and became militant and dogmatic.

The party system has worked in America precisely because there are conservatives, moderates and radicals in both parties, and in comparatively equal proportions. Because of this balance within the parties, the great issues of principle, except on one tragic occasion 70 years ago, have never been able to develop to the point where the safety of the Nation was threatened. It has meant that the central mass of moderate citizens has always been stronger than the extremists, and that the will to preserve the Nation has been stronger than the will to dominate and prevail.

IT IS THIS BALANCE which enables the American democracy to carry out the injunction of George Washington that since "the spirit of party" is in "constant danger of excess, the effort ought to be by force of public opinion to mitigate and assuage it." Since the party spirit is "a fire not to be quenched, it demands a uniform vigilance to prevent its bursting into flame, lest, instead of warming it should consume."

That is why we have no reason to regret the fact that the country is not on fire over some flaming issue of principle. It is a sign of political health that the ablest Republican candidates, like Mr. Jonn Lord O'Brian and Mr. Dewey in New York, Mr. Saltonstall in Massachusetts, for example, are not making a frontal attack on the "principles" of the New Deal but only on procedure, administration and particular measures; that the unpurged Democrats stand opposed to some but not all the New Deal measures; that Democrats like Gov. Lehman give only qualified indorsement to the New Deal record; that the wholehearted New Deal candidates have no desire to insist upon the fiercer controversies. All this means that the central mass of the voters who decide elections are not to be won by appeals that would hopelessly disrupt the national unity.

YET THOUGH NO ISSUE of ultimate principle has been defined or is being seriously debated, there has been a demonstration in this campaign that the voters do not wish the American two-party system with only moderate differences to degenerate into a one-party system managed from the center and led from the top. They have been profoundly right in defeating the so-called purge. For if that purge had been successful, it would have meant the destruction of independent judgment within the Democratic Party.

The destruction of independent judgment within the dominant party would have meant the undisturbed leadership of that party by those who wish to raise irreconcilable issues. This would have meant that instead of opposition within the party acting as a restraining influence, all opposition would have been driven outside and compelled to rally in an irreconcilable opposition. Instead of a two-party system with radicals and conservatives to balance one another in each party, we should have been well on our way to a sharp division between a radical party and a conservative party. Experience shows that where such a division exists the radical party is soon led along by its revolutionary left and the conservative party by its reactionary right.

This is the road to ruin under popular government, and the refusal of the people to take it is evidence of their fitness for self-government.

BUT THIS IS NOT all. Paralleling the refusal of the Democrats to become the party of one faction, we may observe the effort of the Republicans to escape from the dominance of one faction. The emergence of Mr. Saltonstall, of Mr. Dewey and of Mr. O'Brian in the East, and to my mind also the rise of Gov. Philip La Follette in the Middle West, is a sign and a promise that the Republican Party is ceasing to be a rump of hopelessly defeated conservatives and is becoming once more a representative party.

I do not pretend to know what the election returns will show. But I am certain in my own mind that the resurrection of the Republican Party as an available alternative to the Democratic Party is something greatly to be desired by all who look beyond immediate issues and the immediate ambitions of particular candidates. An effective opposition, loyal to the same fundamental principles and objectives as the party in power, is a necessity under representative government, and there are good reasons to hope that it is coming into existence.

Threat to U. S. Held 'Within'

By Mark Sullivan

'Nazi-Fascism'

WHAT IS THIS ENEMY we are asked to arm against? It is not nations as nations. No one thinks there is any danger of Germany sending an army to the United States, seizing a part of our territory and annexing it to Germany. Nobody thinks that as to Italy. Nobody thinks that as to Japan.

One almost wishes our danger were that simple, that concrete. Every American would be able to see it. Every American, seeing it, would resist it.

But it is not nations seeking our territory that threatens us. It is not nations as nations at all. It is not nations—it is an idea. It is not Germany as Germany—it is Germany as Naziism. It is not Italy, it is Italy as Fascism. It is not Japan, it is Japan as Nazi-fascism.

I adopt the term "Nazi-fascism" because Naziism and Fascism are substantially identical, and the thing that Japan practices is the same. We must use a single term for it. America must become familiar with this term if we are to be accurately informed and think clearly. To understand this term, and some others, is the first step toward intellectual and spiritual preparedness against the thing the term means. After we achieve intellectual and spiritual preparedness, military preparedness will take care of itself.

NAZI-FASCISM is a form of society and government practiced by Germany, Italy and Japan. To extend this form of society and government throughout the world, the three nations are in military alliance. As to countries that are near to them, they will impose Nazi-fascism by direct use of force or threat of it—as Germany has done in Austria and Czechoslovakia, as Italy and Germany are attempting in Spain, as Japan is doing in China. But they will not attempt to impose Nazi-fascism on the United States directly by arms, certainly not for some years and only after some intervening developments.

They might attempt to impose Nazi-fascism on South America by arms. If they do, we will be called upon to use force to help South America resist them. For we have a policy of helping the Latin-American countries to resist imposition upon them of an alien form of government.

ONLY IN THE SENSE of helping South America resist armed invasion do we have present need of increased armament for defense against Nazi-fascism. Excepting that, we have little present need for increased armament. It is not as an armed force that Nazi-fascism threatens us. To us, the threat is in the form of an idea. Against us, the threat is not merely external—it is also internal. Against the threat from within, our need for defense is immediate and great.

Just what is this idea that threatens us? I have called it Nazi-fascism. Another term for it is "authoritarian government." Another is "totalitarian government." These, like Nazi-fascism, are terms with which America must become familiar. Authoritarian government is that which asserts unlimited authority over the individual, permits to individuals and minorities no rights that the government need respect, denies the power of courts to protect the individual against government, forbids the functioning of any congress or parliament, denies the right of free speech, denies the right of religious or business or organized labor to function apart from government.

ONE MORE FACT BELONGS in the elementary understanding of this problem. Authoritarian government is practiced not only by Nazi-fascism but also by communism. Nazi-fascism and communism have only one important difference. Communism forbids the right of the individual to own property; Nazi-fascism permits it, with great limitations. Aside from that, the two are practically the same. Of the two ideas, communism is the original, Nazi-fascism is an imitation. The imitation is spreading faster than the original. Both are practically equally odious to America.

Neither Nazi-fascism nor communism is going to be imposed on the United States by force of arms. The present threat to us is not external; it is internal. Both Nazi-fascism and communism are busy within our borders. They compete with each other to determine which shall be successful in seizing control. In one daily newspaper within the past week there were two dispatches: one, from Syracuse, N. Y., described a Nazi meeting. The other, from a town in Missouri, described the breaking up of a public meeting addressed by a member of Congress who attacked communistic tendencies.

FOR DESCRIBING the activities of both groups, the convenient term is "authoritarian government." As organized groups and as individuals the advocates of authoritarian government are busy everywhere. There are within our own Government, or close to important individuals in our Government, persons who consciously or unconsciously, advocate or condone features of authoritarian government.

Herein lies our immediate menace. It is of little use to arm against authoritarian government coming from abroad if at the same time we step by step adopt authoritarian government at home.

Asian Aftermath

By Barnet Nover

The Eclipse Of Hongkong

THE FALL of Canton is the greatest victory won by Japan, the most disastrous defeat sustained by China since the capture of Hsuchow last May. But even more than a Chinese defeat it is a defeat for Great Britain.

Since the undeclared war began more than 15 months ago, China has lost a staggering amount of territory to the invaders. Peiping and Tientsin and their surrounding area went early. Shanghai followed in due course, although not before the Chinese defenders had given an excellent account of themselves. Nanking fell and so did Hsuchow. Japan is now in possession of every major port on the Chinese coast, of every major Chinese city east of Hankow and according to present indications will also be in possession of that Yangtze metropolis before very long.

Despite this long succession of defeats, the Chinese have fought on. There is every reason to believe they will continue to fight on as long as they have an army in the field and as long as Chiang Kai-shek heads that army. The loss of Canton and with it the loss of what little customs revenue was left to the Nationalist government is a serious blow. Even more serious is the fact that with Japan now astride the railroad running from the British leasehold of Kowloon (opposite Hongkong) to Canton and from Canton to Hankow, the principal route for the shipment of supplies from the outside world to the fighting Chinese forces has been blocked.

NONETHELESS, the fall of Canton need not of itself prove decisive so far as the ultimate outcome of the war is concerned. Should Chiang manage to keep his forces out of Japan's clutches, the occupation of the South China metropolis may merely be another episode, if an important one, in a war of long duration in which Japan will perforce continue to extend her already extensive lines still farther into the interior. In the long run, certainly, Canton, like Shanghai and Peiping and Tientsin and Hankow, will remain Chinese.

This is, of course, scant solace to the harassed Chinese. But even such a crumb of comfort is not available to the British as they contemplate the present plight of Hongkong. For with Japan in possession of Canton, Hongkong's position vis-a-vis South China, its commercial hinterland, is precisely that of the rump of Czechoslovakia vis-a-vis Germany.

Until last week Hongkong was the great entrepot of British and world trade with South China. Its warehouses bulged with goods destined to be trans-shipped by rail or steamer to Canton and from there distributed over a wide region and with Chinese goods sent by way of exchange. The rocky island which the British took from the Chinese nearly a century ago and made into one of the greatest of world ports was the jumping-off place for British commercial expansion in South China. Now Hongkong can only continue to fulfill its historic role by grace of the Japanese. It is wholly at the mercy of the Japanese army of occupation in Canton. And there is no reason to believe that Nippon's militarists will show any great consideration for British interests.

ON THE CONTRARY, the indications all are that Britain will receive contemptuous treatment at the hands of the island empire. Fearing nothing but force, the Japanese militarists have discounted the possibility of strong action by Great Britain. Without much delay they have applied the lesson of Munich to the Far East. And the fate of Hongkong may be the fate of British holdings elsewhere in China.

Thus the Munich accord will continue to plague Great Britain and France for a long time to come and it will not be Czechoslovakia alone which will have to pay the price of the peace established in the Bavarian city.

After Canton what? It is doubtful if the possession of this city and the railroads leading out of it will long satisfy the Japanese. The dynamics of the situation in which they find themselves in China compel them to go forward until they are in a position to impose peace, which means until there is an end to organized Chinese resistance. This suggests, first of all, that efforts must now be made to cut off what lines of communication with the outside world remain open to the Chinese armies.

OF THESE the most important is now the railroad running from French Indo-China to Yunnanfu, capital of Yunnan Province in southwest China.

The Japanese cannot get at this road directly unless they extend their present lines in South China by many hundreds of miles. But they can accomplish the same purpose by successfully putting pressure on the French to stop arms shipments to the Chinese. They have tried to do so on repeated occasions in the past and with some, but never complete, success. They are certain to do so again with more force than ever. And if the French are balky there is a real possibility that the Japanese will carry out their threat to occupy the Island of Hainan, which can be made a dagger pointed at Indo-China.

When that threat was first made some months ago it produced a strong counterthreat by Great Britain and France. But that was long before Munich. Now British and French warnings to Japan to go slowly may have no deterrent effect on Tokyo. Nothing succeeds like success.

It all gets down to this: Hongkong's first line of defense was not the military and naval preparations that had been made on the island to ward off direct invasion, it was Britain's prestige. When that prestige suffered a sharp eclipse at Munich, Japan saw no further point in holding off the attack on Canton.

The protection of the interests of the British crown colony then depended on the Chinese capacity to resist the invaders. In this instance there was no resistance worthy of the name. Because China was weak, particularly so in the Canton area, British interests have received a devastating blow. And China's weakness is in part, certainly, a consequence of British unwillingness to help her. So the chickens come home to roost. But it would be a mistake to suppose they are Britain's chickens alone. They are also France's. And ours, too. For our trade with South China, though less important to us than Britain's Kongkong trade is to her, is now also at the mercy of the Japanese.

Officials Weigh Bus Line Extension

The Public Utilities Commission took under advisement yesterday a petition to extend the western terminus of the Glover Park-Trinidad bus line following unanimous agreement on the proposal between Capital Transit officials and residents of that area.

The proposed route, as explained by company officials, would be north on Thirty-seventh street northwest and Tunlaw road, west on Calvert street, south on Fortieth street, and east on Benton street to Tunlaw road. The new western terminus would be established at Fortieth and Calvert streets.

World's Fair Structure

Scene: Office of Mr. Whalen at the New York World's Fair.

Characters: Mr. Whalen and an exhibitor who has just signed for space.

Mr. Whalen—Now what kind of structure do you propose?

Exhibitor—Well, we sort of thought we would build a building that would look like a building.

Mr. Whalen (indignantly)—Nothing like that is permitted. We're very particular in that respect.

Exhibitor—We planned an oblong building with all the doors and windows in the orthodox places and . . .

Mr. Whalen—Stop! If you have any queer ideas like that, you'd better get rid of 'em. An oblong building at the World's Fair of 1939! And with the windows and doors in the usual places! Are you crazy?

Exhibitor—It was our belief that simplicity might be a good idea and that the public would appreciate a building it could understand.

Mr. Whalen (hotly)—We don't want any buildings the public can understand. The buildings at this fair must baffle the public . . . they must baffle the builders . . . they must baffle me!

Exhibitor—We had a fixed idea of the building we'd like to exhibit in, but you make it difficult for us to know what to do.

We have made the mistake of hiring a sane architect.

Mr. Whalen—You should have known better. He is not too sane, I hope.

HARRIS TWEEDS
Isle of Harris

$60

It has been said that the wardrobe of any well-dressed Britisher is never without a country suit of Harris Tweed. Seeing these, the reason becomes obvious. Hand-loomed and hand-woven on the Isle of Harris, the fabric calls to mind visions of heather-swept Scottish countryside . . . while the comfort and ease of the suit are eloquent testimony to the painstaking needlework employed in its making. We sincerely recommend them to any gentleman who does not intend to spend his winter indoors, toasting before a radiator.

Your Figure

Women Needn't Be Flabby After Child Birth

Look to Hollywood Stars Are Mothers Have Good Figures

By Ida Jean Kain.

WOMEN BLAME too much on their children. So many letters say, "I used to have a lovely figure before my baby arrived, but ever since then I have been flabby and my measurements have not gone down."

True enough, you probably did have a lovely figure until the children began to come, but you didn't need to lose it. Look at the Hollywood figures! Some of the most beautiful stars have had children.

The difference between their figures and yours probably is in the fact that they exercised. Stretched muscles do not regain their tone without some effort on your part.

Girdle a Help

Wearing the correct girdle is a help, but it is only an auxiliary measure. It does nothing toward toning the muscles, nor does it prevent the accumulation of fat. A good girdle will prevent your becoming overtired, but you must exercise to strengthen the muscles.

Another valuable auxiliary measure is the uplift bra, but here again you must have exercise for the stretched muscles—in this case, the pectorals supporting the bust.

You can begin exercise very soon after the baby arrives. Doctors now agree that extremely mild exercises may be started during the first two weeks, while you are still in bed. You should not, of course, exercise at this time without your doctor's approval.

Regain Slim Lines

But, even if you lost your figure 10 years back, it is never too late to regain those slim lines. You may have to exercise for some months before you notice any marked improvement, but you can have as slim and lovely a figure as you ever had. Here is an exercise for both the pectoral and the abdominal muscles:

POSITION: Lying flat on the back, knees bent and feet on the floor, arms down at sides on floor.

MOVEMENT: Draw the small of the back in to touch the floor and, inhaling, raise the arms without lifting them from the floor until they stretch high overhead. Then, exhaling, lower the arms back down to the sides and relax the muscles of the abdomen and lower back.

Mary Haworth's Mail

When Girl Asks Man to Accompany Her to Subscription Dance, Who Pays for Tickets?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Thank you for your stand on the "dutch treat" system. My sentiments coincide with yours, but I am confronted with a situation which puzzles me and I would deeply appreciate your advice. Recently I learned that my State society is going to have a dance at a local hotel and I thought I would enjoy going, as I had not previously known or heard of its existence during my several years' residence here. I asked a man friend if he would care to go with me, in case I decided to go, and he replied that it would give him great pleasure to do so. I have investigated the affair, have definitely decided to go and have so informed him.

Now I am in a quandary as to whether it is my duty to buy the tickets. I have never before asked a man to take me to an affair and have gone only when they have invited me to accompany them. So I do not know if it would be considered "dutch treat," or just my rightful duty, if I were to buy the tickets. It would embarrass me no end if I were to buy the tickets and thus offend him; and also, if it were possible to construe the gesture as going "dutch treat." Your kind advice will be appreciated. Sincerely, PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED: The coined phrase, "dutch treat," is a figure of speech which, freely translated, means that each person pays his share of expenses incurred by a given party, entertainment or recreational outing of any sort. A group of men, or two men, may lunch, dine, go to the theater, play golf or what-have-you, with the implicit understanding or outspoken arrangement that each shall pay his individual share of the total outlay. A pair or a group of women may do the same. Or a mixed group of men and women may adopt the plan, as in the case of an office party, let us say. This is known as the "dutch treat" system of entertainment.

This share-and-share-alike system of entertainment is not to be confused with the type of hospitality you hypothecate in your foregoing letter. It is perfectly good social usage for a woman to invite a man to be her guest at a subscription dance given by an organization of which she is a member and he is not, just as she may, likewise, invite him to be her guest at the theater, or for a concert or lecture or similar event for which she may happen to possess (or deliberately, with him in mind, acquire) a pair of tickets.

Everyone concedes the propriety of a woman's inviting a man to her home for tea or dinner or bridge; and it is a piece of the same pattern—no less appropriate, no less conventional—for her to invite him to participate, as her guest, in certain other social events of the type described above. In such instances, she is as much the hostess as she would be under her own roof. It is her gracious and resourceful way of broadening the scope of her hospitality. Or, in some instances, it may be her way of substituting one brand of hospitality for another which is not possible or feasible in her particular set-up.

Since, in this case, it is your State society which is giving the dance; since you have asked the man to be your guest and he has accepted, you have no choice but to supply the tickets. It would be contrary to gracious and accepted social usage to confront him with the last-minute necessity of buying them. It would be tantamount to asking him in for tea and expecting him to supply the sandwiches and cake; or to supper and expecting him to arrive with the groceries under his arm. Have the tickets safely stowed away in your evening bag before you set forth on the evening in question, and either hand them to the ticket-taker yourself, or, if you like, offer them to him in a tentative sort of way as you take your place in the in-going procession of guests. M. H.

The Hard of Hearing

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: One of the most potent educational media in this country is your column. Will you help the one in ten suffering from defective hearing? Will you devote some space to this situation during National Hearing Week, October 23 to 29? Once a year we hold National Hearing Week. The Governor of every State in the Union proclaims it and the President of the United States lends his support.

There are between 15 and 20 millions suffering with hearing trouble. Would you be surprised to learn that defective hearing has turned tens of thousands of children into criminals and social misfits? And don't overlook the accident toll that rolls up because little Johnny didn't hear the auto horn or warning signal. There are thousands of little Marys being left back in school, not because of dullness or stupidity, but because of poor hearing. Sickness often affects children's ears. While at play, a child may be struck by baseball, fist or fall.

There are remedies for this unnecessary evil. Lip-reading and medical treatment will help the hard-of-hearing person to lead a normal life. Sometimes hearing aids are of value. Yet the plight of the hard-of-hearing person often is made worse by the many fraudulent clinics, foundations and firms making all kinds of claims . . . Because of their intense hope to hear better, the hard-of-hearing are most vulnerable to fakers

The American Society for the Hard of Hearing is the only national social welfare group for the hard of hearing. It has 114 chapters in practically every State in the Union. It spends all its efforts and money in making life easier for the hard of hearing, establishing hearing centers, outfining programs, etc. This is a vital national problem. May we count on your aid? Sincerely yours,

ERWIN M. FREY, Director,
Public Education Campaign,
A. S. H. H.

Four Point Program

DEAR MR. FREY: If publication of your letter can be construed as lending a hand, here you have it. The printed matter which accompanies it properly belongs in other columns. However, since your appeal would be incomplete if the society's "four-point" program were omitted, I shall append that portion, as submitted:

"This program provides for routine hearing tests so that impaired hearing may be early discovered; prevention of deafness by proper medical treatment and intelligent management of the handicap; readjustment and proper training of hard-of-hearing school children so that they may maintain their places in class with normally hearing children; and rehabilitation of men and women afflicted with poor hearing so that they may hold a normal place at home, in society and in business."

Piquant Peasant Dirndl

As gay and spirited as a Tyrolian folk dance is this all wool dirndl. It offers dash and diversion for a somber toned wardrobe. Skillful use of color and fabric have been related to each other. The blouse is royal and cream striped wool, very much like horsey English tattersals. The soft kid girdle which attaches blouse and skirt picks up the brilliant blue of the stripes. The full billowing skirt is done in black hopsacking which has a way of blending well with an all-black coat and accessories. This dress may posses just the punch missing in your present collection of dignified clothes

Poor Posture Is Only Fault Of U. S. Girl, Says Expert

Eileen Scott Observed European Women Found Americans Have Best Feet and Legs Also Strong on Nails and Hair

By Marshall Adams.
The Post Fashion Editor.

The most beautifully attired legs and feet in the world belong to American girls, according to Eileen Scott, widely traveled beauty authority who has compared the pulchritude of many nations and found women of this nation lacking in only one beauty virtue.

"Hosiery, shoes and cosmetics are wisely selected and cherished by American women," observed the British-born Mrs. Scott. "These same women spend millions a year on cosmetics and they know how to make-up as well as any movie queen.

"Their nails and hair are, like their well-proportioned legs, things of beauty. But their postures and walk leave much to be desired."

Teutonic Figures Good

Having recently returned from a visit abroad, where for many years she has served as health and beauty advisor to European grand dames, Mrs. Scott has had ample opportunity to observe the comparative beauty attainments of European women. She remarked that "women of gentle German birth care little for the time-consuming cosmetic and beauty rituals essayed by the average American girl. German husbands require wives to make excellent cooks and mothers, consequently there is no such thing as a sylph-like housefrau in Germany.

Eileen Scott warmed to American beauty attainments as she contrasted our unquenchable desire for healthy charm with the haphazard laissez-faire of women of other nations. Her enthusiasm to bring true beauty principles to local women of moderate incomes has led Miss Scott to create a school which incorporates class study of proper diet, cosmetics and hair knowledge, individual fashion counsel and of prime importance, good posture.

Holds Posture Heads List

It is in the latter that the inherently lovely American girl falls down partly because of the rigorous schedule that she and her modern mothers and grandmothers have set for themselves, according to Mrs. Scott. Her informal European methods of beauty instruction aim particularly at the Washington business girl, who is usually too busy with dictation to realize that she is growing round-shouldered, pot-tummied, or acquiring a dowager's hump, due to faulty posture while sitting and standing.

"English girls of the poorest classes are conscious of holding their shoulders up," Miss Scott observed. "Even pathetic shop girls who earn but 20 or 30 shillings a week (equivalent to $7 or $10 a week in American money) remember to walk erectly and hold their heads high. Their small salaries permit them no thrice-annual luxuries such as the permanent wave which every American girl must have, yet these girls are examples of queenly bearing on chimney sweep budgets."

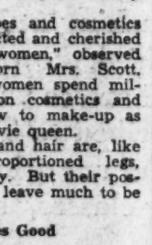
Prunella Stack, who was the inspiration for Miss Scott's desire to offer fundamental beauty precepts to low-salaried girls, was mentioned as an example for ugly ducklings to follow. Miss Stack is a self-made British beauty authority who attained posture perfection and was married to a Scottish lord recently.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Oct. 24.

WE ARE losing our leading stargazer, and New York's loss is certainly Los Angeles' gain. For Myra Kingsley, the beautiful blonde astrologist, is leaving our town to set up a home in the sprawling Southern California metropolis, and many of us who know and cherish her will miss Myra seriously.



ALICE HUGHES

La Belle Kingsley, an authentic beauty of the eye-filling type, deserted a concert career for the pursuit of the heavenly bodies, and worthily inherited the mantle of Evangeline Adams when that famed personality died. She is just back from a visit to her future home, and told me about some of the Hollywood parties I attended—as though I didn't know. But she has info on the newer comers. For instance, at Charles Boyer's recent housewarming, Hedy LaMarr was the smash wow of the evening—and you didn't need the planets to predict that. Moreover, the sensation of "Algiers" is just as lovely as she looks on the screen, and is quite as fascinating. Myra also reports that she found Joan Crawford the sincerest girl she met on the coast, and that Joanie-woanie wants to adopt a boy and a girl. And now the lovely Kingsley wants to plunge into that strange scramble. Baby, you can have it!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Mrs. Elizabeth Faff upset our Mayor LaGuardia the other day with a distracted squawk that our municipal radio station, WNYC, played the national anthem far too often, and at difficult hours. Mrs. F. wanted to know specifically whether she had to hop from bed or the bathtub whenever the speaker gave out the tune. Hizzonner was stumped. Finally the flag association ruled that when sitting in the living room, one should stand—but whenever the action would be forced or unnatural, such as eating at table or when splashing in the tub, one should let it go.

Toast to Tomorrow

I AM AN OPTIMIST:

I think each fall when I put away my old summer clothes that surely something will happen so that I won't have to get them out next June and have the hems changed and the collars freshened.

I naively believe that when I get my bureau drawers cleaned and my desk in perfect order that from that time on I am going to be too strong-minded ever to let them get cluttered up again.

I am convinced that some day, somehow, I am going to get my job and my home organized so that they will run smoothly and that I will have a lot more time.

I still have faith that when I get all the letters answered from old friends I've neglected, questionnaires filled out, and bills paid that I can really sit back and relax and that another batch won't arrive in the next mail.

I keep on ordering chicken pies in restaurants fully expecting to find one that is not full of potatoes, carrots and gravy.

I still experience a thrill on seeing the postman thinking that perhaps this time he is going to bring an invitation to the White House, a letter from some old beau who has never been able to erase my image from his mind, or even—a check.

I AM AN OPTIMIST:

I start out hat hunting each new season with the childish expectancy of finding a milliner who really understands me.

I buy dresses just a little too tight in the waistline, secure in the faith that they will fit in a week or two after I have done those exercises I cut out of the paper.

I keep on buying suits blissfully believing that I will be able to find the kind of blouses I want to go with them.

I cling to the dogged belief that I can find a two-occasion dress that will be fit for even one occasion.

I still think I can buy a spring dress in early March that will look "fallish" in late August, and that I can find an outfit in September that will look "springish" in April.

I fondly imagine that the $16.95 dress I buy at a little out-of-the-way shop will be taken for a $29.50 model by my more ingenious friends.

I AM AN OPTIMIST:

I am sure that some day I am going to get around to reading "War and Peace," "The Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire," "Ulysses," the complete works of Proust, "Gone With the Wind" and everything else I some way missed along the way.

I expect confidently to see Niagara Falls, the harbor at Rio, the steppes of Russia, the road to Mandalay, London, Paris—and of course, Carcasonne—before I die.

I intend to renew ties and talk over old times with all the old friends whose personalities continue to haunt my memory.

I expect ultimately to get around to doing some deep breathing and "spending more time in the open."

I keep on cherishing the illusion that I am really going to stop being petty, catty and gossipy and become a fine noble soul just as soon as I can get some time to work on myself.

I can't get rid of the idea that in spite of Hitler, the national debt and the rise of prices and skirts, the next ten years are some way going to be a little better than the last ten.

Yes, I am an optimist—I believe in tomorrow.

English Walnut Is Popular

As recently as 1919 the almond was America's first choice among the tree nuts. Today the English walnut is the favorite, with California producing almost our entire supply. This year's crop is slightly below average, but the quality is up. Oregon is becoming an important walnut-producing State. Five-sixths of the walnuts we eat are raised on our own West Coast. Some Italian sorrentos are imported occasionally, also a few French chaberts. These last have small meats, but in the opinion of many are the best tasting walnuts of them all.

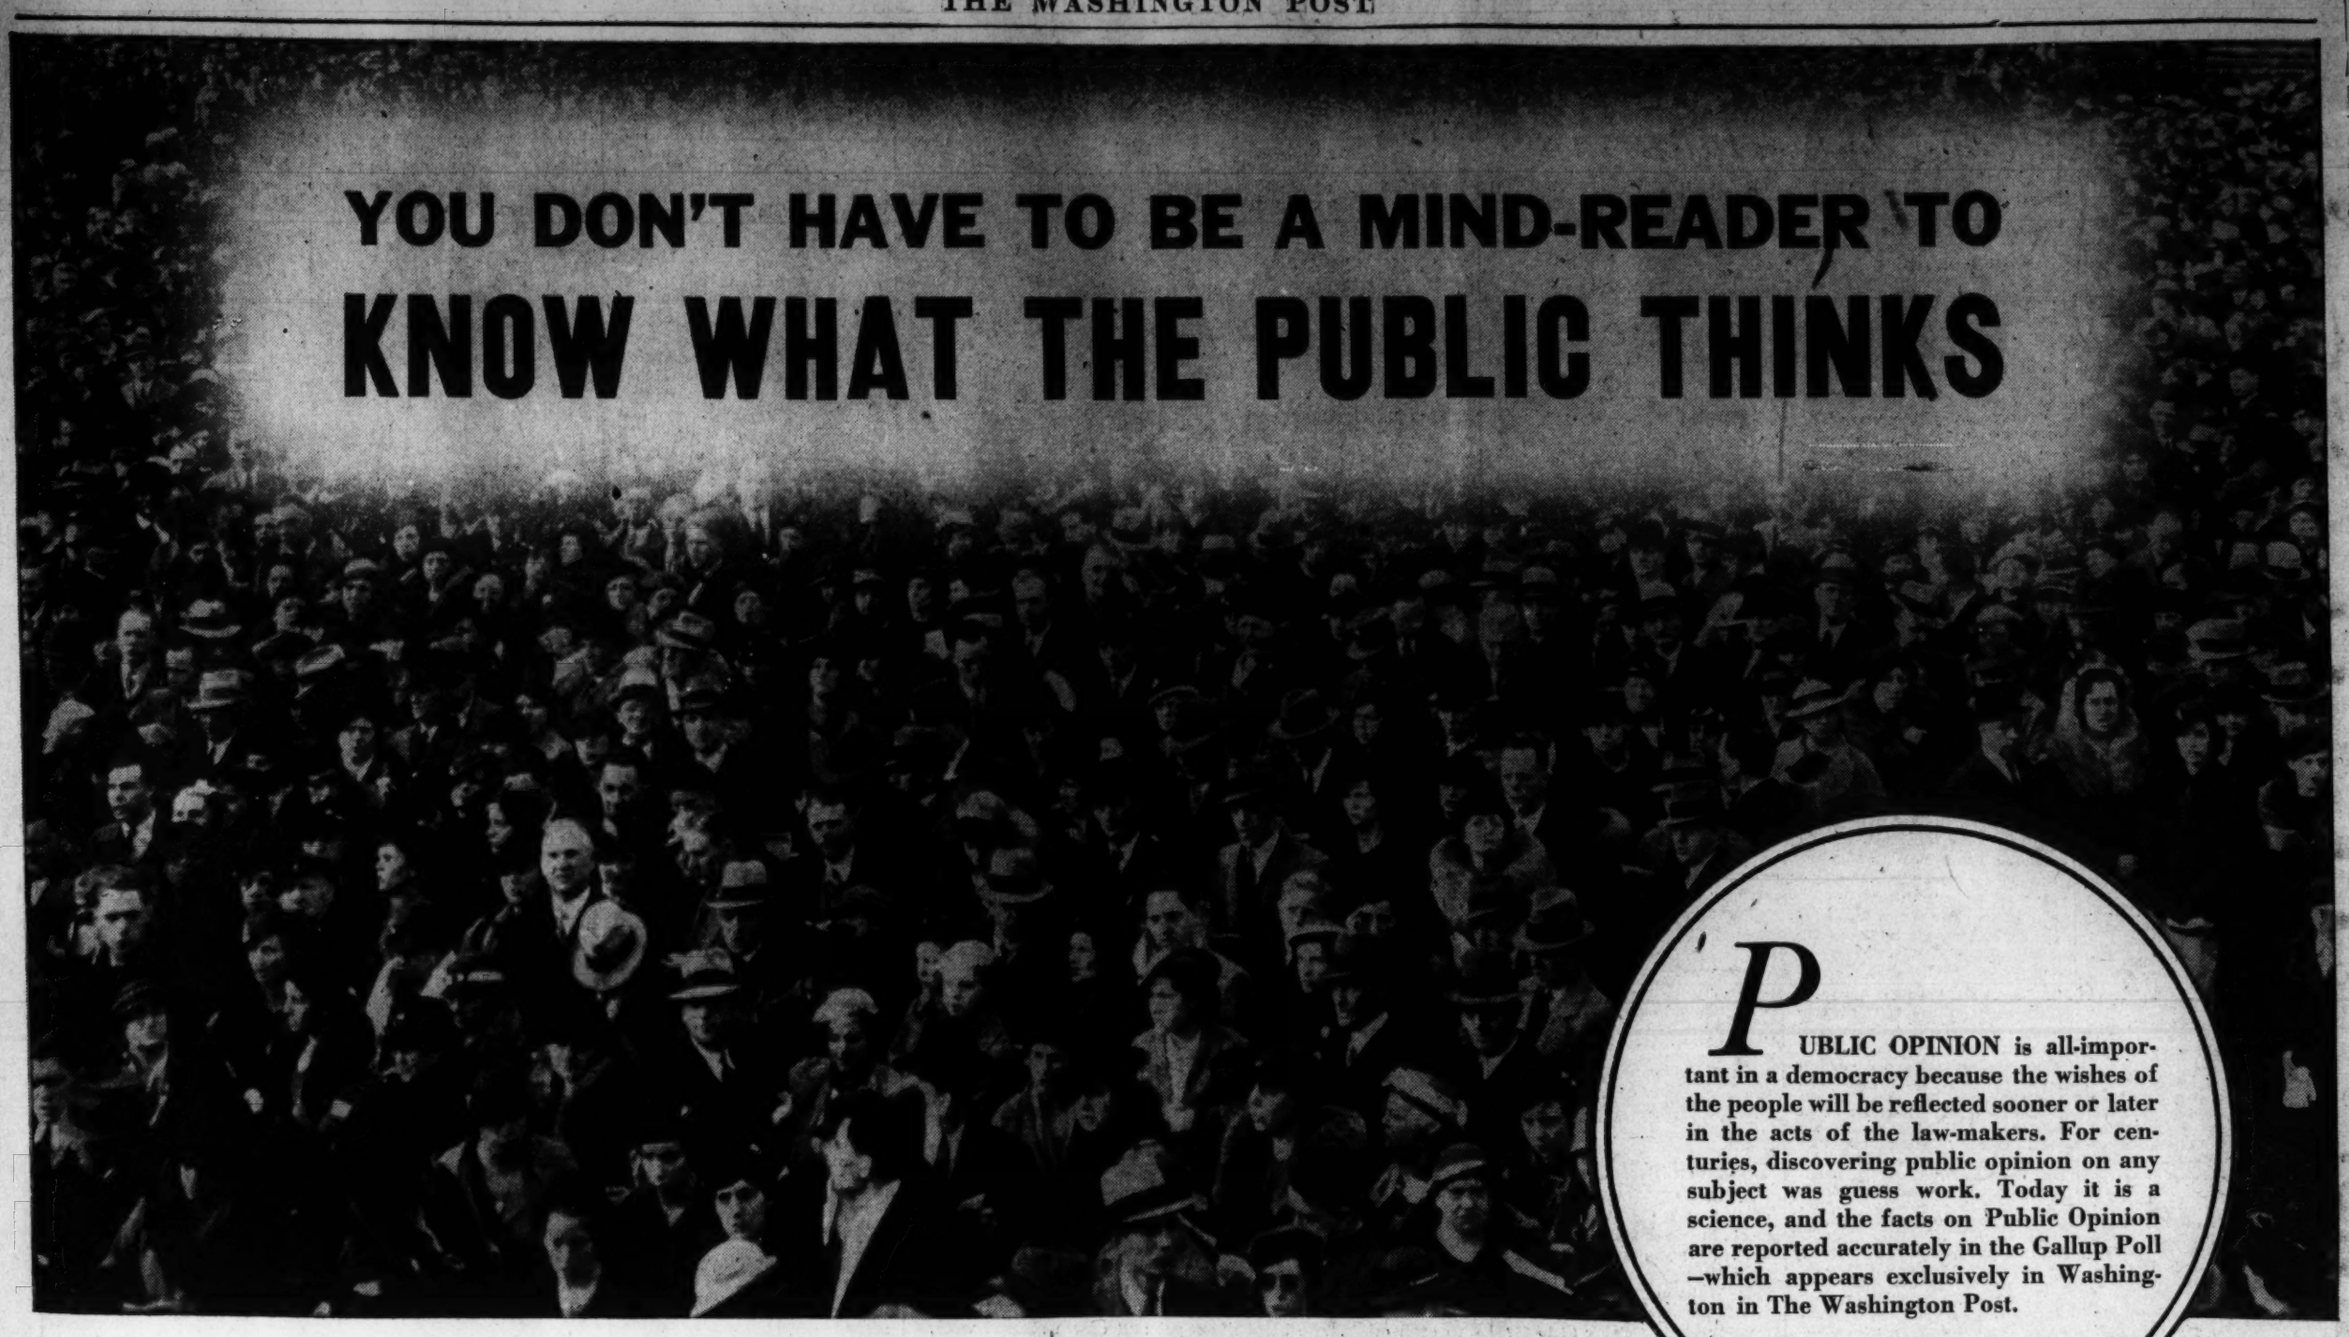
YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE A MIND-READER TO KNOW WHAT THE PUBLIC THINKS



PUBLIC OPINION is all-important in a democracy because the wishes of the people will be reflected sooner or later in the acts of the law-makers. For centuries, discovering public opinion on any subject was guess work. Today it is a science, and the facts on Public Opinion are reported accurately in the Gallup Poll—which appears exclusively in Washington in The Washington Post.

"That's only your opinion. You should read The Gallup Poll. 62% of the public is in favor of the schools teaching the facts about communism, socialism, and fascism."

"Why bother teaching the facts about communism, socialism and fascism? Only a small group is in favor of it."

"There's no question about it: Italy started this whole mess of re-armament."

"You're close. According to the Gallup Poll the public thinks Germany is more responsible than is Italy."

The accuracy of the Gallup Poll has been proved time and again. In 58 out of 64 local national elections, the Gallup Poll correctly predicted the results.

"Most accurate barometer of public opinion," says Newsweek. "Unique . . . authoritative," says Life Magazine. And colleges and teachers, too, praise its value. "When I was teaching at St. John's College, I had my students follow the weekly studies of the Gallup Poll as published in The Post. I am now teaching at Babson Institute and I think the analyses of the Gallup Poll are so valuable that I have subscribed to The Washington Post and am using them each week in my classes," says Julius S. Duncan.

Students, colleges, libraries have all wanted a summary of the Gallup Poll surveys. Now such a summary is available—reprinted from the Public Opinion Quarterly. Send for your copy today.

"I wonder what the public thinks about the Federal Government spending millions to help control venereal diseases."

This Booklet Gives You Summary of 100 Gallup Poll Surveys

This booklet—a reprint of an article which appeared in The Public Opinion Quarterly for July—tells you what the public thinks about re-armament . . . about social issues . . . about Government spending . . . about Government control of radio . . . about old-age pensions and many other vital subjects that are discussed everywhere . . . every day. WASHINGTON'S HOME NEWSPAPER

Sally Clark Blows Hot Again on Song Subject

To Resume Caroling After Marriage
To Be Wed in Boston December 3
Changed Mind About Retriing

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

First she is; then she isn't, and then again she is. That's the story to date anent Sally Clark, John Roosevelt's sister-in-law, and her caroling career. At the conclusion of her engagement at a New York night club htis week, she will return to Boston to complete plans for her wedding to George X. McLanahan, on December 3. But according to latest reports, she will let nothing interfere with her career.

Not so long ago when she moved up her wedding date, she told friends she had decided to retire from the microphone. That announcement came on the heels of the frigid reception she had from New York critics, and it looked as if there might be some connection between the two. But now, she has changed her mind, and intends to resume her professional singing early next year. She said as much recently when she announced her list of bridesmaids and let it be known that John Roosevelt would be on hand as an usher when she and Mr. McLanahan exchange vows in Boston's fashionable Emmanuel church.

Finds Singing 'So Much Fun'

As Miss Clark expressed it, she expects to continue her night club warbling even after marriage, "because it's so much fun."

This business of society butterflies flitting about in the professional world just for the fun of it is getting to be a habit. Time was when the upper crust left such jobs as torch-singing, modeling and what-not to the girls who had to support themselves. But since money-making ha sbecome a high feminine fashion, every other debutante and socially registered matron you meet seems to be out to try her hand at something.

Latest social songbird to fly onto the field is Cobina Wright, jr., who will begin an engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria on November 3. Like Sally Clark, Miss Wright recently has had cupid's arrows flying in her direction, and a few weeks ago her romance with Philip of Greece hit the headlines. Now, however, she declares her career is her only interest, and that she hopes to make a name for herself first as a songstress and then as an actress.

May Come Here For Engagement

Miss Wright, who is related to the Whitney clan through its connection with the famous May family, is a descendant through her mother of William Bradford, Governor of the Plymouth Colonies in 1612. Also, she is a cousin of the debutante, Diana Blythe, through Michael Strange, the latter's mother, who formerly lived in Washington.

Rumor is going the rounds that a popular Capital night spot already is negotiating with Miss Wright in the hope she will come here for an engagement when she finishes at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Miss Wright went to Miss Hewitt's School with Brenda Frazier, New York's No. 1 glamour debutante of the season; the former Priscilla St. George, who is now Mrs. A. Biddle Duke, and that popular post-deb, "Mimi" Baker. She gave up her life of leisure to carve a career for herself "because it's so much fun." So it seems she and Sally Clark have a lot in common.

Your Guide to Glamour
in this important message about
"HEART O' THE PELT" FURS

The glamour of furs, the glorifying, flattering qualities they bestow on women the world over are well known to you; but the manufacturing of furs, the selection, matching, dyeing, blending of prime peltries are as mysterious to the average person as the far-away lands that are inhabited by many of the fur-bearing animals. Only the most widely experienced in the handling of peltries can adequately determine the good or bad points, and judge the actual value of fur coats.

Choose Your Furrier Before You Choose Your Furs

It is on the word of the furrier, his experience, and the confidence you have in him that you base your decision. Here, at Saks, for the benefit of those who wish to purchase the finest of our stock, we have identified our better furs by placing the HEART O' THE PELT label on them. These labels DO NOT go on every fur in our stock but only on those that represent—in our personal opinion and obviously to the satisfaction of the many thousands that have purchased these coats these past years—the MOST SELECTED PRIME PELTRIES, THE FINEST WORKMANSHIP, THE MOST INGENIOUS STYLING AVAILABLE. With the purchase of every HEART O' THE PELT fur you receive a guarantee from this firm that's been in the manufacturing and selling of furs here in Washingon over half a century.

'38 Death Rate Lowest in U. S. History

Falls 8.5 Pct. From '37 Car Fatalities Off Fifth Only Cancer Toll Up

By the Associated Press.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24.—The people of the United States have been healthier in the last six months than at any time in history.

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the Public Health service and director of the country's largest medical service and research organization, declared today that unless something unforeseen, such as an epidemic, occurs the Nation will have in 1938 the lowest death rate ever known.

His observations were made just before opening tomorrow of the sixty-seventh annual meeting of the American Public Health Association which is expected to bring 5,000 physicians, surgeons, nurses, hygienists and social service workers together.

The death rate from all diseases in the first half of 1938 decreased 8½ per cent from the 1937 rate, Dr. Parran declared, being only 11 deaths for every 1,000 persons.

"Although this decrease in the mortality rate is reflected in nearly all the important causes of death, about 60 per cent of the decrease is accounted for by the decline in the number of influenza and pneumonia victims," he said. Deaths from flu dropped 65 per cent and pneumonia 25 per cent.

The downward trend in the number of deaths from tuberculosis has continued in 1938, Dr. Parran pointed out, and the rate is 10 per cent less than last year.

"The widespread efforts to prevent traffic accidents are apparently achieving success," he added, "since the mortality rate from automobile accidents for the first half of the year is 20 per cent less than during the similar period in 1937."

The only important cause of death which showed a higher rate this year than last was cancer, which was 3 per cent greater. This does not necessarily mean that cancer is on the increase, the public health official explained, but indicates that the disease is being better diagnosed.

Last winter's epidemic of measles, which continued into 1938, resulted in a death rate due to that disease of more than four persons out of every 100,000 population, about four times the usual toll.

A substantial net gain in the Nation's population resulted from the marked decline in the major causes of death and the decline in the number of both maternal and infant deaths, Dr. Parran said. The number of mothers lost in childbirth was 15 per cent less than in 1937 and the number of babies saved was 9 per cent greater than last year.

sue; and all bonds issued in the last six years were actually authorized by vote of the people and they covered expenditures for construction of hospitals, roads, grade crossing elimination projects, and employment relief.

An attack on "the good faith, honesty of purpose and independence of" Alfred E. Smith, Franklin D. Roosevelt and himself, as governors of New York, Lehman said was "a gesture absolutely unworthy of a man who aspired to the high office of Governor and I say that without any qualicflation.

"Let me tell you, Mr. Dewey, what I know the people of New York State fully realize—that Gov. Smith and Gov. Roosevelt accomplished more for clean, decent and independent government in each year of their several terms of office than you have accomplished during your entire lifetime; they did so quietly, with dignity and without the blare of trumpets of self-stimulated publicity."

O'Connells Attacked

Dewey, in a radio speech, declared the "boss" of Albany County who had helped persuade Lehman to run again was Dan O'Connell, one of the three brothers who, according to Dewey, run a political machine that "could have taught tricks to Tammany Hall in its heydey."

The Republican candidate promised to tell Wednesday "of corruption of the ballot, violation of voters' secrecy, the packing of the grand jury and violation of civil liberties" in Albany County, where the O'Connells hold sway.

No Democratic Governor can cope with the O'Connell machine in Albany, Dewey said. The O'Connells, he said, are too high in the councils of the party.

His allegation that the Democratic bosses were packing the grand jury in their political bailiwick came on the heels of a report from Albany, to Dewey headquarters, that a subpoena had been issued for Dewey to appear before the grand jury there and testify concerning corruption alleged in the campaign.

Dewey's radio addressed opened with the statement that he was ripping "the lid off the vicious mass of corruption which exists within the very shadow of the capitol of this State."

He charged that through their political power the O'Connells—John J., or "Solly," Edward J. and Daniel P.—forced the beer of the Hedrick Brewery, a "family enterprise," into 200 of the 259 grills and taverns in the State capital, with threats of reprisal if the beer was not accepted. In some cases where other beers had been bought, Dewey asserted, he has affidavits to show that the offending saloon keeper was harassed by Government officials, with consequent loss of business.

Peace between the O'Connels and a saloon keeper who offended them, Dewey said, was made through the mediation of a former Albany sheriff, Joseph Henchy.

Dewey invited Democrats who dislike racket rule to join him in the fight to overthrow it. Once again he took pains to eulogize his opponent, Gov. Lehman, as a conscientious man, and to portray him as weary of office.

Americas Urged To Show Europe Solid Trade Front

The United States Chamber of Commerce urged yesterday that the approaching Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, take steps to halt inroads of non-American countries into this hemisphere's foreign trade through the use of Barter agreements and manipulated currencies.

In an apparent reference to Germany's trade practices, the organization made public a report by the Foreign Commerce Department Committee which pointed out that at the Montevideo conference in 1933, Secretary of State Hull took the lead "in having the American nations agree to adhere to the principle of equality of treatment, particularly through inclusion of the unconditional most-favored-nation clause in treaties and agreements."

The committee added:

"It is highly essential that once again, at Lima, major emphasis be placed upon the importance of adherence to and strict observance of the principleof equality of treatments."

2,000 Canaries 'Hitch' On Caribbean Liner

The birds were described as exhausted when they descended on their midocean refuge, but after a night's perch were off at dawn, like good early birds.

Motors Parade Of Progress Arrives Today

To Be Met by Hazen Parade Is Planned To Set Up Circus

A delegation of city officials and leading citizens will meet a fleet of 25 streamlined transports of the General Motors Parade of Progress Exposition at Bladensburg road and the District line at 2 p. m. today.

Members of the delegation, who were invited by Francis G. Addison, president of the Board of Trade, will be Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Superintendent of Police Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and Edgar Morris, chairman of the Greater National Capital Committee.

They will welcome to the city John M. Jerpe, director of the exposition and, with the help of a large police motorcycle escort, will conduct the transport fleet to the show grounds at Fourteenth and Pennsylvania avenue. The exposition is expected on location at 3 p. m. A crew of 50 technicians will set it up.

The greeters will lunch with executives of General Motors at 12:15 p. m. at the Wardman Park Hotel and will accompany them to greet the caravan as it comes to the city from New York.

Commissioner Hazen, Addison and Maj. Brown will ride with C. A. Lewis, of General Motors, in the first car. Van Duzer, Morris, Jerpe and J. B. Woodside, of General Motors, will ride in the second car. A third car will carry reporters and Robert Emerick and Robert McKnight, of General Motors.

The caravan will reach the downtown section by way of H street, Massachusetts avenue, Sixth street and F street.

Crime Does Pay, But Not Too Well, D. C. Yeggs Find

Taking as his text the example of safecrackers who broke the Sabbath for 12 hours of labor, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, might have preached a convincing sermon yesterday on the subject, "Crime Doesn't Pay."

The yeggs chose for their labors safes in the Douglas Shoe Store, 905 Pennsylvania avenue northwest; the Hazzard Shoe Store at 911 Pennsylvania avenue, and the Regal store at 915. In the first instance they found $35 in the strong box. In the second, after hours of toil, they found nothing and left without so much as trying on a pair of shoes. In the third they hacked away at a safe door only to discover that it opened onto another door. They knocked off for the day.

Police estimated they must have worked for at least 12 hours and that no less than three men were on the job. That's 36 man hours of labor, or less than $1 an hour, from which must be deducted transportation to and from work—probably in taxis—and meals.

Frank Fay's Right To See Son Upheld

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (AP).—Barbara Stanwyck, film actress, lost her appeal today in the California Supreme Court to prevent her former husband, Frank Fay, from visiting their 6-year-old child, Dion Anthony Fay.

Miss Stanwyck appealed from an order of Superior Judge Goodwin Knight, of Los Angeles, giving Fay permission to visit the child every other Saturday, and weekly on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The actress contended her former husband, because of alleged drinking, was not a proper person to visit the boy. The decree gave Fay the right to visit his child, but did not specify times.

U. S. Catholic Women Hear Papal Letter

Convention Blessed Mass Celebrated Secretary Reports

By the Associated Press.

Biloxi, Miss., Oct. 24.—The National Council of Catholic Women in convention here today received the blessings of Pope Pius XI.

His message, read by Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel of New Orleans, stated:

"The Holy Father in token of profound interest in the deliberations of the National Council of Catholic Women in annual convention sends the delegates the paternal apostolic benedictions, invoking plenteous Divine grace upon them and their praiseworthy undertaking."

Mass was celebrated today at the Church of the Nativity by the Most Rev. V. O'Hara, D. D., Bishop of Great Falls.

The report of the executive secretary, Miss Agnes G. Regan, said that in the last year diocesan councils had been established in the Diocese of Little Rock and in the Archdiocese of Detroit.

The National Council of Catholic Women was organized 18 years ago when the Most Rev. Joseph Schrembs, Bishop of Cleveland, requested the presidents of national organizations and women who had been active in Catholic work to meet in Washington.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Nowhere in this gaudy Capital, except perhaps at the White House, is there a gaudier, giddier procession of patriots than marches through Jim Farley's vast dark-paneled cathedral of an anteroom (where Frances Conn presides in greater grandeur than any receptionist in Washington, perhaps in the world) and across his enormous expanse of red carpet. Here is Mecca for the faithful.

Frances Conn ... grandeur

The Hon. Jim sits behind his desk at one end of the long room, not quite the size of a tennis court. Behind him is a chaste fireplace, and above it a great oil painting of Ben Franklin. As he sits, he faces a large photograph of the President above another fireplace at the far end of the room . . . at his left elbow is a battery of four telephones and two push-buttons.

• • • •

In the riddle of 1940, Mr. Farley is Sphinx No. 2 . . . In proof of the affectionate relationship between him and Sphinx No. 1, there stands on a table a photograph of Jim as he looked in 1914, in a baseball uniform. On the back of it, in the President's handwriting:

"To Jim himself, in memory of his hair."

But Jim does not sit passively behind his desk when the faithful arrive. Probably he has his coat off and stands in the middle of the figured red carpet, a heroic genial figure of a man, meeting the petitioners halfway, his vest unbuttoned for work at close quarters. He gets to the point quicker than most high officials.

• • • •

They race through at a lope, but not too quickly for the warm handshake, the quick appraisal and understanding, the concise report, the exchange of tacit promises, the warm farewell. When the pilgrims are running strong he can see 100 in a morning. They may not be in there more than 90 seconds, but they go away happy.

• • • •

After a morning of this sort with dusty political pilgrims from afar he may need a showerbath, for he is the cleanest of men, and there's a glass-doored shower in the simple tan-tiled bathroom behind him; and beyond that a news printer brings in the last word, in a tiny alcove, rattling away in the background . . . Almost inaudible is the efficient murmur of the postal service all around.

• • • •

Here to the grand vizier come the local nabobs and small-time sultans, congressmen, State chairmen, national committeemen, Government officials, celebrities from Hollywood and New York, people to ask small favors and promise big ones. Usually they have scant time to sit down on the two large red-dish-brown sofas, the ten leather chairs; and some are awed a little by the solemn glow of the four wall lights shaped like the Federal fasces, topped by official eagles.

"—Jim's gallery of faces"

People keep sending Jim Farley all sorts of gadgets, knicknacks and souvenirs; he gets almost as many as the White House . . . But in the austerity of his office, only a few find room; a wooden eagle carved by a WPA artist, a piece of petrified wood, an aviation plaque from Lily Pons' husband, a couple of brass donkeys, a huge globe of the world.

• • • •

In the smaller anteroom, where the magnetic Bill Bray, his secretary, shuffles the choicer celebrities, the walls are covered with photographs almost to the ceiling; all autographed . . . One wall is lush with gubernatorial faces; most of the inscriptions are extravagantly affectionate and respectful. There are only three women's faces, however; Mrs. Farley, Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Perkins of the Cabinet. The prize picture is one of Jim, jr., when he was a little chap, reaching up to a mail box slot. It bears the legend: "I'll speak to Dad about this!"

• • • •

Some of the photos are of banquet scenes; others are intimate moments with The Chief and other top Democrats. One shows Mr. Roosevelt's gathering under the tree on Jefferson Island during the court fight last year, with more shirt-sleeved big shots than you ever saw under one tree, and Harry Hopkins in a bush-coat, of the style popular on some campuses.

• • • •

Jim Farley is away a lot these days, calking the dikes and dredging for 1940. But when he's in town, the river of Democracy flows through this suite at high tide. It never gets above Jim's knees. Not since William Howard Taft has so much geniality been concentrated in one man around here; and Jim has much more bounce. Plus one of the best digestions in the high places.

Conference Fills Virginia M. E. Pulpits

Last Independent Act Union Set Next April Orphanage Debt Paid

By the Associated Press.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 24.—Reading of pastoral appointments which affected many churches in the State brought the 156th meeting of the Virginia Methodist Conference to a close here today.

The meeting was the last for the conference as a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. The conference will become a part of the newly formed United Methodist Church next April.

The statistical report showed that 11,525 persons were added to the church rolls last year for a net gain of membership of 2,541. The total membership of the conference was listed as 168,782, while Sunday schools in the conference have enrolled 123,252 persons, an increase of 3,004 over the preceding year.

A total of $1,904,644 was raised from all sources, mission societies contributing $284,268 of this amount.

The orphanage was reported to be out of debt and caring for 174 children. Twenty-four preachers were licensed.

Boundary changes listed for six districts in the conference included:

Charlottesville District - Temple Hill and Gentry churches on Green circuit to be discontinued, quarterly conference of Green to take charge of property, Milton and Hunton Avenue charge to be discontinued, Hunton Avenue Quarterly Conference to take charge.

B. T. Candler, presiding elder; Albemarle, O. L. Hags; Amherst, S. L. Dumville; Batesville, H. W. Johnson; Charlottesville, First Church, D. D. Holt, E. E. O'Neal; Charlottesville, Hinton Avenue, R. Virginian Convicted In Automobile Death

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—William Hardy Moore, Harrisonburg, Va., truck driver, indicted for manslaughter in a collision in which Michael E. McKenzie was killed and several injured July 3, was found guilty by the Circuit Court today. Balford Grapes, this city, indicted jointly with Moore, was acquitted.

Nice Seeks Foe's Stand On Lotteries

Challenges O'Conor Will Not Sign Bill Issues Warning Tours Queen Annes

By the Associated Press.

Centerville, Md., Oct. 24.—Gov. nice said tonight that he was "unalterably opposed to lotteries in any form" and warned voters against the referendum to be voted on in the general election to permit lotteries.

He told Democrats at his first rally on the Eastern Shore in the gubernatorial campaign that:

"The only opportunity given to voters to express their conviction is to vote 'Yes' or 'No' on the proposal to legalize gambling—nothing more. One of the State's safeguards against lotteries is removed through a constitutional amendment . . . The State House will be flooded with lottery bills, just as surely as day follows night.

"The one moral safeguard the people have is to vote against removing section 36 of article 3 from our constitution. This section as it now stands prohibits lotteries and it should be left right where it is—in the constitution."

He warned if the constitutional prohibition is repealed "it would make possible not only a State lottery but also private lotteries, to be conducted by gamblers and their associates."

Nice said as long as he is Governor he would "never sign a lottery bill," and added, "but I ask more than that. I ask the voters to make sure that no Governor has the opportunity of signing a lottery bill."

He asked his Democratic opponent, Attorney General O'Conor, to make clear his stand on the lottery referendum, saying:

"On numerous occasions I have asked Mr. O'Conor whether, in the event the income tax amendment is not approved by the voters on November 8, did he, if elected, expect to fall back upon an increase in the real estate taxes, an increase in the tobacco tax and the mandatory sales tax, all of which he advocated in 1937.

"If his position is now that he will not go back to his 1937 tax plan, then he must have in mind a State lottery made possible by lottery amendment.

"Mr. O'Conor has been asked on numerous occasions where he stands on this great moral issue. I quote one answer he made to the question:

"'As to a State lottery or series of lotteries, this question is being submitted to the people by referendum, and if the people vote in favor of it, I, of course . . . would go along with it.'"

"This is a vaccillating answer. It is not leadership. On an issue so vital . . . evasions and concealment will not do. A man who aspires to the high office of Governor must take a positive stand prior to the submission of such a question. . . . My position is clear."

O'Conor will lead the Democartic drive into Queen Anne's tomorrow.

Elkton, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—Attorney General O'Conor criticized the fiscal policies of Gov. Nice tonight, listing numerous instances in which he said the Governor had failed to keep promises.

O'Conor, accompanied by Senator Tydings and other State and county candidates, spoke at the armory after canceling a tour of Cecil County during the day because of rain. The speech inaugurated a tour of the Eastern Shore.

"We all recall that in his anxiety to become Governor . . ." said O'Conor, "Gov. Nice made many promises upon which the people relied. Among other things he faithfully promised to reduce the cost of automobile licenses to a flat rate of $2 per car. This promise, recklessly made, has neither been redeemed nor has there been any bona fide attempt to redeem it."

Price Seeks Fund For Operation Of Carillon

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Gov. Price said today that he would confer with Conservation Commissioner Wilbur C. Hall in an effort to obtain funds for the active operation of the carillon here.

The carillon was erected as Birginia's memorial to its World War soldiers and houses a museum of war relics. Many of them are on display but some of the more valuable relics remain in storage in need of renovation for their preservation, Hall informed the Governor.

An appropriation of $6,500 was asked of both the 1936 and 1938 General Assemblies for the operation of the carillon but was denied.

The Governor said that he would see if funds could not be diverted from some other source to preserve the relics in the museum.

Eastern Shore Gretna Green Faces Loss if Law Is Passed

By the Associated Press.

Snow Hill, Md., Oct. 24.—This Worcester County center, "Gretna Green" of the Eastern Shore, faces the loss of a lucrative marriage license business if a proposed law requiring a 48-hour lapse betwixt license and altar is approved at the general election November 8.

Though its fame as a marrying place for out-of-State residents has not been generally broadcast, figures showed today that Snow Hill has been a popular spot with hundreds of Virginia and Delaware couples.

Marriage license laws in those States, with restrictions not embodied in Maryland laws, have been held responsible.

Delaware has a law requiring a 48-hour lapse between the time the license is obtained and the wedding takes place. Virginia laws require that both bride and bridegroom be 21 years old, and both must appear in person to secure a marriage license.

In Maryland the only requirements are that the bridegroom is 21 and the bride 18. Only one need appear to apply for the license and the marriage can follow immediately after it is obtained.

So across State lines Virginia and Delaware couples have come by the dozens to get married in Maryland. Since the first of the year 351 licenses have been granted.

Maryland U. Coeds Have Studied 'Home Ec' for 17 Years But They're 'A Little Afraid' as They Care for First Baby

William Howard Nalley, of 2419 First street northwest, is shown with his nine "mothers" and his real mother, Mrs. Paula Snyder Nalley, at the University of Maryland "practice house" where seniors in home economis learn to take care of a home. Others in the picture are Mary Speake, Luray, Va.; Harriet Cain, Felton, Del.; Edith Sparling, Washington; Esther Gross, Sharpsburg, Md.; Betty Bain, Washington; Doris De Alba, Glen Burnie, Md.; Virginia Bowling, Wicomico, Md.; Alice Lang, Norwalk, Conn.; Marie Hardesty, Newburg, Md.

In a sense, it was the stork that arrived yesterday, right in the middle of the University of Maryland's home economics course.

The stork came in the person of Mrs. Paula Snyder Nalley, attractive senior majoring in home economics, who brought her 8½-month old son to Practice House on the campus, where for the next six weeks students will take care of him as well as the rest of the house.

Every aspect of running a private home—from cooking and waiting on table to purchasing food and supplies—is normally included in the curriculum; but this is the first time in the 17 years wife of William Nalley, National that Practice House has been part of the university's home economics course that a baby has been included.

Mrs. Nalley, who besides being Billy Howard Nalley's mother, is one of the eight students who will take care of him, said she was "confident" the six-week experiment will be a success. Each of the girls in turn will be Billy's nursemaid.

Billy's arrival at Practice House last night was marked by a mixture of excitement, joy and a certain amount of appresension on the part of his future nurses. Only one of the girls admitted any experience at all in bringing up young brothers or sisters. The others confessed complete ignorance of the intricacies of the care and feeding of 8½-month-old babies.

Miss Frances Bryant, faculty adviser of Practice House, assured the reporter—and, presumably, the students—that Billy was an extra-special brand of non-crying baby. Anyway, no matter what the future holds, Billy lived up to that reputation during his first half-hour of life in Practice House. With wide blue eyes, he stared at the cooing girls who gathered around him—and he laughed.

Billy's 22-year-old mother is the Geographic Society employe, and daughter of the Rev. Howard E. Snyder. Mrs. Nalley, whose home is at 2419 First street northwest, admitted that Billy's grandparents were a little "leery" of entrusting their one and only grandson to the tender mercies of Maryland coeds. And possibly two or three of the students felt somewhat the same way. One of them sighed, "He's a lovely baby; but I'm just a little afraid."

Besides his mother, Billy's nurses will be Mary Speake, of Luray, Va.; Harriet Crain, of Felton, Del.; Edith Sparling, of Washington; Esther Gross, of Sharpsburg, Md.; Betty Bain, of Washington; Doris de Alba, of Glen Burnie, Md., and Virginia Bowling, of Wicomico, Md.

Crime Wave Continues at Richmond

Church Is Entered 3 Homes Burglarized Office Is Looted

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24.—A series of burglaries involving two church buildings, three business houses, three homes and a city hall office were reported to officers over the week-end here.

Three doors were broken to gain access to the Second Baptist Church and the adjoining Educational Buildings but nothing was missing. Approximately $70 was stolen from the safe of the Snap-on Tools Co. office. The safe had been left open because robbers damaged it once before.

Thieves threw a brick through a front door of a grocery store after failing to "jimmy" a rear door. The management was unable to determine what was stolen.

Foodstuffs and coins were taken from a lunchroom by thieves who cut through a rear screen. A lock was forced on a desk in the offices of the utilities department in city hall and $29 was missing out of a package containing Red Cross contributions. Clothing and money were taken from the homes.

The robberies topped off a week-long series of crimes here which included the theft of a 200-pound safe from Holy Trinity Church and the cracking of the John Marshall High School safe.

Father Embraces Child, Shoots Wife, Then Ends Life

Gives Daughter Hug Before Tragedy Another Saved as Weapon Jams Couple Only Recently Reconciled

By the Associated Press.

Richlands, Va., Oct. 24.—A witness' story of how a mountaineer-miner's last act of tenderness—a hug for his three-year-old daughter—immediately preceded the critical wounding of the child's mother and the father's death was investigated today by Constable W. J. Nunly.

Nunly said Leonard Hill breathlessly phoned him yesterday that Ed Shelton had come home to his cabin at Shorts Gap on the Buchanan-Tazewell County line, drawn an old-fashioned pistol and called for his child to "come hug poor old daddy's neck." The child, complied with her father's request, the constable said he was told, and then returned to her mother's lap. A moment later Mrs. Shelton was shot in the head.

Shelton then pointed the gun at Hill, the witness was quoted as saying, but it failed to fire. At that point, Shelton shot himself in the head, dying almost instantly, the officer said his informant related.

Hill ran a mile to a store and called officers to the cabin.

The wounded mother was brought to the Williams hospital here where physicians conceded her only a slight chance to recover.

Hill said he met Shelton walking along a highway and helped him home.

Bombing Solution Is Declared Near

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—Douglas Sharretts, assistant State's attorney, said today solution of the mysterious Woodyear Street bombing in which a tavern was damaged here last June is "in the offing and not so far off."

He said he had been working with Federal investigators on that and other recent bombings here, including the Montebello tunnel blast in which ten workmen were killed.

Late Blight Damages Maryland Potatoes

Frostburg, Md., Oct. 24 (AP).—Growers of potatoes in Western Maryland suffered a 50 per cent loss in that crop by late blight this year, Dr. Thomas B. Symons, acting dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland, said tonight.

Speaking at a rural-urban meeting of the Frostburg Rotary Club, he asserted that the businessmen have as direct interest as the farmers in the agricultural research that is being done by the experiment station, in the promotion of efficient production, and in justice in distribution of farm products.

State Starts Audit At Virginia U.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—L. McCarthy Downs, State auditor of public accounts, said today members of his staff had begun an audit of the University of Virginia.

It is the first detailed audit ever made by the State of affairs of the university. Downs said the work was started by three auditors but that the staff would be increased to 15 before the audit was finished.

New Plant Sought for Cumberland

C. I. O. Enters Plea Mayor Koon Acts Va. Town Favored Spend $10,000,000

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 24.—A telegram to Dr. Henri Dreyfus of the Celanese Corporation of America from the executive board of the Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Council, composed of C. I. O. unions, asked today that the corporation "reconsider its announced plan for erecting a $10,000,000 plant at Pearisburg, Va.

The message said the council would press building of the Savage River dam to encourage further industrial developments in and around Cumberland.

The telegram was signed by John T. Jones, president of the executive board.

Mayor Thomas W. Koon will confer with Dr. Camille Dreyfus, Celanese president, in New York Wednesday. Dr. Koon said he hoped to convince the Celanese management that the proposed new plant should be built here.

Price Gets Note Despite Sit-Down Strike of Bird

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Gov. Price when notified today that a pigeon carrying a message for him was on a sit-down strike near Prince Frederick, Md., said that there was no need for hurry since another bird had arrived here bearing the same note.

The message called attention to "these heroic bird messengers" who are ready to serve the country in the event of a public emergency. The Governor said that the pigeon which brought the message remained in the vicinity of the mansion for several days.

Another pigeon with a "heroic bird" message attached to its leg and addressed to the Virginia Governor stopped off for rest and food on a Maryland farm several days ago and has shown no disposition to complete its flight to Richmond.

Pierce M. Damewood Is Dead at Ashburn

Ashburn, Va., Oct. 24.—Pierce M. Damewood, 58, Mason and farmer, died suddenly this afternoon while sitting in a chair on the porch at his home near Ashburn. Death was due to a heart attack.

Mr. Damewood is survived by five sons and three daughters, Brightwell Damewood, of Beltsville, Md.; Tolbert Damewood, Washington, D. C.; Roger, P. M., jr., and Athon, at home; Mrs. Margaret Moran Ryan, Mrs. Albert Fletcher, Brunswick, Md., and Mrs. Elizabeth Bell, Atlanta, Ga.

Virginia Is Cheered By General Rains

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—General rains throughout the State brought cheer to farmers who recently completed sowing wheat, L. M. Walker, jr., assistant to the commissioner of agriculture, said today.

Had the dry weather continued, he asserted, germination of the seed would have been impaired. The rain will also prove helpful to fall grass, he added.

3 Wayside Parks In Hanover Completed

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Three wayside parks have been completed in Hanover County, Harold J. Neale, landscape engineer of the State Highway Department, said today.

One park was a co-operative project with the National Park Service, while the others were built with Federal funds alloted the highway department for landscape work.

Cracksmen Foiled

Richmond, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Police said today thieves battered their way into the Second Baptist Church here yesterday afternoon, but failed to open a safe which contained the morning service collection money.

Rodak Given Decision Over Miller at Arena

The Washington Post Sports

18 WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1938 ***

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

There has come to hand from Mr. Ned Irish, publicity purveyor of the National Football League, the information that Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Dartmouth have never graduated a player into professional football. Which, if true, is also interesting.

POVICH.

We do not mean to impugn Mr. Irish's honesty in the matter. And, furthermore, he is in a position to know, having delved into the league archives these many years. We simply are trying to discover the significance of the fact he has stated.

As we scan the list of National Professional League rosters we find such as Texas Tech, T. C. U., Minnesota, Ohio State, Alabama, Georgia and the California colleges plentifully represented. But no man from the so-called Ivy League of the Northeastern United States. Another name for 'em is the silk-stocking colleges.

Why this absence from pro ranks of players who won their letters at such as Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Dartmouth? Only two explanations suggest themselves: (1) They don't turn out capable enough football players and (2) they are in a position to accept more lucrative offers.

If the second theory is true, then the Ivy League is probably more guilty of subsidizing its football players than has been presumed. There has been a general tendency to give The Big Three and Dartmouth a clean bill since the Carnegie Foundation's famous Bulletin 23 dealing with scholarships, subsidization, etc., but perhaps there is a Senegambian lurking in the woods.

It isn't subsidization on the face of it, of course, but a football letter at the ivy schools apparently is a negotiable instrument. At least it would seem so if their football players are showing no eagerness to get into pro football. Awaiting the Ivy League graduates apparently are profitable jobs with bond houses as customers' men, insurance jobs and others of the type in which a fellow's football reputation is certainly no drawback. Stardom at Harvard, Yale and Princeton is apt to mean money in the bank.

However, we still like the theory that Ivy League football players aren't good enough football players to hold a job in the professional league. There were Yale's Clint Frank, of last season, and Larry Kelley, of two years before, who turned down professional offers, but that about does up the list.

Frank might have achieved stardom as a pro. At least professional coaches who saw him in action were of the mind that he would and labeled him as one of the best college football players of all time. But in the case of Kelley there was some debate. In fact, in many respected opinions Kelley was merely spectacular and, week in and week out, was not a particularly good end. There was no great scramble for his services on the possibility that he would play as a pro.

It has been brought to light recently, also, that Wayne Milner, of Washington's Redskins, is the only Notre Dame graduate now playing professional football. That seemed a bit strange in view of Notre Dame's perennial prowess on the gridiron, but Ray Flaherty, Redskin coach, had a ready answer for the lack of Irish pros.

• • • •

"Don't forget," Flaherty said, "Notre Dame, since Rockne, has not produced any red-hot teams. That's why you don't have Notre Dame players in our league. They haven't been able to make the grade. You'll find plenty of Notre Dame men playing in the minor professional leagues, though."

Perhaps it's because other colleges do not have influential alumni ready to adopt football stars and bask in their reflected glory that the boys from the Midwest, the South and the Coast flock into professional football. And perhaps it is simply because they are better football players with a good chance of making the grade that they go for the pro game.

There isn't much doubt that the caliber of football in the Ivy League has declined in the last 15 years. Or, to put it better, perhaps, Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Dartmouth haven't kept pace with the improvement of the game. Certainly it has been years since any of the four have even come close to the national championship.

But Ivy League coaches have a tremendous edge on the coaches of Minnesota, Alabama, Notre Dame or California, for example. Harvard, for instance, can lose every game up to the contest with Yale, but if it wins that one its season is considered a success. And the Yale coach who produces a team that can beat Harvard is likewise considered to have done an excellent job, no matter how many defeats by other schools dot his record.

Up there it is, indeed, a coach's paradise. The coach is not required to produce a team that can go through a long, gruelling schedule with better than a fair share of success. If he can win the one Big Game, he's a hero. Perhaps that's why the Ivy League doesn't produce what the pro coaches are pleased to call 60-minute football players. I will probably hear from this.

In Brief

Sammy Baugh was not exactly a flop in the Redskins' battle with the Philadelphia Eagles . . . All he did was to get off an important 65-yard quick-kick, knock down an Eagle pass over the goal line, complete 9 out of 17 passes for 154 yards gain, and intercept a pass that led to the winning touchdown . . . Chick Meehan, former N. Y. U. and Manhattan coach, is tossing a party for Ray Flaherty at the Pennsylvania Hotel, New York, tonight, preliminary to Flaherty's invasion of Brooklyn with his Redskins on Sunday . . . When the Cleveland Rams defeated the Chicago Bears on consecutive Sundays they were the first team to achieve that feat in the last ten years of the National Pro League . . . The man who is scouting the Brooklyn Club for Coach Flaherty is a New York high school coach whose advance reports on the New York Giants last year played a huge part in the Redskins' 49-14 victory at the Polo Grounds . . . When Andy Farkas and Frank Filchock were in the Redskins' backfield Sunday they presented the spectacle of a Hungarian and a Czech playing side by side without somebody demanding a plebiscite . . . All reports to the contrary, Mickey Cochrane is positively through with organized baseball . . . his position with a rubber firm gives him a royalty on each tire sold through his office, and his friends with the Ford Co. have already managed to throw enough business his way to make him independently wealthy.

Tech, Wilson Clash Today In High Race

Bill Miller Injured McKinley Is Favored Kick-off Set for 3:30 At Tech's Stadium

Bill Miller, regular center of Tech's title-bound gridders, will be absent from his team's lineup today when it encounters Woodrow Wilson's startling Presidents on the Tech gridiron starting at 3:30 p. m.

Muscles in Miller's right leg were severely strained in Tech's loss to Maury High of Norfolk last Saturday and Coach Bill Thompson decided to call on his numerous reserves rather than gamble with the injured leg. In Miller's place will be young Paul Demeglio, a sophomore whom Coach Thompson considers a brilliant center prospect. Besides his natural talent for passing the ball, Demeglio furnishes a shining example of the best way of making a tackle. Another good center, Cumberland, will be available if needed.

The injuy to Miller constitutes the only serious injury on either team for today's game. Tech steered clear of possible damaged players by using its second string against Maury and Coach Thompson frankly admitted he was saving his first team for today's game. The interhigh crown, he says, is Tech's goal for this season ad outside games can takecare of themselves.

Though Wilson goes into the game today on the extreme short end of the odds, Coach Thompson's concern over his first team indicated a belief that anything might happen. Wilson, too, has displayed a tendency for the unusual, first, by merely earning a draw with Anacostia's youthful eleven, and second, by battling Eastern's defending champions to a 6-6 stalemate. The latter game led some observers to believe that, given a little more weight, Coach Carl Heintel's squad might cause more than a few headaches in series circles.

Wilson has easily the lightest squad in the schoolboy race. Its line averages a mere 157 and the backfield carries a 147 pounds per man. In contrast, Tech's line averages 169 pounds per man and the backfield 160.

In Bond and Garner Wilson will be putting its hopes for yardage. The two combined in the Eastern tilt to pick up the most acreage. All of Tech's starting backfield, as well as Kefouver and Planer on the wings, are potent ball carriers. Johnny Gilmore, McKinley halfback, has been the sensation of the series with his horrible grimaces and lengthy runs, while Fred Bach in the fullback spot is the most dependable plunger on any of the seven clubs.

Cotes' Pointer Is Derby Winner At Camp Lee

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 24 (AP).—Shuffletown Queen, pointer, owned and handled by R. Z. Cotes, of Spartanburg, S. C., won first place in the derby, opening event of the annual field trials of the Rappahannock Field Trial Association at Camp Lee today.

Sport's Carolina Joe, setter, owned and handled by H. J. Winn, of Greensburg, S. C., was second, and Long Island Jake, pointer, owned and handled by Leigh Bonzal, of Baltimore, third.

Chicago Schedules Cage Double Bills

Chicago, Oct. 24 (U.P.).—A series of basketball doubleheaders in which college teams from various sections of the country will participate throughout the winter will be inaugurated at the Chicago Coliseum December 14, Sam Feinberg, of the Coliseum, said tonight.

Thirty-two colleges will participate in eight doubleheader attractions, Feinberg said.

The first four colleges, to meet December 14, will be Wayne University of Detroit against the University of Cincinnati, and Illinois Wesleyan against La Salle College of Philadelphia.

Grid Bargain Day Is Set

Alexandria Scene Baltimoreans Invade Petersburg Leads

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Alexandria, Oct. 24.—Episcopal High School and McDonogh School of Baltimore will hold their annual "football carnival" here next Saturday, when representatives of the two schools will meet in a four-game program, to be climaxed by the varsity tilt at 2:30 in the afternoon. Three morning games will be played simultaneously, with the 100-pound, 135-pound, and junior varsity elevens meeting at 10:30.

The all-day grid program has been an annual event for the past five years, arranged on a home-and-home basis. Last year at Baltimore the Maroons split even, winning the varsity and 100-pound games while losing the junior varsity and 125-pound tilts.

The George Washington High School varsity eleven occupies ninth place in the standings of the Virginia Class A Conference, according to the weekly announcement from league headquarters at Charlottesville. The Presidents have won one, lost one and tied two games in competition with conference elevens.

Petersburg High, defending State chmapions, took first place in the standings over the week-end by defeating Thomas Jefferson, of Richmond, 27-0. It was the first game for the Crimson Wave, leaving the Petersburgers the only unbeaten and untied team in the 14-school circuit.

George Washington will have a chance to improve its record this Friday night, meeting Andrew Lewis, of Salem, at the G. W. stadium in a floodlight tilt.

The Virginia Juniors, local 145-pound gridmen, have carded a home-and-home series with the crack Boys' Home eleven, of Richmond, the first game to be played here November 5. The date for the return contest has not been settled.

The Home eleven has held the junior championship of the State for the last three years, losing only one game during their reign. The lone setback was absorbed at the hands of the local team here last year, when the Richmonders bowed, 7-0, but they avenged the loss three weeks later by routing the Alexandrians, 19-0.

Wrong Down Ruling Arouses Controversy

Skibo Coach Assails Referee Irish Mentor Maintains Calm Bushnell Takes Stand for Replay

By the Associated Press.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 24.—The "wrong down" decision in Notre Dame's 7-to-0 triumph over Carnegie Tech Saturday stirred the football world to the greatest argument of the season today.

The ruling rivals, in controversial element, the famous 14 count the late Davy aBrry was alleged to have given Gene Tunney in his second world's heavyweight championship fight with Jack Dempsey.

Johnny Getchell, of Minneapolis, a graduate of St. Thomas, referee of the game, is the "Dave Barry" of the situation. It was Getchell who advised Paul Friedlander, Carnegie quarterback, some three minutes after the fourth period started that Carnegie had the ball on third down with a yard to go.

Actually, it was fourth down, and when the running play Friedlander called was short of the needed yardage, the ball went to Notre Dame on Tech's 47-yard line. Friedlander screamed that he would have ordered a kick if he had known it was fourth down, after Referee Getchell unhesitatingly admitted he had misinformed the quarterback.

Skibos Protest Ruling

The Carnegie players and Coach William Kern protested they should not be penalized for Getchell's error. Nevertheless the ball went over to Notre Dame, and the inspired Irish in three plays scored the touchdown that won.

Coach Kern, back home in Pittsburgh, today termed the decision as the biggest "bonehead I ever saw pulled by any official. It certainly meant defeat for us."

Elmer Layden, head coach at Notre Dame, expressed the opinion that Friedlander knew it was a fourth down when he disputed Referee Getchell's ruling.

"I only want to point out," said Layden, "that it is the quarterback's duty to know what down it is. The score board and the head linesman's marker showed fourth down. The Tech players knew it was fourth down because they checked signals when Friedlander called for a running play. But he called it again, apparently trying to take a chance with official sanction.

"Our quarterbacks always refer to the head linesman's marker and abide by it. We have never received five downs in which to make 10 yards."

Had Scoring Chances

"Tech feels that this incident cost the ball game," Layden continued. But Tech had several scoring chances and we held them.

"Following our touchdown we were the victims of an official's mistake which we felt was unintentional. Tech threw a pass which hit Dominy, a guard and an ineligible receiver. The ball should have gone to us on Carnegie's 30-yard line. But the officials said they didn't see the play and we simply went back into the ball game. Tech might have tied the score under the circumstances, which were unfair to us. Had we received the ball at that time we might have scored again.

"Football is just a game to me. Sometimes we win, sometimes we lose. But we are ready to take either."

Getchell, prominent as a referee in the Midwest, called the slugging penalty on big Ed Widseth, Minnesota's All-America tackle, which helped Northwestern to end the Golden Gophers' winning streak of 21 games in 1936. Widseth, in the heat of battle, cuffed Don Geyer, Northwestern fullback. Getchell without hesitation called a 15-yard penalty which gave Northwestern first down on Minnesota's 4-yard line. Three plays later the Wildcats crashed over for a touchdown to create one of the stunning upsets of that season.

Game Changed

Newberry, S. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Newberry College officials announced today the Indians' football game with Oglethorpe University Thanksgiving Day, originally scheduled for Atlanta, Ga., would be played here.

Archibald Ordered to Fight Rodak

Leo Rodak was assured by the National Boxing Association of an opportunity of establishing a clear claim to the featherweight championship following his victory over Fred Miller at the Arena last night.

The N. B. A. will order Joey Archibald, recently hailed as champion in New York, to sign for a bout with the victor within 30 days, and actually fight the winner within 60 days. Should Archibald fail to comply with this order the winner automatically will get the official N. B. A. crown, which carries with it recognition in virtually all foreign countries.

This ruling is not only fair to all parties concerned, but exceedingly lenient in the case of Archibald, who defied the association previously when it ordered him to box Rodak. If Joey takes his championship aspirations seriously he will be only too glad to meet anybody staking a claim to the title.

An Associated Press dispatch from New York quotes Archibald as saying he would like to defend the title against Rodak because "I'm not sure Miller can make the weight."

But Miller gave the lie to that statement yesterday at the official weighing-in when he came in at 123½ pounds, 2½ pounds under the class limit. Moreover, he looked ready for the greatest fight of his life and seemed confident of regaining the title he lost to Petey Sarron three years ago at Griffith Stadium.

Cumberland Sports

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 24.—Matlin's touchdown in the last quarter won the grid game for St. Francis College, of Loretto, Pa., from Potomac State, of Keyser, W. Va., under the floodlights at Fort Hill High School Stadium here. The score was 6-0. It was the first touchdown of the year for the Catholics.

Art Meyer Wins Medal

Posts a Card of 74 Match Play Today At East Potomac

Art Meyer's 74 over the lengthened B and D courses won medal honors in the annual East Potomac turkey tournament, conducted by Tommy Doerer, course manager.

Match-play rounds in the six flights begin today, with a week allowed for each match. Finals in all brackets must be completed by November 24.

The first flight is dotted with public links stars, leading pairings including the medalist vs. Calvin Loving, winner of the recent Anacostia Open; Harding Cup team member Jim Gipe vs. H. R. Swartzel, Bobby Burton vs. Gene Fossum, W. W. Seay vs. Gus Kupka and H. Miller opposing Sparky Dawson.

Several women players are paired in the lower flight, with Mrs. T. Gibraski meeting Betty Garber in the fourth, and Mrs. Grace Long playing Mrs. M. Rule in the fifth bracket.

A public links rivalry of many years will be renewed in a first-round encounter in the fifth flight when two Post proofreaders, A. C. Nelson and Joe Walsmith, who play in every muny event, meet in the first round.

Qualifying in the Rock Creek turkey tournament will start next Sunday with Harry Graham anticipating at least ten flights in the annual Thanksgiving event. Entries are being accepted at the uptown public links course clubhouse.

Ferrando Victor Over Straiges

Wins Bout Easily Halligan Beats Hoover Thomas-De Pola Draw At Turner's Arena

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Leo Rodak furthered his claim to the world featherweight championship last night at Turner's Arena, outpointing the one-time titleholder, Freddy Miller, by a narrow margin in a 15-round bout.

All the clever strategy of Pete Reilly, Miller's veteran pilot, failed to save the puffy-eyed Cincinnati gladiator from defeat. Reilly jumped into the ring at the end of the twelfth round, protesting against Rodak's right glove, which had broken and was badly out of shape. Reilly succeeded in having the glove cut from Rodak's hand and a new one substituted. He delayed the match some five minutes.

It was Rodak's stirring finish, one that had the scant audience of 1,200 fans standing on the furniture and screaming with all the power of their collective lungs that carried the fight. The pair of them stood toe to toe and slugged, then wrestled and fought around the ring like contestants in a free for all.

Miller's energy was spent when the fifteenth round came up. His legs were gone and he was arm weary, but not too weary to throw a half dozen stinging lefts to Rodak's jaw. Rodak had superior condition on his side, however, and kept coming, throwing fists as he came.

Joey Ferrando, 135, scored an easy victory over Joey Straiges, 135, in the eight-round semi-final, pounding his good-looking but impotent Camden opponent at will.

Extremely clever and fast as a cobra with his left, Ferrando powdered Straiges' head throughout the first two rounds, then shifted his heavy guns to the body and all but knocked him out in the third. He shook Straiges with a punishing left hook to the head, followed by a right to the body. Straiges' knees buckled, but he came out of it and boxed his way to safety.

Silverette Pays $11.70

Wins at 'Gansett Mr. Blaze Places Stage Beauty Next

By the Associated Press.

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 24.—Garret Watts' Silverette, a mare which was winning races before some of the horses arrayed against her had ever felt a bit in their mouths, scored her first New England triumph today when she won the Whitman Handicap, a six-furlong test for three-year-olds and up over a sloppy track at Narragansett Park.

Eight years old and still going strong, the daughter of Vandergrift won by a length from the heavily favored Mr. Blaze, owned by S. J. Norris, and paid $11.70, $4.40 and $3.20. Half a length back of Mr. Blaze came Mrs. P. A. Shaw's Stage Beauty, which had the same margin on Dunade.

Silverette took the lead at the start and stayed out front where no one could toss mud in her eyes. Mr. Blaze was close up all the way, moving through on the rail but he never could get in front, and when they straightened out for home Silverette pulled away until there was Daylight back of her at the finish. Stage Beauty trailed the field to the quarter pole and then moved up past Dunade and Natty Boy, who ran fourth and fifth.

Time was 1:12. Mr. Blaze paid $3.70 and $2.90 and Stage Beauty $3.40.

Barred Trainer To Get Hearing

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—The controversy over whether Bye Bye Will or Uallno won the race at Pimlico last May 7, which was credited to the former at nice odds, was taken to court today by Uallno's trainer, Thomas Malone of Philadelphia, who was barred from Maryland tracks by the State racing commission last August.

A hearing on Malone's petition to set aside the commission's order was set for Thursday before Judge Eugene O'Dunne in Superior Court.

Malone said the commission's ruling barring him and any horses he owns or trains from tracks under its jurisdiction was based on hearsay and fallacious testimony without his being given an opportunity to summon witnesses to appear in his behalf.

The horse which ran as Bye Bye Will was identified as Uallno by the commission's veterinarian.

Will Open Gymnasium For Basketball Practice

Unlimited, uniformed basketball teams that would like to play in the Southeast Community Center League this winter at Hine Junior High should get in touch with Mrs. Davis, 900 Eleventh street southeast, at once, as the "gym" will be open for practice starting November 2.

The league games will start shortly after November 15.

Strickland Wins

200 Horses Entered In Middleburg Hunt

Middleburg, Va., Oct. 24.—More than 200 entries have been received by Richard S. Peach, manager of the Middleburg Hunt Horse Show, which will be held Saturday at Glenwood, Middleburg. The large number of entries coming in for this event will make it the outstanding sporting affair of the fall season. Hunters, fit and fine for fox hunting, will be on hand to compete in a number of interesting classes, and the day promises to be one of enjoyment for the large numbers planning to attend.

Among the leading exhibitors will be Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Llangollen Stables, Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh's Springsbury Farms, Paul Mellon's Rokeby Stables, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill's Clovelly Stables, the W. C. Langley establishment, Peach Brothers, Crompton Smith, George Robert Slater, E. L. Redmon, Mrs. John B. Anderson, Mrs. Amory Perkins, Freddy Warburg, Benton Stables and many others.

Announcement has been made that there ill be an added class for hunt teams to be ridden by members of recognized hunts in full hunting attire on bona fide hunters. The entry fee is $5, ith a challenge bowl and individual cups for prizes. The conditions of the ladies' side-saddle class, one of the highlights on the program, have been changed.

There will be no fences. Manners and the way of going will count in the place of performance. This class is being modeled from the one at Devon, which was most interesting. The Journey's End Challenge Bowl, presented by Mrs. Amory Perkins, will be the trophy in this event.

The pageant, "The Queen of the Middleburg Hunt Country," with Anna Lee Trenary, of the Aldie School, as "Queen," will be called at 12 o'clock. The "Lest We Forget" class will be shown at 1:45 p. m. Other classes will be model hunters, half century class, junior riders, family class, hunter hacks, handy hunters, ladies' hunters, qualified hunters and bonafide hunters.

The judges will be: Hunters, Edgar Scott, Sydney Watters and Worth Howard; side-saddle class, Mrs. Worth Howard.

Duke Prepares For Pass Attack

Dunham, N. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Duke's Blue Devils went through a stiff drill, during which pass defense was stressed, as they opened work today for the game with North Carolina at Chapel Hill Saturday.

Eric Tipton, veteran halfback who was injured in the Colgate game two weeks ago, ran at his regular berth for the first time since he was hurt and apparently will be ready to go against the Tarheels.

Bob Spangler, quarterback who was unable to play against Wake Forest Saturday due to illness, was also back in action at his usual post today. His illness was found to be due to a nasal infection which was relieved Saturday night at Duke Hospital.

One of the business-like officials who, as you have heard, were the leading ground gainers in the Georgetown-Manhattan game Saturday, was none other than Albie Booth, half-pint quarterback of immortal Yale fame. Perhaps never, even in college, did Booth enjoy such a profitable day with the ball tucked under his arm than Saturday when he helped the white-clad fellows pace off 180 yards against the two teams. In one series of downs, Georgetown ran three plays yet at the end of that time it was still first down and the Hoyas needed 45 yards instead of 10. Two penalties of 15 yards for holding, plus one of five for offsides, made it appear as though they were traveling backward . . . Another funny feature about that game Saturday was the ill-luck experienced by the 48 stalwart young men who compose the G. U. band. Just as these meticulously arrayed fellows started to deploy into their intricate formations for the admiration of the crowd, some ill-bred Jasper punter, with no soul for music, sent well-aimed kicks at the drum corps. The result was demoralizing.

Suggested medley theme song for football "experts" on Monday mornings—"I've Got a Pocketful of Dreams" and "You Can't Stop Me from Dreaming."

Phil Gross, one of the greatest tackles in Catholic University football history, is recovering from injuries sustained in an automobile accident en route to the C. U.-Detroit game in Detroit a couple of weeks ago . . . Paul Waner, who slipped under the .300 mark for the first time last sesaon, oddly enough is one of the players sought by Gabby Hartnett to instill punch in his Cub line-up. . . . Joe (Handsome) Fitzgerald, Nats' batting practice catcher, bowls regularly with the C. & W. Novelty team and ranks the duckpin game as his favorite off-season recreation . . . Other bowling enthusiasts are Dr. Henry Malone, head of the Georgetown University Medical School's chemistry department, and the Fleshman brothers, well-known horseshoe pitchers.

Julie Singer, assistant manager of Convention Hall alleys, recently made an unusual record when he rolled a game of 171 with the aid of only one strike. He chipped in with seven spares, however . . . Burke Vidnovic, C. U. halfback, markets the finest corsages on the Brookland school's campus. Or so he claims.

Redskins Top Eastern Rivals In Yardage; Lose Pass Lead

Washington's Redskins lost the forward-passing leadership in the National Football League to the New York Giants last Sunday, but they increased by a wide margin their lead in total yardage gained by the Eastern division teams.

With a total of 1,815 yards gained in their six games, the Redskins are more than 300 yards ahead of the Giants for Eastern division honors. Defensively, however, the Giants show the better record with 1,048 yards yielded to 1,308 for the Redskins.

The Giants' margin over the Redskins in percentage of passes completed is a bare 1 per cent. With 61 completions out of 119 tosses, the Giants boast an average of .510. The Redskins have completed 59 of 116 passes for an efficiency rating of .500.

The league as a whole is led in points scored and yardage gained by the Green Bay Packers, No. 1 team of the Western division. The Packers have amassed 140 points and gained 1,897 yards to top the second-place Redskins by 82 yards.

Down In Front

By Richards Vidmer

Inside Information

New York, Oct. 24.—More and a greater variety of demands are being made on the profession of football coaching. There was a time when a coach could feel he had done a good job if his team won a majority of its games. Then it got so he couldn't be counted successful unless his team won its biggest game each year, which tended to produce at least one failure out of every two coaches each season. Finally the alumni became so actively interested that only an undefeated team served to still their criticism, and now a coach is required to be something of a professional humorist in addition to his other duties.

VIDMER.

At least that was my impression as one coach after another was called to his feet at the weekly luncheon of the football writers at Jack Dempsey's. These luncheons were started several years ago for the purpose of producing serious information; they served as a general meeting at which the writers could ask questions and receive frank, sometimes even confidential answers. But the coaches no longer are asked whether they won or lost, but how many laughs they can provide.

Bill Wood, bringing his Army team up toward the Notre Dame game at the Yankee Stadium next Saturday, freely, frankly and fearlessly told the experts everything he knew about the outlook. He rattled off the name of Notre Dame's good backs, with details of what they could do and how well they could do it; he exposed the type of attack they have been using this year; he expressed the belief that they have been playing straight football only because they had a lot of tricks to hide and could pull plenty of hocus-pocus when and if necessary. And he very openly admitted that Notre Dame has the best material that it has had in four seasons and more of it.

This, of course, was very enlightening, but one might expect Bill to know more about the Army team than Notre Dame. However, when it came to discussing the Army he was strangely vague and somewhat uncertain. Perhaps a Notre Dame coach could be more revealing about the Cadets or at least more willing to discuss their strength.

Witness for Fordham

Jim Crowley, who is pointing Fordham toward the Pitt game on Saturday, wasn't allowed to volunteer any information about Pitt, however. He was asked questions.

"Will there be a score this year?" someone asked, remembering that for three successive seasons Pitt and Fordham have played to scoreless ties.

"Well, I don't know," Jim smiled. "We may live up to our part of the agreement, but I'm afraid Pitt is planning on double-crossing us and scoring."

"Honestly," asked a heckler, "do you expect to win by one or two touchdowns?"

"Three," the Fordham coach replied in a strictly confidential tone.

One of Crowley's players who hasn't been doing very well was mentioned and the coach was asked why he didn't give the player back to the Indians.

"Well, I don't think I ought to do that," said Crowley. "After all, there are some pretty nice Indians."

Little on the Stand

Lou Little explained upon request the nature of Jack Wright's injury. It seems that it was feared a bone had been broken in the Columbia captain's shoulder in the Penn game last Saturday, but that an examination revealed it was only a set of torn muscles.

"I'm afraid he won't be able to play for at least two weeks, though," Lou explained.

"Will you make Sweeney into a tackle?"

"Starting at 6 o'clock this afternoon," Little said. "I would start earlier, but unfortunately he's a student and doesn't get out of classes until late."

"There's been a lot of discussion about Sid Luckman," someone said. "There's been some argument about whether he is a better passer than Sammy Baugh or Benny Friedman, in fact whether he's the best there ever was. How do you feel about Luckman, Lou?"

The Columbia coach didn't reply immediately. He seemed to be studying the question deeply and everyone waited to hear what he would say about the young fellow who has done about everything that could be asked of a football player for three years.

Scouts Report

And then came Mal Stevens, N. Y. U. coach, who can be counted on to spring some sort of surprise every week.

"Well, I'll tell you. When Swiadon plays tackle the way we want him to he's the best, but when he plays tackle the way he wants to, he's terrible."

"What about Ohio State?" someone asked, looking forward to N. Y. U's next game.

Mal took a leaf from Bill Wood's Notre Dame report and turned it upside down.

"My scouts tell me that Ohio State is awful," he said. "They have two slug nutty guys playing guard, their tackles couldn't stop a cream puff, three of their backs have wooden legs, their ends can't catch a forward pass in a basket and the team doesn't even show up for the second half."

Charlie Moutenot Is Lost to Cards Rest of Season

Catholic U. Back Suffers Injured Leg

Ligaments Are Torn Loss Hurts C. U.
Colonials Workout
Other Teams Drill

By Jack Munhall.

Unrestrained glee, sweeping over the Catholic University campus since the Cardinals' comeback victory over West Virginia Wesleyan Saturday was shrouded in pensive gloom yesterday when it was learned the career of one of the most promising young backs ever to enroll there lies in the balance as a result of that game.

For today Charlies Moutenot, sophomore halfback from Edgewater, N. J., lies propped in a Providence Hospital bed, a cast on his left knee, reflecting on the misfortune that has shelved him for the season and perhaps for good.

The slender, loose-limbed kid with an exceptional ability for passing, running and kicking a football, was hurt, unknown to the crowd, midway of the third quarter when tackled savagely by a pair of Bobcats.

It is believed Moutenot's leg was doubled beneath him as he pivoted to elude his pursuers and pinned to the ground under the combined weight of the three. He suffered several torn ligaments.

Not until yesterday, when Coach "Dutch" Bergman, with ill-concealed sorrow, announced the loss of his player for the season and hinted that he may never be the prospect he was at the start of the season was Moutenot's plight revealed.

With the exception of Moutenot, C. U.'s Henry Sant Ambrogio, who suffered a broken nose and Maryland's Charlie Weidinger, who injured his "trick" knee again, the local squads came through week-end conflicts in good condition.

George Washington, preparing for the most important game on its schedule—the tilt with Mississippi here Friday night—went over to Griffith Stadium to hold a light work-out and concentrated on the forward passing attack which it is developing for Ole Miss.

The Colonials welcomed back John Rebholz, regular tackle, who returned to the squad for the first time in more than a week and reported himself in excellent shape.

Ken Batson, sophomore back, who ripped off several long runs against Davis-Elkins Friday night, was used extensively in running plays and is expected to play a good portion of the game against the Rebels.

Georgetown, getting ready for a crucial contest with Temple's Owls at Temple Stadium Friday night, cut its afternoon outdoor practice short because of the rain and later held a skull session. Coach Jack Hagerty discussed the Manhattan game and outlined plans for Friday night.

Coach Bergman also was happy as he recalled C. U.'s play against West Virginia Wesyelan and expressed delight at the way his revamped line-up clicked. This new combination, with Rocco Pirro at the blocking back position and Burke Vidnovic calling signals displayed the best offensive the Cardinals have shown all season.

Especially was Bergman pleased with the improved blocking and pass defense. This latter item is likely to stand the Cards in good stead against air-minded St. Louis, next Saturday's foe.

His mind more at rest with the news that Quarterback Charlie Weidinger probably will be available for action against V. M. I. at College Park Saturday, Coach Frank Dobson sent his Maryland squad through a brisk workout yesterday.

While disappointed at the loss to Maryland, especially after his team threatened to spring an upset, Dobson nevertheless had nothing but praise for the gallant Terrapins and feels confident of the season's second victory Saturday.

Pro-Amateur Play Is Postponed

The District professionals decided it was a little damp for the pro-amateur scheduled for the Manor Club course yesterday and decided to postpone it until a later date.

Al Houghton, Old Point Comfort, Va., professional, was understood to have claimed the first prize by default—as he was the only one that showed up. The others telephoned and then adjourned to the pro-am at Laurel.

The twice-postponed pro-lady tournament of the District Professional Golfers Committee, will be played tomorrow at Belle Haven, with play in the morning if possible.

A dozen or more teams are expected to compete.

Gloucester Boat Evens Schooner Race With Canada

Aboard Schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, off Boston (via Radio Telephone), Oct. 24 (AP).—Racing through driving sheets of rain over a stormy sea, the Gloucester schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud today scored its second victory over the Canadian champion, Bluenose, thus evening the score in the current series for the International Fishermen's Trophy.

Thebaud finished at 2:55.40 p. m., and Bluenose then was about a mile astern. Thebaud logged about 12 knots on the concluding 14-mile leg.

The committee boat was absent from the finish line, so Thebaud's skipper, Capt. Cecil Moulton, decided to sail completely around the buoy marking one end of the finishing line. Thebaud's crew feared for a time they would be unable to spot the finish because of the gloom.

Connie Mack Urges Vacations With Pay

They would solve many a manager's problems declared Connie Mack, 76-year-old head man of the Philadelphia Athletics, today.

This innovation—and night baseball—are two of the things that the dean of baseball managers believes will rejuvenate his American League team and bring crowds through the Shibe Park gates.

"Send them home," he declared. "Pack them off to the mountains or even get them a job doing something else for a few days. Anything to keep their minds off baseball."

"That's what I used to do with Rube Waddell," Mack pointed out.

2 Games Booked Tonight in Indoor Softball League

Two games are booked tonight in the Community Center Indoors Softball League at Tech High gym, with Dr. Pepper and Marine Barracks clashing at 7 o'clock and Treasury and Community Center and All-Stars at 8:30.

With each seeing action for the second time, Dr. Pepper and Marine Barracks will try to break into the win column. Dr. Pepper has what many consider the best mound staff ever boasted by a softball team in Bob Plaisted, Bunker Hill and Jack Smith. Marine Barracks, however, doesn't figure to do so badly itself, with "Lefty" Howard on the mound.

In the second game, Orren Shanks, who beat Marine Barracks, will try to make it two in a row. The Community Center All-Stars will counter with "Big Bill" Edwards or "Bump" Simonds. Their slate, too, is clean. They hold a forfeit decision over Procurement.

The only other undefeated teams are Victory Post and Plaza Beverage, which won a 2-1 decision from the Unknowns, Saturday night. The winners got but one hit off Amstadt, while the Unknowns got four off Johncox.

Galento Signed To Fight Thomas

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (AP).—Promoter Herman Taylor announced tonight he had signed "Two-ton" Tony Galento, of Orange, N. J., leading contender for the heavyweight title, to a 12-round bout with Harry Thomas, of Chicago, here on November 14.

It will be Galento's first fight snce he was stricken with penumonia last July four days before he was to fight Lightheavyweight Champion John Henry Lewis.

Brewers Will Launch Cage Practice Today

Heurich professional basketers answer the first call for candidates at the Heurich gymnasium, Twenty-sixth and D streets northwest, this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Ralph Bennie, Whitey Wilson, Arthur Zahn and Mickey Schonfeld are numbered among the veterans expected to return. Ed Johnson, former center of Olson's Terrible Swedes, will join the team.

Nowaskey Top Scorer

Leads Collegians
Hoyas' Spencer 2d
Bartlett Gains

By Jack Munhall.

Big, broad-shouldered Bob Nowaskey, George Washington junior, whose emergency shift from the backfield to an end position is proving one of the smartest moves Coach Bill Reinhart ever made, today leads all local college scorers as the season approaches the halfway mark.

Nowaskey, a 6-foot 195-pounder with loads of speed afoot and a great pair of hands, capped his performance this season Friday night when he scored two touchdowns and an extra point as George Washington scuttled Davis-Elkins, 27-0, and slipped into the lead over Georgetown's John Spencer.

Nowaskey, with 28 points, is one ahead of Spencer, reserve halfback, who failed to tally against Manhattan Saturday. For third place, two of the city's finest backs—Joe Mellenback and Vic Sampson—are lodged along with Lou Ghecas. All three have scored four touchdowns for 24 points.

Sampson moved into the race Friday when he matched Nowaskey's two touchdowns, while Mellendeck got one against the Jaspers. Ghecas, early leader of the individual scorers, failed to score.

Biggest gain of the week and the finest individual performance of the local season was made Saturday by American University's Emerson Bartlett, who jumped from nowhere to fourth place by running wild against St. John's of Annapolis with three touchdowns and a conversion.

Lou McFadden, Georgetown quarterback, held his lead at converting points after touchdowns though he was scoreless. He has booted four placements, or one more than Nowaskey.

Navy Seeks New Kicker

Cutter Tries Two Squad Sees Movies
Play Penn Saturday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Oct. 24.—Disappointed by his team's failure to stop either Yale or Princeton because of erratic place-kicking, Head Coach Hank Hardwick, of Navy, this afternoon assigned Slade Cutter, husky line coach, to the task of developing an accurate booter for future emergencies.

While Hardwick herded the first two elevens into a projection room where motion pictures of the Princeton game were exhibited, Cutter took his first two candidates, Ralph Mann and Bill Worden, out on the rain-drenched field for their initial drill. They spent most of the afternoon kicking from all angles, while Cutter, a past master at the art, pointed out flaws in their styles and showed how to overcome them.

Cutter, if you recall, kicked the field goal against Army three years ago that gave Navy a 3-0 victory over its ancient rival. He kicked all of the points after touchdown for the team that year, rarely missing, and may develop a lad to fill the bill for the current eleven.

A light scrimmage was the order of the day for the third and fourth teams, although bodily contact is being avoided as much as possible to keep the casualty list down. Al Bergner, regular tackle, who has been in sick bay with an injured knee, reported back for duty, but will do nothing more this week than run signals. He will be available for the Penn game, replacing Tom McGrath, a capable understudy, who played great ball against both Yale and Princeton.

The lone casualty of last Saturday's game was Ward Witter, a guard, who pulled up with a charley horse. He will be out a few days, but is expected to be ready for the Quakers. Al Feldmeier, "youngster" guard who was injured early in the season, also is fully recovered and has reported for practice.

Hardwick had a good word for Emmett (Bullet) Wood, Ulmont Whitehead, and Cliff Lenz for their play in the Princeton game. It was Wood's consistent line plunging and a 60-yard run and subsequent touchdown that kept the Middies out in front of the Tiger.

Whitehead's long-distance punting has been one of the features of Navy's play this season. He averaged 47 yards against Princeton, one of the day's outstanding punting performances, and hung up a mark of 45 against Yale the previous week.

Lenz is one of the most improved players on the squad, but still must acquire much more polish before Hardwick can rely on him under heavy shelling. Lenz gives promise of developing into the climax runner the Admirals need and will see much action from now until the close of the campaign if he holds to his present pace.

Air Raid Warning Worries Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP).—Given a scare by Yale's success in completing passes, Michigan went through a drill against aerials as preparations opened today for the game here with Illinois Saturday.

Coach Fritz Crisler said he was unimpressed by the 15-to-13 win over the Elis at New Haven, asserting that "now that my boys didn't have the field day they expected perhaps they will get down to work."

The line-up that took the field against Yale was kept intact today.

Garibaldi On Mat Card

Gino's Brother
Meets Zaharias
Meske, Dusek Matched

Another family feud will be aired in the battlepit at Turner's Arena Thursday night when Chick Garibaldi, younger brother of the well-known and popular Gino, is turned loose against Chris Zaharias—under-slung kid brother of George, in a 30-minute engagement.

The Garibaldis and Zahariases have been snorting defiance over the back fence at one another these many years now without reaching a decision. Gino and George met several times in bygone years when both were hot on Jimmy Londos' coattails, without reaching a decision. Their matches usually ended in draws, or if Gino won the first, George was a cinch to win the second.

Neither Chick nor Chris measure up to their older brothers' respective abilities, but in one of these interfamily contests they don't have to be champions to make it interesting. Action virtually is guaranteed.

Promoter Turner also has corralled a couple of additional bad men to help support the feature go between Ed Meseke and Ernie Dusek. Reb Russell, who quit punching cows one day when one of 'em punched back at him, meets Steve Budynas, a newcomer from Canada; while Yvon Robert tangles with Bibber McCoy in the 45-minute semifinal.

Women Golfers Face 4 Events in 11 Days

Field Day at Two Courses Today
Marion Brown to Be Honored Thursday
Washington, Army and Navy, Are Hosts

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

The annual field day for the teams of the Women's District Golf Association today is the first of four tournaments in the next 11 days for the fair divot-diggers, that will average at least 150 entries per event.

The first and second teams will play at Congressional this morning, with the third competing at Chevy Chase, then they will all get together for a luncheon and distribution of prizes at the former course. It is the last official tournament of the association, the others being invitation events.

The N. B. C. tournament honoring Marion Brown, recognized outstanding woman golfer of the District, due to her District and Middle Atlantic championships, will be played Thursday at Manor, with entries closing at 1 p. m. today. Mrs. Robert A. Lacey, tournament chairman of the W. D. C. G. A., at Cleveland 3939, is in charge.

Mrs. Lacey has received 150 entries to date, with the field competing for the main trophy and some 30 other prizes donated by District merchants. The first annual event honoring Helen Dettweiler last year at her home Congressional course drew 196 players, but that included many from Baltimore. Players from the latter city are not competing in this event.

Entries close Friday for the second "Fallen Leaves" tourney of the Washington Golf and Country Club women's golf committee, to be played Monday, October 31, over the nearby Virginia layout.

Mrs. G. C. Roney is accepting entries at Emerson 1252. The entrance fee is 50 cents. The play attracted over 150 golfers last year.

First the Field Day was the closing event for the women golfers, who have already played to their banner season in history. Then the Fallen Leaves, and the NBC tournaments were added, and now Mrs. George Hussey has added a turkey tournament at Army and Navy to the list.

The event is open to all members of the Women's District of Columbia Association, and carries the usual 50 cents entrance fee. Play will be at 9 and 18 holes with 10 or 15 turkeys awarded the winners, including a huge gobbler to the first low net.

Barring more last minute additions to the lengthy schedule, the Service Club affair will conclude the varied tournament card, and the annual luncheon business meeting on December 1 at a club to be named will officially end the season.

The latter may be one of the most active in years should the three-time President Mrs. Ralph W. Payne, of Congressional, decline to serve another year, a successor must be chosen.

The committee is attempting to persuade Mrs. Payne to serve a fourth term, in view of the excellent work she has done the past three years, and in view of the fact that the National tournament may come to Congressional next year. Mrs. Payne was influential in placing a bid for the tournament.

HERE'S THE $1.00 ANTI-FREEZE

Fifty cents' worth now keeps most cars safe down to 10° above zero

MAYBE this is an "Indian Summer" day, when you're not even thinking of anti-freeze. But you know a cold snap will come. Set your mind at ease now. Have your dealer or service station man put a couple of quarts of Du Pont "Zerone"* Anti-Freeze in your car today.

Check the radiator solution from time to time. When winter gets down to real business, add enough "Zerone" for lower temperatures. Scientific tests prove that radiator losses are chiefly mechanical, and even then you lose a solution of "Zerone" and water—not one or the other alone. With "Zerone" you get improved engine performance, due to better heat dissipation, and more pep and efficiency, through prevention of rust and corrosion in a clean cooling system. All for only $1.00 a gallon. Du Pont, "Zerone" Div., Wilmington, Del.

On Fishing

The bluefish season on the south Jersey Coast, like our own here in Chesapeake Bay, seems to be way off. Several schools were reported off Seabright last week, but the almost continuous northeast winds that have kept most of the small boats inside for the past thirty days, makes the going so miserable, few anglers are taking the rolling to get to them.

ACKERMAN.

At Atlantic City, 3 and 4 pound sea trout have been plentiful, as well as large hardheads just outside the Absecon Inlet bar, but now the codfish sharks are so thick, fishing is next to impossible.

The same fishing is holding up along the Maryland coast, at Chincoteague and Wachaprague, but at these points there are no sharks.

In the bay we haven't had a report of a blue being caught in two weeks, but as though making up for their absence, the big stripers have been hitting more than regularly. The slightly colder weather should add to their striking proclivities instead of slowing them up, as many anglers fear.

Hardly a catch to warm the heart of an angler, never the less the capture of a sailfish but an inch and a quarter long was hailed with delight by Miami ichthyologists, not only because it is the smallest ever recorded, but also for the reason that it seems to prove beyond any doubt that sailfish spawn in that area.

Clarence Fine, jr., son of the well-known fishing guide, dipped the tiny specimen from the water with a dipnet, while laying at their berth at Pier No. 5 in the City Yacht Basin. It was kept alive and displayed for several hours before being turned over to the Al Pflueger Marine Museum for mounting.

Fully formed, even to the great sail, of a heighth of almost half its total length, the heavier bill seems to be the only portion of the body out of proportion.

The first Spanish and king mackerel of the season were taken last Monday and Tuesday from the Sunny Isles Pier above Miami Beach. Forerunners of the schools, that in all likelihood will arrive there during the next few days, to stay until late April. Two fish of the same family that probably supply more sport for anglers than any others in the whole South Atlantic area.

A note that might be of more than passing interest to anglers here, particularly if they got in on the white marlin fishing at Ocean City, Al Pflueger, Miami taxidermist, received from Ocean City, 66 of these gamesters for mounting.

Black bass are more numerous in Currituck Sound, N. C., this year than at any time in several years, according to the Conservation Department supervisor for that area. Indications are that the sound will soon rank along with Mattamuskeet Lake as one of the best black bass fishing grounds in eastern North Carolina.

Reason for the increase is the sand fixation work being carried on along the outer banks, and the replacing the locks in the Inland Waterway. This prevention of soil erosion keeps the salt water from breaking over during periods of storm, while the locks keep out that from the Elizabeth river. As a result, fresh water fish of all varieties are rapidly increasing in the sound.

This return of fresh water conditions is also expected to increase the number of wildfowl wintering in the sound area, since it has brought the return of food grasses. The grass, later than usual this year, should hold the ducks and geese at least until the end of the wildfowl season, which in that section runs until the last of December.

We feel that a line or two, commending Bennie Dement, secretary and treasurer of the National Capital Casting Club, is more than fitting at this time, for we think his clever and timely notices had much to do with the renewed interest that led to the finest tournament this club has ever held.

The keen interest and large attendance will probably result in the Eastern Association of Scientific Angling clubs asking the local club to handle their 1939 tournament. Composed of some 17 members clubs along the Eastern Seaboard, it would be the means of bringing many top-notch casters here.

Beats Five High Class Sprinters

Benjam Is Second Clingendaal Shows Salburne Pays $118 In Her First Race

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 24.—Further evidence of the potency of Kentucky blue grass transplanted by Alan Clarke, owner of the Huntington Farm at nearby Clarksville, Md., was brought out today when Honey Cloud, trained by Whitey Abel, former jockey, and owned by his wife, defeated five high-class sprinters in the Admiral Purse, serving feature purse of the Monday program here.

Honey Cloud, always a popular sprinter in this State, broke down in a race at Tropical Park last winter and Trainer Abel sent the gelding to Clarke's farm to recuperate. Honey Cloud roamed the Huntington fields until a few weeks ago, when Abel put him back in training. He tired in his first start here last week but today he was driven to a thrilling head victory over Benjam, Bomar Stable star.

The 4-year-old gelding also left in his wake such good ones as Clingendaal, Mower and Fair Knightess. Overlooked in the betting, he paid a $16.50 mutuel.

With mud under his hooves, Honey Cloud went into command leaving the gate and was never headed. Benjam was taken back off the pace leaving the backstretch and came through on the inside to loom menacingly, but Jockey Al Schmidt put his whip on Honey Cloud and his mount lasted in the thrilling stretch drive.

The second longest individual mutuel price of the meeting developed in the second race. Salburne, a 3-year-old filly owned by M. Utz and making her first start on any racetrack, found the mud to her liking and finished in front of Star Mint and Two Aces. Salburne was coupled with Two Aces in the "field" and paid $118. If she had been in the wagering alone, she probably would have paid twice that figure.

The program brought a $154.60 pay-off in the daily double. The first half went to H. L. Straus' Peper Drop, a 3-year-old colt, who was making his first start in a long time. He paid $10.90. The second half of the double was provided by Tomoca, owned and trained by Sherrill Ward. This young gelding went to the post for his first start. Tomoca paid a $13.30 mutuel.

Royal Business, of Charles Town and half-mile fame, won as a favorite in the fourth race. It was a thrilling battle with the Sun Meadow filly scoring by a scant nose over Mrs. Nelson Bond's Jolly Jack. Dupps, who rode Paper Drop in the first race, had the mount on Royal Business, a $5.70 shot.

In a photo finish, L. E. Ogle's Mothel scored a nose decision in the seventh race. The imported gelding forced Versailles into defeat and brought the favorite players a $4.90 mutuel. Third money in the field of eleven went to Later On.

Candle Ends, a $19.70 shot, won the sixth race by four lengths while under wraps. Some Count was second and Night Intruder, third. Candle Ends was eight lengths in front in the stretch.

†Mrs. E. L. Bull-Claude Feltner entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PAPER DROP, $10.90, $5.80, $2.40; MATTAPONY, $3.10, $2.10. †Tuleyries Lin, $2.10.

PAPER DROP, first away, drew out gradually while hustled to the stretch and won with speed in reserve. MATTAPONY moved up gradually and was best of the others. TULEYRIES LIN was a forward factor from the break and closed gamely. IDYLLIC went evenly after being unable to keep up in the early stages. BRAVING DANGER closed a gap. HALO went well placed to the stretch and weakened. FLYING VIM closed resolutely. OTEEBEE had early speed and quit.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:07. Off at 2:08. Winner, Miss M. Utz's dk. b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SALBURNE, $118.00, $42.10, $48.40; STAR MINT, $11.50, $8.90; TWO ACES, $48.40.

SALBURNE away well, raced BEAUFAST into defeat to get to the front and held away thereafter under a drive. STAR MINT, shuffled back at the first turn, came around the field to close with good energy. TWO ACES, slow to begin, went wide for racing room and closed with a rush. GOLD KNIGHTESS had speed in spots. SCHLEY NURSE was away poorly and rallied mildly. CANGRIERRON had a rough trip. PUDDLES stopped.

THIRD RACE—Mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:38. Off at 2:39½. Winner, S. W. Ward's br. c. *Pield.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOMOCA, $13.30, $9.80, $5.10; CULDEE, $9.80, $7.30; BARKER, $4.50.

TOMOCA, off slightly, was rated close to the pace of CULDEE, rallied when placed to a drive entering the stretch and drew out. CULDEE set a good pace, but weakened suddenly inside the eighth pole. BARKER gained gradually throughout the running and closed full of run. LONG WINDED, carried wide at the first turn, came gamely in the closing quarter. TANGANYIKA moved up menacingly approaching the stretch, but hung. CORONADO was in trouble in the early stages and tired in the stretch. MIRIFIC stopped after going forwardly for three-quarters. COURSING stopped badly.

Daily Double, Paper Drop and Tomoca, Paid $154.60.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:06. Off at 3:10. Winner, E. Johnston's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL BUSINESS, $5.70, $3.30, $2.50; JOLLY JACK, $7.10, $3.70; LOVICK, $3.20.

ROYAL BUSINESS, allowed to race on own courage for a half, gained gradually when placed to a drive and was up in the concluding strides. JOLLY JACK was rushed to the front going to the turn, drew out on VASSAR and CARNAGE and fought it out willingly. LOVICK closed gamely. VASSAR could not keep up after a half. QUICKER was not a factor. CARNAGE stopped. GRIT AND GRACE lacked speed at all stages.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall for all but MOWER. Won driving; place same. Went to the post at 3:41½. Off at 3:46¾. Winner, Mrs. A. J. Abel's ch. g. (4), by High Cloud—Honey Pot. Trained by A. J. Abel. Value to winner, $850; second, $300; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14 4-5.

†C. S. Howard entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HONEY CLOUD, $16.80, $8.40, $4.40; BENJAM, $5.80, $3.00; CLINGENDAAL, $4.60.

HONEY CLOUD opened a good lead going to the turn and was kept to pressure to the end to stave off the closing bid of BENJAM. The latter, taken back after the opening furlong, saved ground entering the stretch and was wearing down the winner at the end. CLINGENDAAL, slow to get under way, closed with a rush. FAIR KNIGHTESS had early speed and weakened when placed to the whip. MOWER went in the air at the break. MELODY BOOTS lacked speed from the start.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,100. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall. Won handily; place driving. Went to the post at 4:15. Off at 4:18. Winner, O. B. Wearley's ch. g. (3), by Bagdad—Mad Kiss. Trained by O. B. Wearley. Value to winner, $800; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:48 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANDLE ENDS, $19.70, $7.80, $4.50; SOME COUNT, $5.10, $3.80; NIGHT INTRUDER, $3.30.

CANDLE ENDS took command without effort, drew far out and was in hand at the end. SOME COUNT, slow to get under way, closed with a rush, but was held safe. NIGHT INTRUDER was closest to the pace while under handling tactics for three-quarters and weakened gradually. DIP was always back. BROWN KNIGHT was not a serious factor. SLOW MOTION bore out leaving the gate, was rushed up on the outside and faltered badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall. Won driving; place same. Went to the post at 4:47½. Off at 4:49. Winner, L. P. Ogle's b. c. (3), by Kohinor or Satyrican—Mathagarria. Trained by L. E. Ogle. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:12 4-5.

*Pield.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOTHEL, $4.90, $3.90, $2.80; VERSAILLES, $4.30, $3.00; LATER ON, $5.00.

MOTHEL, taken wide for racing room, was steadied along to the stretch after improving position and closed under punishment to be up in the concluding strides. VERSAILLES came with a rush when placed to a drive, took command between calls and barely missed. LATER ON closed with a rush from a slow beginning. TUNEFUL took command on the backstretch, but weakened in the closing stages. COUNTER PASS hung after reaching contention.

Our Guest Selector

Our guest selector for today is James J. Bosworth, one of Bill Bennings' North Carolina rooters who came up to take a fling at the bangtails. Things haven't been breaking so well for the guest selectors of late. Art Brown, of WOL, failed to pick a winner last Saturday, and Mary Jane Hobart, aged 5, couldn't get one home yesterday. Brother Bosworth says to pardon his Southern accent, but he believes he can break the spell. After holding an entry sheet all afternoon, he came through with the following line-up of money horses for today:

1—Dark Friend, Wise King, Deflate.

5—Time Signal, Gene Palatine, Dark Sun.

7—Light Chatter, Chimney Top, High Tension.

Fred Schanze, Sportsman, Dies

Baltimore, Oct. 24 (AP).—Fred M. Schanze, vice president of the Mentee Publishing Co. and associate editor of Turf and Sports Digest, died today at Union Memorial Hospital of complications following upon an attack of pneumonia.

The widely known sportsman, former secretary of the Baltimore Orioles baseball team, is survived by his wife and a stepson.

Rabbi Asks $50,000 For Wife's Death

The Capital Transit Co. and Miss Nina Kathryn Kilgour, of 3009 Morrison street northwest, were sued for $50,000 yesterday in connection with an accident in which Mrs. Bessie Goldman was killed June 27.

Rabbi Morris Goldman, who filed the suit, said in his complaint that he and his wife were struck by Miss Kilgour's automobile while they were crossing from a sidewalk to a street car. He asked $50,000 for his own injuries and $10,000 as administrator of his wife's estate.

Couldn't Be Wrong

Loan League Holds Annual Meeting Today

22 Member Units Chicago Delegation D. C. Convention Bid

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A 100 per cent representation from component units is forecast by F. Willson Camp, secretary of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League, for this evening when the annual meeting of this organization convenes. Every one of the 22 member associations is expected to send a complete delegation to the session where final plans for participation in the convention of the United States Building and Loan League in Chicago will be approved. The session will also act on a recommendation of the executive council that the local group invite the national body to convene here next year. The board room of the Oriental Building Association at 600 F street northwest will be the place of the local annual meeting with President Arthur G. Bishop assembling the session at 8 o'clock.

August Loan Record

Savings, building and loan associations disbursed more money to home-owners in August than during any month this year, and a larger percentage of it went into building new homes than in any of the preceding months. This data are judged by Edward C. Baltz, of this city, president of the United States Building and Loan League, to be evidence that confidence has improved not only in the future of real estate, but also in that of jobs and security.

Every month since April, the associations have been increasing the proportion of their loan disbursements going directly for construction, and in August they put $1 out of every $3.30 loaned into new building. Construction loans that month totaled $22,575,000, it is estimated from reports filed with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and this sum represented an increase of 18.2 per cent over July construction loans and of 7 per cent over August of last year. This is the first month of 1938 in which construction loans have surpassed in volume those for the like month of 1937, Mr. Baltz explained.

10.4 Per Cent Above July

Dollar volume of loans for all purposes achieved a gain of 10.4 per cent over July, mounting to $74,709,000. In a seasonally adjusted index prepared by the league's research department, the August performance shows up about 9 per cent better than the average for the rest of the year. In the preceding two years there was a decline in loan volume of associations from July to August, leading the league president to the conclusion that this year's development is directly related to improvement in business sentiment dating from late summer.

"Since 62.1 per cent of the loan volume in August went directly for the acquisition of homes, either through building or purchase, confidence must have improved from its recession levels, because faith in the permanence of jobs and security is essential to any sustained activity in home building or buying," Mr. Baltz reports.

"When industrial production fell precipitantly last August, a downward trend in both home building and home buying loans by savings

Big Supplies Cut Wheat Half a Cent

Gain 2,316,000 Bu. Early Prices Higher Corn Irregular

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Wheat prices fell back in late dealings today and showed approximately half a cent a bushel net loss here, after scoring half a cent gain earlier. Announcement of 2,316,000 bushels increase of the United States wheat visible supply total acted as a weight on the market as trading neared an end. The increase contrasted with only 3,000 bushels enlargement the week previous.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅛-½ cent lower compared with Saturday's finish, December 65⅜-65¾, May 67¾-67⅝. Corn ¼ cent off to ¼ up, December 46⅞-46¾, May 49⅞. Oats exactly unchanged. Rye unchanged to ¼ cent decline, and provisions unchanged to 7 cents advance.

U. S. Wheat Supply At Five-Year High

The crop reporting board estimated today the Nation's wheat supply, including stocks in interior mills, elevators, warehouses and on farms, total 581,564,000 bushels on October 1. This compared with 481,260,000 bushels the same day a year ago.

Present stocks in interior mills, elevators and warehouses, estimated at 174,575,000 bushels, were said to be the largest for the five years for which records are available. Such stocks totaled 154,757,000 bushels October 1, 1937.

United Biscuit Net Surpasses Year Ago

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—United Biscuit Co. of America reported today consolidated net profit of $273,629, or 56 cents a share, on the common stock, for the quarter ended September 30.

This compares with $221,545, or 44 cents a share, for the June quarter, and $27,519, or 54 cents a share, for the corresponding 1937 quarter. The company, one of the three largest manufacturers in its field, operates principally in Central and Western States.

Utility Stocks in Good Demand Coppers and Equipments Firm Realizing Shades Other Groups

New York, Oct. 24.—The bullish element in Wall Street turned to the utilities again today in search for upside leadership and vigorous buying in this division enabled the list to finish in slightly higher ground despite easing tendencies in stores, motors, foods, and some of the blue-chip manufacturing shares. Coppers and rail equipments turned in some fair gains. Steels and oils were hesitant and rails wound up about even.

Indifferent commodity markets probably acted as a brake on stocks, cotton closing quiet and irregular with losses of 2 to 9 points, while wheat finished half a cent down, about a cent under the day's best levels.

Buoyancy in power shares probably could be accounted for more by scattered news of financing and expansion plans within the industry, than the assumption of peace with Government which supplied ammunition to the buying side last week. Commonwealth & Southern preferred, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey and North American all made good progress and eight representative stocks in the group showed an average advance of 1.12 points against a rise of only 0.08 point for the 100 stocks of 875 issues traded on the big board, 397 gained, 284 declined and 194 were unchanged in transactions aggregating 1,678,350 shares. The ratio of volume in the 15 most active stocks—usually around 25 per cent of the total—dropped to 18 per cent.

Curtiss-Wright, the day's leader, was unchanged on turnover of 28,600 shares, while Radio Corporation, New York Central and Steel common, next in the active class, either were unchanged or fractionally lower.

Steel Shares

Traders passed up the opportunity to give steel issues a whirl which was afforded by a 4.3-point rise in the operating rate to a new high for the year. The reason for their neglect, of course, was that U. S. Steel will issue its third-quarter report tomorrow. At no time in recent years has a quarterly steel report assumed such importance. It will afford, for the first time, definite information as to the extent which earnings have been affected by the drastic price cuts on products, made in June. The point which interests Wall Street is whether larger volume of production and increased efficiency will be able to offset the lower prices. Consideration is also being given to the likelihood that the further price slashes, notably on automobile steel sheets, made earlier this month, may have given motor car manufacturers opportunity to cover a large part of their requirements. This, in turn, may account for the better-than-expected boost in the industry's operating rate.

Bonds Firm

High grade investment bonds were quiet and well maintained today, while the speculative sections displayed a degree of firmness. Intermediate and low-priced railroad bonds were in demand, although a few minus signs also appeared in this group. Local tractions engaged in another upswing. In the foreign section Peruvians were good. Turnover in all issues was $7,500,000.

United States Treasury issues marked time while traders scanned the latest Treasury operation, which takes the form of an offering of 3-year, ⅞ per cent R. F. C. notes, available to holders of an expiring issue of nearly $300,000,000 of R. F. C. obligations. It was generally agreed that virtually all the maturing notes will be tendered for new ones, as up to 100 14-32 was paid in counter markets today for the new obligations. Long-term Treasury bonds dipped 1-32 to 4-32 point, and guaranteed issues also were easier. Best grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were quiet and well supported.

In the speculative rail group gains of small fractions were numerous, and occasional advances of a point or more also were reported. There were a few weak spots, such as Southern Railway bonds. Alleghany Corporation bonds reacted again from the high levels attained toward the end of last week, but utility holding issues were firm. Industrial convertibles remained an active group, at better figures. Local tractions moved higher on buying that was stimulated by hopes for approval of the unification bond issue next month.

Japanese bonds were irregular on the latest developments in China, while Italian and German issues slowly receded. High grade Australian, Canadian and Scandinavian bonds were well maintained. In the Latin-American default group Peruvians again advanced fractionally, although no indications yet are available of satisfactory debt service offers.

$50,000,000 Surplus Steel Plants for Sale

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—United States Steel Corporation is seeking to sell around $50,000,000 of surplus properties in various parts of the country, including land and obsolete plants and buildings, officials of the company disclosed today. To speed up disposition of these properties, the corporation has established real estate departments in its various subsidiaries.

Geographical shifts in industry have, in the case of the factory sites put up for sale, made these properties unsuitable in the corporation's setup. The modernization program carried on also has made some plants and buildings obsolete.

Some sales of such properties were made in 1936 and 1937, but only recently did the corporation begin an aggressive campaign to dispose of unneeded sites and buildings. The corporation has issued circulars, maps, blueprints and photographs for distribution among business and industrial executives.

New Offerings 100 Million Over Year Ago

Quarter, 645 Million Utilities Lead Oils in Second Place

The Securities and Exchange Commission makes public this morning an analysis of security registrations which became effective under the securities act during the three months ended September 30.

During this period, a total of $743,536,000 of new securities became fully effective, including $98,207,000 of common stock issues registered for reserve against the conversion of other securities having convertible features. Excluding these reserved issues, new securities with estimated gross proceeds of approximately $645,329,000 became fully effective—an amount greater by more than a hundred million dollars than the $538,364,000 registered during the same three months of 1937.

The resumption in proposed securities financing that became evident in June, continued through the third quarter, and notwithstanding the temporary interruption occasioned by the European crisis in September, total registrations were higher from July through September, 1938, than for any quarterly period in more than a year and were only about a hundred million dollars short of equaling the aggregate registrations of the first two quarters of 1938.

Refundings

The increase was due chiefly to larger registrations by electric and gas utility companies and manufacturing companies, which respectively registered $246,667,000 (38.2 per cent of registrations other than of securities reserved for conversion) and $215,693,000 (33.4 per cent of the total). The largest registrants within the manufacturing group were the oil companies, which registered $134,250,000 of securities and the iron and steel companies with $53,317,000 of effective registrations. Investment and trading companies accounted for 20.5 per cent of the total registrations of the quarter, so that less than 8 per cent of the total was registered by other issuers.

About 85 per cent of the net proceeds which the utility companies expected to raise through the sale of their registered issues was to be used for the repayment of indebtedness, while a like percentage of the manufacturing companies' proceeds was to be applied toward capital expenditures and additions to working capital or for repayment of bank loans recently made for these purposes.

Chicago Corn Receipts 1,157 Cars in Day

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP).—The movement of corn acquired by the Government through default of farmers on 1937 loans is under way on a large scale, according to grain trade estimates today.

Receipts of corn here totaled 1,157 cars, one of the largest supplies for a single day in several years, and traders estimated approximately 75 per cent of this volume was Government corn consigned to elevators. This grain is not routed for market.

Cotton Dips December 8.41

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Liquidation and slackened demand depressed all cotton positions but next October today. December sold off from 8.45 to 8.39 and closed at 8.41, with final quotations net unchanged to 9 points lower.

The market opened unchanged to 4 points lower and narrow and irregular price changes resulted from further exchanging from current crop positions into the October 1939 delivery. Commission house selling added to the supply of contracts but forward deliveries were still supported by foreign buying.

Steel Operations Exceed Year Ago

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week will advance 4.3 points to 53.7 per cent of capacity, compared with 49.4 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 46.7 per cent of capacity while a year ago they were 52.1 per cent. It was the first time since recovery in steel operations began around mid-summer that the production rate surpassed the comparable figure a year ago.

(Richard II—Act 3, Scene 2)

RICHARD, England's King . . . deserted by his friends . . . facing loss of his throne . . . bitter and despondent . . . nothing to live for . . . soliloquizes: "Let's choose executors and talk of wills."

In olden times, not until death seemed near, did people make their wills. Superstitious, they thought that making one's will hastened death.

Today, people realize that making a will that provides for protection of a family and conservation of an estate brings peace of mind that stimulates health and prolongs life. They know that one should make his plans for the future while his mind is clear and keen—not when it is dulled by old age, illness or thoughts of death.

Have your attorney draw your will now, and be certain that it is up-to-date by annually reviewing and checking its provisions. And, in selecting an Executor or Trustee for your estate, consider this Company's almost half-a-century of estate management experience.

Realty Bonds Average Yield 8½ Per Cent

Highest in 4 Years Office Buildings Top Apartments Next

New York, Oct. 24.—A current yield of 8½ per cent is available through the purchase of interest-paying realty bonds, according to an analysis of 120 issues made by Burr & Co., Inc. The analysis covers realty issues paying interest either at the original rates or under reorganizations, located in the Eastern part of the United States and including all the main types of properties, such as hotels, apartment hotels, office buildings, apartment houses and theaters.

The average market for these bonds is $436 per $1,000 face amount, while the average interest rate being paid is 3.72 per cent per annum, indicating an average current yield of 8.5 per cent.

The yield currently available on realty bonds, according to records maintained by Burr & Co. for several years, is higher than at any time since October, 1934, when a yield of over 9 per cent was offered by realty bonds. This average yield declined steadily up to February, 1937, when the average current yield had dropped to 6.2 per cent. Since that time the yield has increased steadily.

The highest available current yield, according to the analysis, is shown by office building issues. The average market for these bonds is $405 per $1,000 and they are paying an average of 3.56 per cent interest per annum, indicating a current yield of 8.8 per cent. The apartment house issues, with an average price of $377 and paying 3.23 per cent interest, offer a current yield of 8.6 per cent.

Hotel issues paying average interest of 3.77 per cent and quoted at $467 offer a current yield of 8.1 per cent, apartment hotels 3.32 per cent and quoted $404 per $1,000 yield 8.2 per cent, while theater issues paying an average interest rate of 5.37 per cent per annum and quoted at an average of $684 offer a current yield of 7.9 per cent.

Commercial Loans Drop $16,000,000

By the Associated Press.

Commercial, industrial and agricultural loans declined in the week ended October 19, canceling part of the increase registered in the three preceding weeks.

Banks in 101 leading cities reported their commercial loans dropped $ 6,000,000 to a total of $3,908,000,000. The principal decreases were $9,000,000 in New York City and $3,000,000 each in the Boston and Cleveland districts. Small increases were reported in the St. Louis, Minneapolis and Atlanta districts.

Rush Opens Drive For Mission Home

A rush for prospect cards yesterday gave leaders cause to forecast success for the Central Union Mission's John S. Bennett memorial campaign for a $125,000 building fund.

Mrs. Jean Bennett, mission superintendent, and a special corps of assistants were unable to keep pace with requests from workers for cards bearing names of persons to be solicited for contributions.

Drive workers will report on progress at a luncheon in the Calvary Baptist Church at 12:30 p. m. Thursday.

Smoke Blankets Countryside

The countryside around Saugus, Mass., was darkened when a large oil truck caught fire at the outskirts of town. Several automobiles barely escaped the flaming spray

PWA Blocsk Bids on U. of M. Addition Jobs

Specifications Not Met Plans to Be Redrawn New Bids Probable

Construction of additions to the dentistry building and nurses home of the University of Maryland in Baltimore and additions to the Princess Anne group will be held up because the architect's specifications did not "meet up with PWA standards," Walter Goertz, chief resident engineer, announced yesterday.

The bids, which were to have been opened in Baltimore yesterday, were called off. They will be resubmitted later when the plans are corrected, Goertz said.

Bids are scheduled to be opened at Silver Spring, Md., Thursday on the engineering building and dining hall at the College Park branch of the university.

Applications for "all risk" wheat crop insurance have been received from 1,509 Maryland farmers, Paul E. Nystrom, crop insurance supervisor for Maryland, announced yesterday.

The so-called "recession" must be bad at the University of Maryland. The following notice appeared on the university bulletin board yesterday.

"For sale: One trench coat (practically new), medium size (5 feet 5 to 5 feet 9; either boy's or girl's. Times are really bad. I have to sell my roommates' trench coat to buy an English textbook—see or write Bernard Ulman, 408 D, Calvert Hall."

Last Rites Today For August Blase

Funeral services for August Blase, 60, retired grocer, who died Sunday at his home, 69 Bryant street northwest, will be held today at 2 p. m. in the Zurhorst funeral home, 301 East Capitol street. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

A native of France, Mr. Blase came to this country when he was 14 and for the last 35 years had lived here.

Until seven years ago, when he retired, Mr. Blase was proprietor of a grocery on Connecticut avenue northwest, near the Bureau of Standards.

Rites Arranged Today for F. M. Bronson

Telephone Pioneer Dead Home in Silver Spring Funeral at Residence

Services for Frederick M. Bronson, 56, prominent telephone pioneer will be held at 1 p. m. today at his home, 18 North Mansion drive, Silver Spring. Burial will be in Forest Hills, N. Y.

Pallbearers will be: Keith McHugh, vice president; Chester Wallace, assistant vice president, and Z. Z. Hugus, commercial engineer of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and F. G. Macarow, assistant vice president; C. A. Robinson, general manager, and E. Goring Bliss, general commercial manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

Mr. Bronson, who died Sunday of a heart attack at his residence, had been representative of the Bell System since 1936.

A native of Walton, N. Y., Mr. Bronson was the son of John H. and Elmina Sophronia Georgia Bronson. He began his business career as night operator of the Walton Telephone Co., and in 1902 entered the Bell System. After serving in various capacities in Maine, Mr. Bronson was transferred to the engineering department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in New York City in 1910. He remained in New York until coming to the Capital two years ago.

Mr. Bronson was a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Washington Board of Trade. Active in Masonic work, Mr. Bronson was a Knight Templar. He was formerly a member of the New York National Guard.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Frances Cowan Chaplin Bronson; a daughter, Mrs. Daniel A. Bennett, of Dallas, and a son, Dr. Wingate Chaplin Bronson, of Forest Hills.

Shift of Wind Ends Threat of Storm in R. I.

Tidal Floods Averted Waters Subside Residents Prepared

By the United Press.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 24.—The Rhode Island shore escaped inundation by tidal waters, and fear for the safety of lowland residents abated tonight when heavy winds sweeping the coast shifted from the Southeast to the West.

Throughout the early evening, State police and Coast Guardsmen had warned residents from Westerly through Newport and along Narragansett Bay to be prepared to evacuate their homes.

Authorities said that had the winds remained southeasterly and reached gale force on an unusually high tide the resultant damage would have been heavy. The Rhode Island coast was just shaking off the wounds inflicted by the hurricane and tidal wave of a month ago.

At Providence the tidal waters were said to be "just a little above normal," when the high mark was reached at 8:30 p. m.

Morning Tides High

Fear arose when the morning tide was 3 feet above normal at 8. The prospect of high waves on top of the expected abnormally high tide tonight was heightened when the U. S. Weather Bureau forecast southeasterly winds reaching gale force from New Haven, Conn., to Eastport, Me.

Fishing folk at Galilee, near Point Judith, were prepared to evacuate after being warned by Coast Guard early this afternoon that the tides might inundate their lands. Every precaution was being taken by police and Coast Guardsmen to speed removal of persons from shore areas should the tides reach a danger point.

Boston Gale Expected

By the Associated Press.

The Weather Bureau warned yesterday a storm of moderate intensity moving north along the Atlantic Coast would cause strong winds in the vicinity of Boston.

The bureau's warning said:

"Advisory 10:30 a. m. Southeast storm warning ordered 10:30 a. m., New Haven, Conn., to Eastport, Me., and on eastern Long Island. Disturbance of moderate intensity central on the South Carolina coast will move north northeastward with increasing intensity and cause strong southeast and south winds reaching gale force at times."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart.

GREAT jubilation came the other midnight when the wage-hour law took effect, but it was just another midnight to thousands of Federal employes. They were left on the curb, waiting for the streetcar and mumbling to themselves that in all the debate by Congress over who was working how long, little or nothing was said about the millions of hours in Federal overtime or who would do what about it and when.

• • • •

There was many months ago a solid report in circulation detailing the number of overtime hours in the Government. This report, you will recall, showed that 76,448 employes put in 10,613 hours of overtime between July 1 and December 31, 1936—and it was estimated that had the Federal Government compensated for this overtime, the national kitty would have been touched to the tune of $7,762,000.

• • • •

THE POINT is that nothing ever was done about it. It is interesting to recall that the report, signed and sealed, went to both houses of Congress and then to the wastebasket, so far as anyone ever heard. And the further point is that nothing is planned, officially, to be done about it. Some of the unions, particularly the A. F. G. E., are planning to belabor the next Congress on the subject—but the appeal means expenditure of money.

• • • •

Whether the Congress will be willing to do for Federal workers what it has commanded private industry to do for its employes is a matter you had better not lay too much money on or feel too much expectation over, either.

• • • •

CERTAIN Civil Service Commission officials have the feeling that it is difficult to tell when the overtime is overtime. They believe that much of it is voluntary, done by persons who want to make a good showing in the work. Equally, these sources recognize that much of it is occasioned by supervisors, who, for instance, get to work late, throwing the whole schedules askew. Or supervisors who postpone their dictation until two minutes before closing time and then spiel off dozens of letters, expecting them to be in the mails during the night.

• • • •

Under these circumstances, the employe is helpless. There are available no funds to compensate and compensatory overtime can't be had. But, withal, some improvement has been made since 1936. The A. F. G. E. president points out that "the Veterans' Administration is making good progress in cutting the work week down to 44 hours." But, by the same token, the prison service, from the overtime standpoint, is simply gone beyond recall.

Ironically, the Wage and Hour Division, which has been establishing the 44-hour week for private business, had to call for overtime from some of its clerks in the very process of fixing the hours for others. Dinner was served them on the premises on one evening.

But in this division it is fair to note that the officials put in more overtime than did the clerks.

• • • •

IN ANY event, as private industry adjusts its hours schedules, the picture grows increasingly gloomy in the Federal service. And the worst part is, there is no ray of hope of anything being done about it soon.

• • • •

The Civil Service Commission got off pretty easy in its quest for Federal personnel officers and assistant personnel officers to function under the new order: only 5,892 applications were received. This is unusual, because as many as 100,000 often apply for the job of messenger.

Telephone Co. Officials Fete 35-Year Veteran

Roy W. Prince, chief engineer of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., was given a luncheon by telephone officials at the National Press Club yesterday to mark his completion of 35 years of service.

Charles A. Robinson, general manager, presented a diamond emblem to Prince, who began his career as a draftsman in the plant department.

Workers' Alliance Asks D. C. Relief Hearings

Declaring the estimated 50,000 jobless persons now registered in Washington "is only a part of the total unemployed," the group asked that an immediate appropriation be made from the President's $25,000,000 emergency fund for relief purposes.

Trailer Tintypes

WE HAD A PLAIN, ORDINARY KIND OF TRAILER—THE SAME AS EVERYBODY ELSE, UNTIL STEVE WENT CRAZY OVER RAISING CHICKENS. HE'S A GREAT BELIEVER IN THE POWER OF SUGGESTION

Bob Burns Says—

There's a big movement on foot now to establish a world court where representatives from all countries will meet and decide things fairly and squarely. Some of the nations don't want to go into it.

They're probably like my uncle who was put in jail for stealin' a hog. His lawyer called on him in jail and says, "You leave this to me—I'll see that you get justice!" My uncle says, "Now wait a minute—they've got 12 men on the jury that will give me justice. What I want with you is to get me out of here!"

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST,
Clarendon, Va., Tel. OXford 0309

Sheriff Howard B. Fields announced yesterday the following regulations with respect to the classification and parking of vehicles upon the public highways of Arlington County:

The space adjacent to the curb on the south side of Washington boulevard from North Irving street to the east to a point opposite the entrance of the old telephone company building on the southeast corner of Washington boulevard and North Irving street is set aside for parking of taxicabs exclusively. No other vehicle shall park in this space at any time.

No motor vehicle operated for transportation of passengers for hire, the type known as taxicabs, shall park at any time in the following-described areas, except for the loading or unloading of passengers:

Sheriff Fields said the provisions of the ordinance will be strictly enforced, that operators of taxicabs will be given a copy of the regulations and parking signs will be painted at once.

Apartments Envisioned

Initial steps looking to the development of two major apartment projects similar to Colonial Village, will be taken before the Zoning Appeals Board tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the courthouse.

Rezoning of a tract of land on the south side of Columbia pike and another on North Washington boulevard about a mile beyond Glebe road, will be requested.

Should the requests be recommended by the Zoning Appeal Board and approval by the coupty board two apartment projects are promised. One will be constructed by Gustav Ring, developer of Colonial Village, on the south side of Columbia pike and the other by Mac Properties, Inc., on North Washington boulevard.

The Columbia pike project will represent a development of approximately 40 acres with an outlay of between two and three million dollars.

The proposed development by the Mac Properties, Inc., will cover approximately 123 acres and will represent an investment of about $7,500,000.

This development would be adjacent to property recently purchased by the county school board for a junior high school. The school site will contain seven acres and plans for the building are now being prepared by Raymond V. Long, State architect.
